BRITISH COLD TO OFFER

Refuse to Accept £6,000,000 Yearly From Future Dawes Payments at Full Value.

REPARATIONS CHIEF FACTOR

French Minister Determined Not to Commit His Country to Settlement if Germany Defaults.

PARIS, July 31.—It is now entirely unlikely there will be a debt settlement between Paris and London before debt negotiations between Paris and Washington. That is the main conclusion to be drawn from the suspension in London yesterday of conversations relative to the French debt to England.

The French Finance Ministry states there has been no break. While there is no good reason to doubt that statement, it could not be translated into meaning there has been any agreement, except an agreement to disagree for the time being. Between the lines one may see that in the circumstances the British Government is quite content to wait to see what progress Washington makes with Paris. That this is a good surmise is indicated by the fact that the maximum annual payment from France ever mentioned by the English was £20,000,000, and in recent talks they stood on that figure.

Of course, if the unexpected had happened and France had made an offer close to British desires it would have been accepted, and, on the other hand, if France had found at London a chance to settle on a basis which she would have regarded as a good lever to use at Washington a settlement might have been found. But a considerable gulf separated what England asks and what France offers, and it may now almost be assumed England will tarry in expectation of applying to the French debt proportionate, pari passu treatment of a possible Franco-American agreement.

French Offer That Was Rejected.

No announcement has been made of what France offered England, but as near as can be gathered the French offer was £3,000,000 annually directly from France, plus a theoretical equivalent in German marks of £6,000,000 to be assigned to Great Britain from the French share in reparations. The French consider this represented an offer of £9,000,000 a year, but the British are maintaining their figure of £20,000,000 against French expectations that it would be lowered. They replied that for the French offer to be worth £9,000,000 a year France would have to guarantee the conversion of German marks, and that without that the English would not regard the potential £6,000,000 of reparations as worth more than 50 per cent. Therefore, they figured the French offer as it stood at £6,000,000 less than they regarded would fit into the Churchill offer that England would accept from friend and foe alike on the Continent what she pays America annually, or £35,000,000.

It is understood in the French capital that England is ready to accept £15,000,000 a year from France to be applied toward the English payment to the United States, and to be reduced currently in proportion as England collects from her other allies and from Germany.

The French feel that a settlement on such a scale as this with England would seriously hamper their getting what they hope from Washington, because the French debt to England and America being somewhat nearly equal, and negotiations with England starting from a basis of reduction of the French debt by at least England's 22 per cent. share in reparations, the French count on a reduction of at least 50 per cent. in the debt to London. If the English debt is reduced 50 per cent. they would agree to pay £15,000,000 a year, or $75,000,000. It would be extremely unlikely they could obtain from America a settlement on the basis of $100,000,000 a year, which M. Caillaux regards as the maximum payment to the United States. It is reasoned here that £15,000,000 a year to England and £20,000,000 to the United States, a total of £35,000,000, is what England now pays America, and that if England, with her great foreign interests, finds it burdensome to pay this sum, France, bearing the load of reconstruction, could not pay it. And thus the French have material for an argument they will surely present at Washington—that France's capacity for payment must be considered, and considered not only by one debtor but by both debtors, contending that America cannot refuse to a war ally the treatment she recommended France to accord to the former common enemy.

Reparations Still a Factor.

In this connection reparations is bound to come up, for while M. Caillaux has given up hope of connecting directly payments from Germany to payments to America, one does not have to be an economist to see that reparations must be considered as a factor in any estimate of France's capacity to pay.

M. Caillaux's chief concern is to keep

GENEVA, July 31.—A dispatch from the Persian Legation in Berne today informed the Secretary General of the League of Nations that the Persian Government has decided to establish a permanent delegation here with the former Councilor of the Legation in charge.

There are now thirteen permanent representatives of nations established in Geneva, while more than a score of other nations have designated their Ministers or Ambassadors at Berne or Paris as official representatives to the League of Nations.

SCHNEIDEMUEHL, Germany, July 31.—Imagine 20,000 Pennsylvania coal miners and their wives and children being torn from the homes in which they had lived for scores of years and overnight being shunted down toward the middle of Texas. Then imagine a like number of Texans forcibly moved North into the State of New York. Suppose, also, that all this occurred at a time of economic depression, and add to your supposition the hypothesis that many of these deported Pennsylvanians could not speak the language used in Texas.

This imaginative process may convey a vague idea of what is going on here, on the border line between Germany and Poland, across which 50,000 human beings today are being herded from one country into another against their will and under the most distressing circumstances.

Ancient racial hatreds—Poland's craving to purge her soil of all non-Polish elements and Germany's similar move to retaliate—and the blind and stupid pride of the two Governments have combined to bring about this state of affairs that recalls the dark ages of European history.

Certainly since the brutal mutual expulsions of the ethnical minorities from Turkey and Greece soon after the armistice there has been nothing to equal this event for crass and cruel disregard of humanitarian principles.

Here in Schneidemuehl's erstwhile prison camp, now partly used by an airplane factory, are quartered the arrivals from Poland—Germans who for many years in some instances, in some since their birth, have lived in what was formerly German Poland. The act which led to their expulsion by the Warsaw Government was the fact that they voted to retain German citizenship in the plebiscite held five years ago.

There are 5,000 of them here now and every hour brings fresh trainloads. And among them there are not 500 who wanted to leave Poland.

Forced to Lose Valuable Property.

Mostly they are of the small farmer and artisan class; honest, hard-working folk, many of whom owned their homes and were comfortably established—for life as they thought. Now, in many cases, on a few hours' notice they have had to vacate their dwellings, and with such of their household possessions as they could bring along hurry across the frontier into a country as unknown to them as New York is to Texans who have never been there. Moreover, many speak only Polish or have Polish wives speaking no German. This journey to their unfamiliar fatherland in most cases took many hours and was full of hardships. Hundreds were ill. Several adults and fully half a dozen babies died en route.

The barracks in which they are housed here are filthy and lack the most ordinary comforts. Several families have to share one small room or camp out in the big halls on straw. For food they get cabbage soup and potatoes.

Among scores of those with whom THE TIMES correspondent talked only one, a woman, said she wanted to leave Poland, and she was weeping so copiously that she could not explain why. Men gave varying reasons for their choice at the plebiscite of German citi-

LONDON, July 31.—The dreaded British coal strike will not start at midnight tonight. The industrial catastrophe has been certainly postponed and possibly averted. All Britain breathed words of thanksgiving this afternoon when the spectre of the cataclysm threatening to eclipse everything of its kind in British history suddenly vanished—for the time being, anyway.

The gloom which has hung over England for days was dispelled when the official announcement was made at 4 o'clock that owners of the coal mines would withdraw for a fortnight the notices posted by them at the pitheads last week while new negotiations with the Government and miners are under way. These notices, it will be remembered, informed the miners that new conditions of wages and working hours would become effective on Aug. 1. The miners' leaders promptly retaliated with an ultimatum that miners would quit work at midnight tonight unless the notices were withdrawn. Coupled with this threat, the big transport workers' unions took steps foreshadowing a sympathy strike. Had this come off it would have plunged Great Britain into industrial chaos. But the official announcement this afternoon drove the clouds away.

Subvention Will Keep Up Wages.

The magic remedy applied by the Government was the promise of financial assistance to the mine owners in order to cover their losses until next Spring. Exactly what the Government is going to do became known when an official statement was issued tonight reading as follows:

"Assistance to be given by the Government to the coal mining industry will take the form of a subvention in aid of wages during nine months, from Aug. 1, 1925, to May 1, 1926. During this time wages will be paid on the basis of the 1925 agreement, but in any months in which wages, calculated in accordance with the recognized ratio of division between wages and profits, would be lower in any district than wages payable at the minimum percentage under that agreement, the deficiency will be made up by the Exchequer. This follows the same lines as the wages subvention of 1921, but on this occasion it is stipulated that in any month in which the estimated average profit of a district in which the subvention is payable would exceed 1 shilling 3 pence a ton the excess will be used in reduction of the amount of the subvention.

"It is impossible at present to forecast correctly the cost involved to the Exchequer, as this must depend upon the course of trade."

The news there would be no strike is all the more welcome since England is on the eve of the August bank holiday. All business closes tomorrow at noon, not to open until Tuesday morning, while hundreds of thousands of holiday makers pour from London and other big cities to enjoy the seashore and country. What it should have meant to these pleasure-seeking hordes to have a big strike involving perhaps railway workers can easily be imagined.

A. J. Cook, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, declared this evening the miners were willing to accept the Government terms provided the mine owners withdrew the notices. But he added the miners refused to back down in the slightest degree from their demands. Withdrawal of the notices by the mine owners is considered here a preliminary victory for the miners.

England now faces a fortnight of further negotiations in an effort to achieve something like a permanent agreement between owners and miners. A royal commission will be appointed for inquir-

Last of French Troops Evacuate the Ruhr; Germans Show Little Interest in Departure

ESSEN, July 31.—The Ruhr is free. Tonight, two years six months and twenty days after Poincaré sent his punitive divisions into this city and the surrounding industrial area, there is not a single French soldier on Westphalian soil.

The occupation, indeed, ended officially at 9 o'clock this morning, when the Tricolor was hauled down from the roof of the Mine Owners' League Building here, used for a long time past as French military headquarters, and the last infantry companies marched out of town.

Within the next fortnight the cities of Düsseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort will be evacuated in accordance with the promise of Premier Herriot made in London a year ago.

The final act of withdrawal was carried out with a minimum of pomp and ceremony and with no disturbance whatever. The battalion of infantry with fixed bayonets, the machine gun detachment and the bicycle squad lined up in front of the coal operators' edifice and were reviewed by General Guilleaume, commanding in the Ruhr area. He saluted the flag as it was lowered for the last time and marched off then without music to a suburban station, where they entrained for France.

Families of French officers were virtually the only spectators. The early hour prevented the assembling of large crowds, although a strong force of German police was on hand to maintain order.

All other buildings occupied by the French at Essen had been evacuated previously. Consequently there are 350 apartments at the disposal of homeseekers.

Tomorrow German airplanes may fly over the Ruhr for the first time since Jan. 11, 1923, and radio fans may listen in freely, wireless apparatus having been barred by the occupation authorities.

The Schützpolizei, banned in the first weeks after the French entry, also will be back on the job.

Despite the general feeling of relief that "it's over," Westphalians are taking their liberation calmly enough. No public rejoicings yet have been announced.

CROWBARS UNHINGE DOORS

Flying Squadron Headed by Raider From Border Known as 'Plague of the North.'

Twelve prohibition agents, formed into a "flying squadron" which it was announced intended to "dry up" the white light district between Forty-second and Fifty-ninth Streets, west of Fifth Avenue, began their activities last night armed with crowbars and sledge hammers. They raided two night clubs after battering down doors and shuttered windows, arrested five men and seized liquors valued at $1,000.

The raiders, gathered here two weeks ago by United States District Attorney Buckner and Prohibition Divisional Chief Merrick, were led by William R. Stafford, who has been working on the Canadian border, where he has been called "The Plague of the North," and Samuel Kurzman. They got numerous complaints, which had been sent to Mr. Buckner, and were told to "make Broadway dry."

The first place visited was the Broadway Club at 232½ West Fifty-second Street, about twenty feet west of Broadway, where they smashed their way in and arrested three men and seized $500 worth of liquor. The second place was the Paramount Club at 304 West Thirty-fourth Street, where they tore down an iron shutter in the rear, arrested two men and seized $500 worth of liquor.

The agents had called, they said, at the Fifty-second Street place and had learned a "countersign" to get admittance, but the password, they found, was ignored last night. They battered down the door with their sledgehammers and crowbars, forced their way in and found fifty persons inside.

Patrons Ejected in Rain.

The patrons of the place were ordered to the street, where in the pouring rain they and other persons who had been attracted by the noise stood to watch the raid completed. The agents arrested the alleged proprietor, Edward McDermott, and two alleged waiters, William Garvin and John Crowley. The three men were taken to the West Thirtieth Street Police Station, and all were charged with possessing and selling liquor.

At the Paramount Club, the agents said, a "password" was also ignored and the way barred by a heavy front door. The agents climbed a fire escape at the rear, where an iron shutter was fastened across a window. While some of the agents battered at this with their sledges and pried with their crowbars, others found what seemed to be a letter box on a door apparently used as an ice receiver. Then it was found that this box was movable from the inside and was used to scrutinize applicants for admission.

Pry Open Iron Shutter.

The agents tore this from its fastenings and got inside just as their comrades were opening the iron shutter. They found in the room a half-dozen couples. The latter, as were those at the first place, were sent to the street. The men arrested were Paul Derwin and James Allen, said to the owners of the place. They were also taken to the West Thirtieth Street Station.

Padlock proceedings, it was said, would be instituted against both places today. The agents had warrants against both clubs. They said they visited four other places with warrants. Two of these places were found closed and the two other places selling only soft drinks.

The new drive, it was stated, would be directed against 200 clubs, especially the larger and better known places. Evidence, it was said, had already been gathered in a preliminary way against all of them and all that the agents needed to do was to get tangible evidence in the form of alcoholic beverages.

"We have been ordered to make Broadway as dry as the Sahara," said

REVENUE IN "PAUPER" RISKS

Deputy Controller Charles F. Kerrigan issued a statement yesterday as a further report on Controller Craig's investigation of alleged relations between the Mayor's office and Sinnott & Canty, bonding and insurance firm. Mr. Kerrigan's report was concerned with city bonding business obtained by the firm through contracts made by the Board of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity.

Mr. Kerrigan gave out the following:

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE,
City of New York,
July 31, 1925.

Statement by Deputy Controller Kerrigan:

On Wednesday of this week, the investigation into the connection between Mayor Hylan's office in City Hall and the agency of Sinnott & Canty at 80 Maiden Lane disclosed that contracts awarded by the Board of Water Supply, of which James P. Sinnott, father of Mayor Hylan's son-in-law and Secretary, and father of J. Paul Sinnott, head of the bonding firm, is the dominant member, had provided a source of income to the Sinnott family.

So called "pauper bonds," exacted of contractors on city work in the Catskill Water Supply region, had been written by Sinnott & Canty to the amount of $70,000 on one contract alone, it was testified. These "pauper bonds" run to the various towns through which the reservoirs and city aqueducts extend on their way to New York City, and guarantee that the towns will not have to pay the burial expense in Potter's Field of imported laborers who may die while engaged on the work.

Sinnott & Canty wrote the bonds, for a "consideration," guaranteeing that the towns would not have to bury any of the unfortunate laborers who might die of accident or disease during the progress of the work of providing for a supply of water for the inhabitants of New York City.

Towns Exact Small Bonds.

Each town through which the water supply system runs on the way from the great Gilboa dam in the Catskills, down through Greene County, where Mayor Hylan was raised, through Kingston and Newburgh and all of the other communities on the line of the water supply system, exacts a small bond from each contractor having anything to do with the work of the aqueduct. It is a form of "pauper insurance," with the contractor providing the premiums.

Sinnott & Canty, who derive a revenue from the sale of peanuts in the parks and the purchase of doormats for the public schools, and who collect a commission for feeding the boys confined in the truant school for playing "hookey," did not refuse these "pauper bonds" on the laborers. On one contract alone, awarded to the Joseph L. Burke Corporation by the Board of Water Supply, they wrote fourteen of these "pauper bonds" for $5,000 each in favor of fourteen towns at $25 apiece.

When it came to the big contracts they were also active. One of the biggest plums awarded by the Board of Water Supply since James P. Sinnott became a member was for the construction of what is known as the "Mount Prospect conduit," from Fort Greene, in Brooklyn, along Washington and Flatbush Avenues, amounting to over $995,000. The contractor, Angelo Paino, has had many contracts with the City of New York, but never employed Sinnott & Canty on any of them, before or since, excepting this one.

Waited Month for Award.

"You were the low bidder on this big contract for the conduit?" Mr. Paino was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"But you had to wait awhile before you got your award?" he was asked.

"About a month," he replied.

"Did you know Mr. Paul Sinnott,

Hope That Mayor Will Withdraw Expressed After Big Five Meet on Mayoralty.

Turns Down Wagner, Walker and Churchill, Also 3 Men From His Own Organization.

ANOTHER MEETING MONDAY

Session at Waldorf Ends in Hint That Hylan May Change Mind Before Next Conference.

Horns locked, two powerful bulls are engaged in deadly conflict in a beautiful bronze which adorns the mantelpiece of Oscar's room at the Waldorf, where the "Big Five" Democratic borough leaders met in seclusion yesterday to iron out their differences over the Mayoralty.

"That statuary typifies the situation, precisely," said Borough President Maurice Connolly of Queens, who had been sitting in the conference as spokesman for the Democratic organization of his borough, when asked what had been accomplished during the three hours the five borough leaders had been closeted together.

From all accounts, no progress was made at yesterday's conclave. When it adjourned, George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, who had called it, and Sheriff Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader in the Bronx, still were holding tight to their demand that "Hylan must go." John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, was just as firm as ever in his adherence to Mayor Hylan until a "stronger" candidate for Mayor is shown him. Mr. Connolly and David S. Rendt, the latter newly elevated to the Democratic leadership in Richmond, persisted in their demand that Mayor Hylan get a third term.

All the participants in the conference were unanimous in declaring that "the situation remained unchanged." A hint was thrown out that the voluntary withdrawal of Mayor Hylan as a candidate for renomination would be welcome to all as the only thing that could promote a peaceful settlement of the differences in his party.

This settlement was the only point upon which there was perfect accord in the conference, and some observers insisted upon looking on it as a hopeful sign of prospective agreement. But, as one prominent Democrat after the conference put it:

"How are we going to tell Hylan that he is through when three of the borough leaders still are with him and only two against him?"

Break Possible Monday.

There was a deeply veiled intimation that during the interval before another conference is held—which may be on Monday—something might intervene to change the situation. But while the hint was pointed it was not elaborated. Aside from some potent influence, as yet not discernible, being brought to bear on the Mayor to get him to withdraw and save his friends in the Democratic Party grave embarrassment, scant hope appears that a primary fight can be avoided. Briefly summed up, the situation is this: Peace with Hylan eliminated; otherwise war."

The five leaders met at 1:30 yesterday afternoon. They had luncheon and remained together in their secluded quarters at the Waldorf until 4:30, when word was sent to waiting newspaper men that they might come up to Oscar's room. Oscar is the manager at the Waldorf, and he gave his luxurious quarters on the mezzanine floor to the big Democratic chieftains, to insure their privacy.

When the newspaper men entered the suite, all the "Big Five" stood about in easy attitudes, registering optimism and brotherly love.

"There has been no change in the situation," said Mr. Olvany. He stood a little apart from the others, and did not appear inclined to say much more.

"Then you are still at a deadlock?" one reporter asked.

"I would hardly say that," Mr. Olvany replied. "Things have not yet reached a stage where there could be a deadlock."

WOMAN'S BROTHER ACCUSED

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 31.—Mrs. Ida Manning Blankenburg of Oklahoma City, claimant of a daughter's share in the $3,000,000 estate of Lotta Crabtree, the actress, furnished $500 cash bond tonight for her appearance in court next Tuesday on charges of contempt by perjury, after Judge Prest had denounced her from the bench as a "brazen adventuress" whose claim was "pockmarked with fraud."

In the Suffolk Probate Court this afternoon Judge Prest charged the woman and her brother, John William Crabtree, with conspiring together to perpetrate fraud. John William Crabtree also was ordered to appear next Tuesday, but he did not respond when his name was called. It is believed he has returned to his home in the Middle West.

The Court's action against Mrs. Blankenburg, who declares she is the daughter of Lotta M. Crabtree, followed the conclusion of arguments by Judge Frederick H. Chase, counsel for the estate, and former Attorney General J. Weston Allen, counsel for Mrs. Blankenburg.

"I do not at this time make a final decree," said the Judge, "but my duty as a public servant requires me to say something determinately.

"Pockmarked With Fraud."

"The case of Ida May Blankenburg is pockmarked with fraud. There is no mistaking it. The spots of fraud are as thick and as plainly visible as the spots on the fly-leaf of the Bible, exhibit A, on which is a fraudulent entry recently written of Lotta's marriage and the claimant's birth. But competent and trustworthy medical and other evidence strongly tends to show that Lotta never had a child, and no trustworthy evidence shows the contrary. Fortuitous resemblance is of little value in showing kinship.

"This claimant swears that she made extended trips East, West and South with Lotta, and yet she could not identify Lotta's lifelike photograph.

"This woman swears that Lotta sang to her a lullaby and read to her bedtime stories. But in my opinion she never saw Lotta face to face and never heard her voice. Since Lotta's death, however, she has heard, and learned too, I think, stories alluring yet sinister—stories that made her and her agents and promoters lust for money, stories that so seduced her as to deny her own mother, whose own sweet voice, now hushed, sang to her that very lullaby; stories that led her to deny her own father (honest worker in the fields and Union cavalryman), in order that she might rob our soldiers of the World War of the benefits of the trust fund in this estate.

"This woman did not even hesitate to suppress the Crabtree family Bible, and to use another Bible as a vehicle for the fraud. On all the evidence, she is nothing less than a brazen adventuress.

"I justify these words that flay, if any justification is needed, on the ground that Ida May Blankenburg (guided or shall I say misguided, but not by local counsel)—Ida May Blankenburg and her agents have corrupted, I believe, some of the witnesses; and that Ida May Blankenburg and her very own brother, John W. Crabtree, have conspired together to perpetrate a fraud on this court, and have sworn falsely."

Following this denunciation the Judge ordered Mrs. Blankenburg and her brother to appear in court on contempt

PLEA FOR HIS CAUSE MADE

Dr. Sizoo at Church Service Calls Him Rebuilder of God's Altar—Klan Sends Floral Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—William Jennings Bryan received a soldier's burial in Arlington National Cemetery this afternoon. Uniformed troops of the regular army without rifles, led by a military band playing a dirge, escorted his body from the cemetery gate, and a khaki-clad bugler sounded "taps" as the flag-covered coffin was lowered into the grave.

Members of the family, officials of the Government, men who had served with him in the Cabinet of Woodrow Wilson, Senators and Representatives, politicians of past and present prominence in the Democratic Party, labor leaders, and several hundred others who braved intermittent downpours of penetrating rain witnessed the scene as the Commoner was laid away on the crest of a steep Virginia hillside rising from the Potomac and overlooking the Federal City.

In the distance were the White House, the Memorial to Lincoln, the Washington Monument and the Capitol; not far away was the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, close at hand were the mounds covering the thousands of dead who had worn their country's uniform in war.

Farewell to "Hero of Common People."

It was all very simple, that last act in the history of the man who had been conspicuously in the public eye for a generation. Despite the presence of the soldiers, there was nothing of pomp and little of ceremony about it.

Three companies of soldiers, artillerymen on foot without arms, stood at attention in one long line leading to the grave.

As the coffin was borne by soldiers under the canopy erected over the grave to protect it from the rain, and the funeral party gathered around, the Third Cavalry band played "Lead, Kindly Light." Then the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo read the burial service, beginning with the words "In the midst of life we are in death."

He was followed by the Rev. George R. Stuart of Birmingham, Ala., in a prayer that extolled Mr. Bryan as the prince of peace and a leader of men in good works, and referred to his death on a peaceful Sabbath after having fought his greatest fight. His voice broke when he said: "We thank Thee for this great hero of the common people."

A benediction of a few words, pronounced by Dr. Sizoo, ended the religious services. Then the bugler, standing beside the grave, sounded "Taps."

Soldiers lowered the coffin into the grave, the sweet, solemn notes of "Taps" echoed over the rolling terrain of the Arlington estate, once the home of General Robert E. Lee, and then those who had stood by walked away.

Widow Remains in Automobile.

Scarcely ten minutes was consumed in the burial services. Gathered around the grave were the dead man's children and their families, his brother, the former Governor of Nebraska; Secretary Kellogg, representing President Coolidge, with three Assistant Secretaries of State, representing the department over which Mr. Bryan had presided during his Cabinet tenure; the honorary pallbearers, most of them men intimately associated with Mr. Bryan in his political career, and a few others whose relationship to him was purely personal

The invalid widow went with the funeral procession, but by reason of her infirmity did not leave the motor car in which she had made the journey to Arlington.

Eulogy Broadcast by Radio.

Preceding the committal at Arlington, funeral services was held at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in Washington. The services, which were broadcast by radio throughout the country as far West as Minneapolis and even into Canada, lasted from 3 o'clock until nearly 4.

In his eulogy of Mr. Bryan the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, speaking of the Commoner as the rebuilder of God's altar "in a day full of intellectual bewilderment when many Christians are growing uncertain of their convictions, when multitudes have misgivings lest the things they have believed may prove false," said:

Although military features marked the final obsequies, there was nothing suggesting them at church or in the procession to the cemetery other than the American flag which covered the coffin, the dead man's right by reason of his service as Colonel of the Third Nebraska Volunteers in the war with Spain. The pallbearers were civilians, who gave way to uniformed soldiers at the cemetery gate. A motor hearse bore the body to the grave.

Until noon the body of Mr. Bryan lay

Ships to Carry Freight on Trucks to Albany; $10,000,000 Company Reveals Its Plans

C. L. Dimon, President of the Boston, New York & Southern Steamship Company, recently incorporated in Delaware with $10,000,000 capital stock, announced yesterday that the company planned to operate passenger and freight steamers between Boston and New York, New York and Albany and between New York, Havana and Vera Cruz. He also said other routes would be added later.

In addition to this business Mr. Dimon said the company intends to increase its excursion trips about the city, having already acquired the Mandalay, Express and Pastime, running to Atlantic Highlands and Coney Island from New York, Newark, Bayonne and Elizabeth. Freight service between New York and Boston would be started Sept. 15, he said, and two new 400-foot passenger and freight vessels added to the line next Spring.

On the New York to Albany route, he added, no freight will be carried unless it is loaded on trucks.

The boats to be used between New York and Albany, it was stated, will resemble the Staten Island ferryboats and will cost about $1,000,000 each. They will be 450 feet long, have a beam of 98 feet and will be capable of making fifteen knots, which is expected to enable them to make the run in ten hours.

The steamer Dixie, a 400-foot vessel, is being refitted, it was stated, to operate between New York, Havana and Vera Cruz. She will carry 600 passengers. All the vessels will be under American registry and operated by American crews.

Faversham Secretly Weds Edith Campbell, Actress and Daughter of Phoenix Mayor

William Faversham, the actor, was married to Miss Edith Campbell of Phoenix, Ariz., on July 20 at Huntington, L. I., where he has a Summer home, it became known yesterday.

The ceremony was performed by Henry A. Murphy, Justice of the Peace at Huntington, who was enjoined to silence. The only witnesses were Mrs. Murphy, wife of the Justice, and his son, Cornelius Murphy. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Faversham started on a honeymoon trip, and their house in West Neck Avenue, Huntington, which is the Warren B. Sammis place, is still closed.

The bride is the daughter of Joseph Campbell, who was Mayor of Phoenix for four years, and whose grandfather was Governor of Arizona before it was made a State. She is 39 years old, and has known Mr. Faversham for many years. She has appeared on the stage with him in several productions and also in a vaudeville sketch. Mr. Faversham is 52 years old.

Mr. Faversham has two sons by his second wife, Julie Opp, well-known actress, who died on April 9, 1921. They are William Faversham Jr., who is 18 years old, and Philip Faversham, a younger brother.

Miss Opp was married to Mr. Faversham in 1902. She was leading woman in George Alexander's company in London for five years, and was then engaged as leading woman with Mr. Faversham, supporting him in "The Squaw Man" and other plays until 1905, after which she played only upon rare occasions.

Previous to his marriage to Miss Opp Mr. Faversham had been married to the late Marian Merwin Faversham, who divorced him.

in state in the church and thousands passed by the bier. When the formal services were begun three hours later a large crowd had gathered around the church. During most of the day rain had come in periodic torrents, and his probably accounted for the fact that the number of spectators was not greater. As te coffin was being carried from the church to the hearse the rain became a heavy downpour, which drove many from the streets.

As the procession turned down Fifteenth Street, the White House could be seen, its flag at half mast. Flags were at half mast also on all Government buildings and on the embassies and legations of foreign nations. The State Department, over which Mr. Bryan had presided, was closed at noon in respect to his memory.

There were rain-defying crowds along the city streets, but few after the Treasury corner was turned, and fewer still when the procession passed into Virginia, the State where Mr. Bryan's American forebears settled and where his father was born.

The long line of motor cars paused for a moment at the cemetery entrance while the three companies of uniformed but unarmed and dismounted artillerymen met it to form the escort to the grave.

The skies had been teeming while the funeral procession was on its way from Washington to Virginia. Then, just before it reached Arlington, there was a cessation of the downpour and the skies began to clear.

Ropes had been stretched on the hillside where the grave had been dug to mark off a space of about an acre, guarded by soldiers. Beneath a canopy was the grave, banked with grasses and other green to hide the fresh earth. A long lane leading to the canopy was made by scores of floral pieces. Through this floral lane the members of the funeral party passed from their motor cars to the graveside.

A fringe of a thousand people, three and four ranks deep, lined the ropes, which kept them from entering the enclosure.

Church Is Filled Before Services.

The utmost simplicity marked the funeral service at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. Admission was by card, and there was quite an air of formality about the arrival and seating of the officials, diplomats and others in the congregation and their departure after the ceremony.

Exclusive of the organ prelude and the singing of several of Mr. Bryan's favorite hymns for fifteen minutes preceding the arrival of Mrs. Bryan and the funeral party at 3 o'clock, the services consisting of a hymn, scriptural reading, sermon, prayer and benediction lasted the better part of an hour.

The congregation of more than a thousand persons filling the limited capacity of the historic church, was a representative cross section of official, diplomatic and private life in the capital.

The only Cabinet officer present was Secretary Kellogg, representing the President, and he was accompanied by Assistant Secretaries of State Leland Harrison, J. Butler Wright and Wilbur J. Carr, who served in the State Department when Mr. Bryan was a member of the Cabinet. Near them sat a few of the diplomats, most of the heads of diplomatic missions being absent from Washington. Across the aisle were the active and honorary pall-bearers, two former Cabinet associates of Mr. Bryan and members of the Senate and House and many of the Commoner's most intimate friends.

War Veterans Guard Coffin.

The church pews, other than those reserved for members of the immediate family and the funeral party from Tennessee, and all seats in the gallery were filled half an hour before the service began.

The interior of the church presented a most impressive background for the service. The great bronze coffin, concealed beneath the folds of the flag, stood at the head of the aisle in front of the chancel.

Two veterans of the Spanish-American War, in which Mr. Bryan had served as a Colonel of the Third Nebraska Regiment, wearing uniform and campaign hats, stood guard over the coffin. Seated immediately at the front of the coffin were two other uniformed members of the veterans' organization.

Behind and on both sides of the coffin were huge banks of flowers, which extended back through the chancel beyond the pulpit and ranged all the way across that end of the church. White lilies predominated among the many large set pieces. Five of these took the form of crosses, one of which stood at the head of the aisle immediately in front of the bier, the other four rising out of the floral embankment on either side of the pulpit and behind it.

The large white cross of lilies before the coffin was as tall as a man, and was the combined tribute of Mr. Bryan's widow and children.

Flaming Red Cross From Ohio Klan.

On the coffin were two small bouquets, one of hearts of pink roses, labeled "Grandfather," from a baby great-granddaughter of the Commoner and the other of roses from Mrs. Bryan.

Other large floral pieces, mostly wreaths and sheafs of blossoms, were from the Secretary of State, the Republic of Cuba, the American Legion, the Spanish War Veterans and the Philippine people. The tribute of the Jackson Democratic Association of Washington consisted of a large opened Bible of flowers, made of pink and white asters, the pages of which bore in pink flowers the words "Prince of Peace." Behind the pulpit stood an upright flag.

The active pallbearers sat in the front pew to the left of the pulpit. They were Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy; Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida; Colonel P. H. Callahan of Louisville; Charles A. Lord of Lincoln, Neb.; N. F. Dunlap of Jacksonville, Ill., and State Senator S. Hull of Illinois.

The next three pews on that side of the church were reserved for members of the family and the funeral party, including those whom Mrs. Bryan had invited to accompany her from Tennessee to Washington.

Behind them sat the honorary pallbearers. These were Senators Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona, Morris Shephard of Texas, Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, George W. Norris of Nebraska, former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, Governor A. V. Donahey of Ohio, former Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Michigan, former Governor Richard Yates of Illinois, now a member of the House; Representatives William A. Oldfield of Arkansas and William D. Upshaw of Georgia, John Skelton Williams of Virginia, Clem Shaver of West Virginia, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Edward F. Goltra of Missouri, James Kirby Risk of Indiana, Norman E. Mack of New York, Howard Russell of Ohio, Charles A. Douglas of Washington, D. C.; Charles F. Horner of Missouri and Manton Wyvell of this city, former private secretary to Mr. Bryan in the State Department.

Commoner's Favorite Hymns Sung.

Immediately after the arrival of Secretary Kellogg and the Assistant Secretaries of State at 2:45 o'clock, a mixed choir, accompanied by the organ, sang Mr. Bryan's favorite hymns, "Lead, Kindly Light" and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." As the notes of the latter hymn died away the funeral party, at 3 o'clock, entered the auditorium, headed by the Rev. Dr. James R. Sizoo, pastor of the church, who advanced up the aisle, intoning, "I am the resurrection and the life."

The congregation rose as the funeral party entered. Immediately behind the pastor walked Kelso Rice, the Tennessee policeman, who guarded Mr. Bryan's body at Dayton, on its way to Washington and in the church. Mrs. Bryan, who is an invalid, was in a wheelchair, which was rolled down the aisle. She was followed by her two daughters and son, and members of their families, and former Governor Bryan and his wife.

Tennessee Policeman Stands by Bier.

While the family were being seated Dr. Sizoo advanced to the pulpit, and the two Spanish War veterans, who had been standing guard over the coffin, withdrew to vacant seats, while Kelso Rice, advanced to the head of the bier. There he stood erect in full police uniform throughout the ceremony, removing his cap only when prayer was offered.

The only military touch to the church service was the presence of two officers, in uniform, one of the army, the other of the navy, who sat in the Lincoln pew, which was used by the Great Emancipator when he attended the church during his Presidency.

The congregation continued standing while Dr. Sizoo recited the Twenty-third Psalm, and during the prayer of invocation, followed by the Lord's Prayer, which was repeated in unison by the congregation. The scripture reading was from the Ninetieth Psalm, First Corinthian, fifteenth Chapter, verses 50 to 58, and the fourteenth chapter of John.

After a prayer by Dr. Sizoo the mixed quratette sang one of Mr. Bryan's favorite selections, "The Communion of Saints," portions of which had been used by the Commoner in concluding his unspoken address, which was published after his death.

Eulogy Recalls Battle for Bible.

The funeral sermon of Dr. Sizoo, which lasted exactly twenty minutes, was a striking personal tribute and was delivered with a fervor indicative of the emotions felt by the minister, who asserted that the whole aspect of his own life had been changed by a college address delivered by Mr. Bryan, one that had led Dr. Sizoo, when a student, to abandon his ambitions for a lay profession and enter the ministry.

Eulogizing Mr. Bryan as a man of spotless record in his public career and as one of great capacity in love and faith, the pastor characterized him as the rebuilder of God's altar in a day of bewilderment and doubt, and expressed the hope that the spirit of his mission would live on.

At the close of the sermon the minister pronounced the benediction. The floral cross was removed from the head of the aisle, the folds of the flag draping the bier were rolled back, and the coffin was opened, only for a moment, to enable Mrs. Bryan, still sitting in her chair, to take a last look.

The congregation was standing during this touching scene. Not only Secretary Kellogg and those on the main floor nearest the bier, but especially those in the galleries, had a fleeting glimpse of the Commoner's face.

The pastor led the funeral party down the aisle and out of the church, followed first by the honorary pallbearers, the members of the family, the coffin, the widow in her wheel chair behind it, the active pallbearers and the congregation, the organist playing the Chopin Funeral March until the church was empty.

The services were broadcast by radio. Microphones were concealed among the flowers in front of the pulpit, and also suspended from the ceiling in front of the choir and the organ. The wiring passed an open window to a portable radio truck, which stood in the street to control the modulation of the sounds.

Widow Gives Bryan's Pen to Guard.

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP).—Gratitude mingled with grief tonight in the heart of the widow of William Jennings Bryan.

Just after the burial of the Commoner at Arlington today the flag which had draped his casket throughout the journey from Dayton, Tenn., the little town where he died, was brought by Kelso Rice, Chattanooga policeman, and placed in the arms of the sorrow-stricken woman.

In tremulous tones she thanked the blue-clad son of the hills who in the little Southern home and on the mournful journey, as well as in the church and at the grave, had kept vigil over the still form of the departed leader.

"You are the representative of the simple people who loved my husband and whom my husband loved with a tender affection," she said.

"I wish to thank you for this flag and for your devotion to us all in our time of sorrow. As a token I wish to give you this memorial of our gratitude."

And she placed in his hands a silver fountain pen, inscribed with the initials "W. J. B." The pen the Commoner had used for many months and up to the hour of his death. With it on last Sunday afternoon he had written messages of love to two associates in his last great fight, A. T. Stewart, Attorney General in the Scopes prosecution, and Judge John T. Raulston, who presided.

HULL PRAISES BRYAN.

Tennesseean, Back From Abroad, Says Nation Has Lost a Great Force.

Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who was Chairman of the 1924 Democratic National Convention, returned yesterday on the George Washington of the United States Lines from Brussels, where he attended the International Trade Conference. Commenting on the death of William Jennings Bryan Mr. Hull said the country had lost a great force in its moral and public affairs. The future of the Democratic Party will be most encouraging, Mr. Hull said, when it develops team work and solidarity.

The countries of Europe are making some progress, the Tennessee Congressman found, but they are pursuing a temporary policy, while what is needed, in his opinion, is a permanent policy for peace and economic development.

Other passengers on the vessel included Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, General Colden Ruggles, U. S. A., and Admiral A. T. Long, U. S. N., who were America's representatives at the Conference for the Control of the International Traffic in Arms at Geneva. Representative Burton, who was chairman of the delegation, told of the work of the conference, which was attended by the representatives of forty-three nations.

TWO MORE EXPLAIN BRYAN RESIGNATION

D. B. Traxler Says It Was Over a Note to Germany—W. J. Dwyer Blames One to Austria.

BOTH QUOTE COMMONER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Still new versions of why William Jennings Bryan resigned as Wilson's Secretary of State in 1915 are coming to light, two obtained today asserting opposite reasons.

D. B. Traxler of Greenville, S. C., is quoted in The Columbia Record as stating that Mr. Bryan told him unequivocally that he left the Cabinet because, while he deferred to President Wilson in the reply to the first submarine note from Germany, he could not subscribe to a sharp answer drawn up by the President in response to the second note from Germany.

W. J. Dwyer of Washington, in a letter to The Evening Star, declares Mr. Bryan did not resign because of the German note, but because Mr. Wilson redrafted in a "warlike tone" a protest to Austria on the sinking of an American vessel. When Mr. Bryan declined to sign this note and offered his resignation, President Wilson sent Mr. and Mrs. McAdoo and Secretary Tumulty to see Mr. Bryan, but without avail, Mr. Dwyer asserts.

Also there is a new theory here, backed by sequential dates, as to why Mr. Bryan quit. It was advanced today by men who were then in touch with the situation. This was that Mr. Bryan learned of a determined position taken by President Wilson in a personal interview with Count von Bernstorff, and that Mr. Bryan saw going over the State Department cable a résumé of this interview the Count was permitted to send his Government. No doubt Mr. Bryan thought that President Wilson was resolved to break with Germany and decided to resign.

In the Greenville dispatch to The Columbia Record it is stated that when Mr. Bryan spoke in that city soon after his resignation a man in the crowd asked him why he had quit.

"With a short but indirect answer Bryan made reply to the questioner and the address continued without interruption," the dispatch says.

But upon returning to the home of Mr. Traxler, Mr. Bryan said:

Traxler Quotes Bryan.

"I am sorry that the gentleman saw fit to inquire into my personal business."

Following this, Mr. Traxler says, the Nebraskan thus gave his reasons:

"At that time I had completed treaties with thirty nations in which it was specified that none would declare war against the United States until the question had been debated for a year. Only four countries, including Germany, had not signed this agreement, but they had not entirely rejected it.

"When the first sharp note came from Germany, I, as Secretary of State, framed the reply. I then went over to consult President Wilson and learned that he had framed a note also. There was a slight difference in these, but after discussing the matter fully, President Wilson decided that I was right and my note was to be cabled to the German authorities. Before it was sent, however, President Wilson reconsidered and ordered that his note instead of mine be sent. In the hope that our slight differences might be reconciled and also for the sake of keeping harmony, I signed the first note, which had been framed by the President, and sent it.

"When the second note came, I found that the President framed the answer and sent it for me to sign, which I could not conscientiously do. Having been thrice nominated for the Presidency, and differing as I did on questions of that import, I decided it best for me to resign, because I could not conscientiously sign the note which President Wilson wanted me to sign and forward to the German authorities."

Mr. Dwyer, who writes to The Evening Star, was a close friend of Mr. Bryan. He asserts that Milton A. Miller of Portland, Ore., was partly correct in stating it was the Dumba correspondence and not the German note which led to the resignation. Mr. Dwyer says that this Dumba correspondence did not concern plots to cripple American munition plants, as Mr. Miller stated, but the sinking of an American ship by Austria. The Dwyer letter follows, in part:

"Before the resignation had become public I called on Mr. Bryan and he confided to me the real reason for his resignation. * * *

Version Recalled by Dwyer.

"The facts are these, as related to me by Mr. Bryan:

"Because of the sinking of an American vessel by Austria, as Secretary of State he was compelled to take cognizance of it, and wrote a peaceful note of protest to Ambassador Dumba. When it was submitted to President Wilson he insisted that a warlike note be sent, and he made certain interlineations in it which Bryan refused to sign, and tendered his resignation.

"Since Wilson was a candidate for renomination, and not knowing what effect Bryan's resignation would have, he sent Secretary McAdoo, his wife, (Wilson's daughter) and Tumulty to see Bryan and urge him to withdraw his resignation, stating that he had sent the original peace note which Bryan had signed. I was with Bryan at his home on Clifton Street at the time. He absolutely refused to withdraw his resignation, and left those mentioned standing at the foot of the stairway and he went upstairs, closing the incident.

"It might be added that there were other reasons why Bryan resigned, but that he did not feel justified in leaving the Cabinet because of them. These reasons related to Federal patronage. The Administration had promised to appoint certain friends of Bryan to political office. When Wilson decided to seek a renomination he turned down all of Bryan's recommendations and built up a political machine of Federal officeholders of his own choosing to make his renomination certain.

"W. J. DWYER."

The Wilson-Bernstorff interview was held on June 2, and on the following Friday there was a Cabinet meeting, at which the second Lusitania note was discussed. June 6 Mr. Bryan resigned. On June 8, when another Cabinet meeting was held, at which Mr. Bryan did not appear, the decision was made to dispatch the communication to Germany. At the same time formal notice of Mr. Bryan's resignation was announced. The note went the next day.

DECLARES SHIP BOARD CAN TAKE FORD'S OFFER

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP).—The right of the Shipping Board to sell 200 vessels to Henry Ford for scrapping was upheld today by Attorney General Sargent.

In an opinion requested by the board at the suggestions of Commissioners Benson and Thompson, who had questioned the legal authority for disposing of the vessels for destruction, the Attorney General said the sale was arranged under the discretionary authority of the board as defined in the Merchant Marine act, which gave it the right to make sales "on such conditions as the board may prescribe."

The Attorney General recalled that a group of departmental experts on a committee appointed by President Coolidge last year had declared that 521 out of the fleet of 1,180 Government vessels were not necessary for the national defense nor needed for commercial purposes.

Chairman O'Connor said he did not expect the board to act on the Ford offer before next Tuesday, when, with the return of Commissioner Plummer from a vacation in Maine, five of the seven Commissioners will be in the city.

The Ford offer was of $1,706,000 for the 200 vessels, a few of which may be converted to Diesel engine propulsion for commercial operation. The rest will be broken up, the engines and equipment of some of them being used in the Ford manufacturing plants.

Some years ago—it seems only like yesterday—Mr. Bryan delivered a lecture to a group of some 500 students in a mid-Western college. His theme was "The Value of an Ideal." He spoke with that amazing clarity which so characterized all his addresses, not only of the place of an ideal in life, but also of the various ideals which men may hold, and then that highest of all ideals—Christian service.

How profoundly he moved that group of young men Mr. Bryan never knew. There was one student in that audience for whom it changed the whole program of his life. This student was a freshman at college that year, with the plan of preparing for some professional career. The plea for Christian service, made by this great heart of faith, never left him, and following that urge he later entered the Christian ministry.

I was that student. The stirring plea marked the beginning of a whole new attitude to life and I bring my testimony to the memory of a man who never knew how greatly he had changed that life. Surely it is unique that as he lies here dead among us, I should bear my witness to his influence in this most solemn hour.

World's Need of Man of Faith.

How strange are the ways of God, and how otherwise from our desires. Had it been given to us to control the affairs of life, how different would it have been! Earth can ill spare such noble souls. His ability was so striking; his sincerity was so genuine; his personality was so winsome, and his faith so serene, that we had hoped to have him longer with us. We seem to need him so. But God willed otherwise; and until the daybreak when shadows flee away, we reverently kneel in submission to play: "Father, Thy will be done."

The end came quickly. He did not suffer; he did not know pain. A merciful Providence guarded over that hour. Serenely and in the home of a friend, he made his last great venture of faith on the first day of the week which, to the Christian, is the unforgettable symbol of the resurrection.

To this broken family circle, whose days have so suddenly and sadly turned to sorrow and loneliness, the sympathy and prayers of the nation go out. We commend them to the Good Shepherd who keepeth watch over His own. We cannot trace the way where the Almighty One doth move; but we can always say that God is love, He is too great to fail us now and He is too good to let us drift alone.

You sorrow not alone. Somehow you must be sustained by the innumerable prayers of the people of the land who are kneeling today at the hearthstone of your broken home. When the golden bowl is broken and the silver cord is loosed, we pause, we wonder, we weep; but God doeth all things well and you may abide in the promise that underneath and roundabout you are His everlasting arms.

We talk about unfulfilled dreams and incomplete lives and broken circles; but with God there is no unfinished life and there are no broken circles. Jesus—dead at 33—cried out exultantly from the Cross: "It is finished." So is every life that follows God's will.

When is a life finished? you ask. When the seeds of its influence have dropped into the lives of others, enriching them. A life is finished when other lives are lit up by it and walk in its strength. A life is finished when those around it have caught the splendor of its power and live happier, nobler and truer.

If that is true, then this great heart lived a finished life. The heritage of that life it may take long to measure. Multitudes have caught the splendor of it and lived by its guiding light.

Record of Unsullied Public Life.

It is to rehearse this splendor that we have come today. Praise or blame do not affect him now. They never disturbed his convictions. He was far above all that on earth and he is far beyond all that now. Nothing we say or do can in any way add or detract from him. It is for us to see again the glory of that life and heed its heritage.

There was a threefold splendor about this noble man which will ever challenge those who have lived in his day and who are to carry on in the days to come.

One: He had a capacity for noble living. He was a man with an upturned face and an upward life. His life was an open book beyond all reproach. His character was unsullied to the very end.

You can turn the searching light of a critical publicity on any page of his past through all manner of personal and political fortunes of later life and not one page is smutted or soiled or stained. There was no shadow of self-seeking or gain in him. There was no skeleton in the closet. You do not have to tread softly over any episode.

Friend and foe call him a man whose great concern was the cause he espoused, and to those causes he came with clean hands and a pure heart. Not only for what he said but for what he was will his name be treasured.

It was because of this unsullied life that he held the confidence and the affection of the nation for more than thirty years. So often one hears it said that men in public life and leadership are inspired by sinister motives of self-gain or for ulterior ambitions of self-aggrandizement, that many questions every one who aspires to serve his country. Then God gives us a man like this to give that philosophy the lie, a man "whom the lust of office could not buy and whom the spoils of office could not kill."

His upstanding integrity, his high sense of honor, his devotion to duty, his sense of gratitude, his remembrance of the humblest, his freedom from all cant, make his life today an inspiration and a challenge to all the nation. Like so many great hearts of earth, and like his Master, he met hate without bitterness, defeat without vengeance, ill-thought with forgiving love, and misunderstanding with charity.

Oh, all you who mourn and are left stranded upon the shores of time, what a comfort and what a heritage is yours. Death takes many things from us. Truly, it is the great destroyer. But one thing, thank God, death can never take away from you, and that is the imperishable memory of his fine manliness, courage and humble sincerity. He did not live in vain. Thousands are made better because he passed this way.

Unfaltering Faith in God.

Two: He had a deep capacity for love. He was a great friend and never played fast and lose with friendship. Some men are not big enough to have friends because they are not big enough to be friends; but not so with him. Political opposition never lost him personal friendships. His love was genuine with rich and poor alike; it knew no order, breed or birth. Differing from men who held contrary convictions, he still held them within the grasp of lifelong affections.

But his capacity for love reached beyond the border of the individual. He did not live like a star apart from his fellow men. He always spoke with and of and for the people. He was not only an architect but also the builder of a better world.

He never lost sight of humanity. His heart beat and his pulse throbbed for the needs of his fellow-men. He kept many a weary vigil on the hilltop of the world, wondering what might be done to help, never resting till the crown of thorns had been lifted and the golden crown of happiness and peace put in its place. It may take decades to measure the urge and hope for peace which he provided for the nation in his day and generation.

Deep, Unfaltering Faith in God.

Three: He had a rich capacity for faith. Any summary of the heritage of his life, however brief, would be utterly unworthy if it did not bear witness to his unfaltering faith in God. You will never know this man until you come to know him there. He was essentially a religious man.

He was not disillusioned about the world. He knew its ills and its failures. He was acquainted with its griefs and its heartburnings, he saw its anguish and wan hopelessness. He saw all this but he also saw that the way out was not by some strange hysterical solution.

How often he said that happiness will be restored, prosperity will beat again with its angel wings and peace will come with its eternal abiding, when men come back to the simple, elemental forces of life like honesty, reverence and faith in God. Not by the pronunciamentoes of plenipotentiaries, not by legislative enactment alone, but only as men climb the storm-swathed sides of Sinai and hear again the voice, "Thus saith the Lord God," will prosperity be promoted and peace dawn at last.

Nothing else explains the greatness of the man like the greatness of his faith. That was unchallengeable, irresistible and burned with a quenchless fire. His life was shot through and through with it and in every utterance of his there welled up this constant assurance. His life seemed to be a long unbroken prayer.

Like his Christ, who with a scarlet camp-mantle flung contemptuously across his shoulders, crowned with a crown of thorns, carrying His cross to an outlaw's grave, held constantly to the assurance of His Father's presence, so this noble man unto the very end of the day, in success and defeat, lived with an unfaltering faith in a God who never disappointed him.

His hope was eternal and his faith was serene. It was a faith that knew no disappointments because it has no ultimate defeats. It was a faith that success could not cloud and that defeat did not dim. He had no misgivings, he feared no investigations, he compromised with no error because an unchallengeable surety of God crossed every frontier of disappointment and leaped over every chasm of misgivings.

For him faces changed and conditions altered, but the eternal presence of Christ was with him the same yesterday, today and forever. He was sure that "they that put their trust in God shall never be put to shame."

Rebuilt Altar in Day of Doubt.

Some day, perhaps, we may see that that was his great contribution to life and the final heritage that he has come to leave. He has rebuilt the altar of faith in God and covered that altar with his very life. It was faith that gave such sweep to his helpful service, such depth to his character. In the last analysis an unsullied life and an unchallengeable faith in God is life's final argument and has no answer.

In a day full of intellectual bewilderment when many Christians are growing uncertain of their convictions, when multitudes have misgivings lest the things they have believed may prove false; in a day when many become obsessed with despair like that of a man who has played his last card and lost, Mr. Bryan grew more sure and his faith more profound.

God be praised for the tonic of this man's trust in God. Would that the cloak of his simple faith might fall upon us.

He never was disturbed by criticism; he never was distracted by praise, because with the faith of a great prophet he held his course close to God. Say what you will about him, he has rethought and restated for multitudes the meaning of life in terms of God.

For all the saints, who from their labor rest,
Who thee, by faith, before the world
confessed,
Thy name, O Jesus, be forever blest.
Hallelujah.

What a challenge is such a life to all who falter; what a comfort to all who believe; what an indictment upon all who reject it; what a prophecy of power to all who make it real!

We shall see him again, for such a life cannot die. I like to believe that somewhere in that better country where the sun goes not down, where twilight breaks into eternal dawn, where God wipes away all tears from our eyes, where there is no pain, and where flowers fade not away, he is still carrying on with the same sweet faith and same noble spirit into an evergrowing fullness and likeness of his God and our God.

Christian Victory Over Death.

The supreme glory of the Christian faith is in the new meaning it gives to life and the new hope it gives to death. The greatness of life and the hope of death, which the religion of Jesus Christ brings to mankind, will ever stand as the unmatched miracle of the ages.

To ancient peoples, death was a tragedy, a closing of the book, a sealing of the story. Now and then, to be sure, some one came who tried to lift the veil; here and there one expressed a vague supposition. Yet men were afraid. The shroud seemed to end everything. Death was the last chapter and the eternal farewell, the night that has no daybreak.

Men buried their dead with their faces toward the west, for the last sunset had gone over them. On the tombs of the dead they carved the skull and crossbones. Even among the ancient Hebrews old age was a sign of a particular benevolence, for it meant postponement of the last dread day.

Then came Jesus of Nazareth. He gave the world a new hope and greeted night with a new song, saying that dusk will bring daybreak and that at eventide there will be light. When a broken heart sobbed out its woe to Him, He only replied: "Thy brother is not dead, he will arise again."

When He arose again from the dead and ascended, He called back over the battlements of heaven to all His followers: "Because I live, ye, too, shall live also." Somewhere beyond, life still runs on without the imperfections and impediments of this life.

We bury our dead with their faces to the east, for sunrise eternal has broken over their souls where "Nearer, My God, to Thee" is no longer a hymn of hope, but an everlasting experience.

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me;
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I set out to sea.

For though from out the bourne of time and place,
The floods may bear me far,
I hope to see my pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar.

God bless and hallow the heritage and memory of William Jennings Bryan.

POSTAL REVENUES WENT UP IN JUNE

Reached $9,000,000 More Than in the Same Month of Last Year.

MAY OVERCOME A DEFICIT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Revenues received under the new postal rates during June were approximately $9,000,000 greater than those obtained in the same month a year ago under the old rates, and this fact brought into question today the accuracy of the prediction made recently by Postmaster General New that a deficit of $40,000,000 a year would be faced by his Department under the new rates.

Mr. New met this situation with the statement the large increase in June was accounted for by various developments which probably would not apply to all months, and that apparently it was too early to form an accurate opinion.

The new rates, which went into effect April 15, 1925, were adopted by the last Congress to supply revenues to meet an annual salary increase of about $68,000,000 granted to the postal employes. For May, the first test month, the new rates produced about $3,000,000 in excess of the revenue for the same month last year under the old rates. If this ratio were kept up throughout the year it was obvious that the salary increases of $68,000,000 would not be met.

Following the poor showing in May, Mr. New suggested there would be a deficit of about $40,000,000 for the year. His suggestion caused a deal of talk in political circles and demands for further rate increases. When the returns for June began to come in, however, the picture was changed. The figures showed that total computed revenue from all sources for June of this year was $51,809,901, as compared with $42,770,451 in June, 1924, a clear gain of more than $9,000,000. The figures for May of this year were $50,530,501, as against $47,117,065.

May and June are not record months in the matter of business done, but combined they showed an increase under the new rates of approximately $12,500,000 in revenue over the same two months a year ago. On this basis some of those who questioned Mr. New's earlier estimate of a $40,000,000 annual deficit contend that the new rates actually will provide the $68,000,000 needed for salary increases and leave the Post Office Department a comfortable surplus rather than a deficit.

The Postoffice Department issued a statement today setting forth its side of the controversy over what has been and will be accomplished under the new rates, in which it said:

"Computed total postal revenues for the month of June, 1925, under the new rates, according to figures just made public by the Postmaster General, disclose an increase of 20.0125 per cent. over the amount which would have been received under the old rates during the same period.

"Similar figures for the month of May, as presented to the Special Congressional Joint Subcommittee on Postal Rates, showed an increase of only .0091 per cent., indicating that June figures are as abnormal as those of May were subnormal.

"Combined, the revenues under the new rates for the two months, May and June, 1925, as compared with the revenues which would have accrued at the old rates in the same months, show a gain of 9.2444 per cent.

"Despite the apparent excellent showing of the new rates, Postmaster General New does not believe the figures can be taken at their face value.

"'In my opinion,' he said, 'the very large increase in June is accounted for by the swing of the pendulum from the depression of May, which followed the huge mailings prior to the second week of April, when mailers sought to take advantage of the old rates. Therefore, the June receipts are no more indicative of what may fairly be expected than are the figures for the month of May.

"'These figures only confirm what I said a month ago: It is still too early to form a good opinion of what the new rates will produce. Of course, the June receipts are encouraging, but they are not to be regarded as indicating anything very definite.'

"The amounts of revenue and the number of pieces of mail, or of transactions for June, show an average of approximately 20 per cent. increase over those for May.

"The registry service, which showed a loss of one-third of 1 per cent. in May, reported a gain of more than 28 per cent. in June. The number of return receipts was 218,490 greater in June than in May. On the other hand, special handling transactions fell from 414,506 in May to 221,128 in June, which may possibly be attributed in part to the closing of the baby chick shipping season.

"Total computed revenues from all sources are estimated at $51,809,901 for June, 1925, as compared with $42,770,451 for June, 1924, while similar figures for May, 1925, were $50,530,501, as against $47,117,065 for May, 1924."

Witnesses Before Postal Rate Inquiry Committee Urge Changes.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31 (AP).—The Congressional special joint subcommittee on postal rates closed its hearing in this city today and adjourned to New York with the final admonition to try an application of "the garden variety of common sense" in unknotting the postal rate tangle, which is under investigation by the group headed by Senator Moses of New Hampshire.

"The Postoffice Department could be put on a paying basis if there were applied to it merely the garden variety of common sense," said E. W. Sears, for four years with the traffic department of the Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia, who attacked the "double entry" system of the act of Oct. 3, 1917, as without business principle or economy.

The privilege extended to publishers under that law, he said, whereby magazines are shipped by freight to distant points of distribution and then entered in the mails, paying only the short haul postal rates, has diverted large sums from the postal receipts. He advocated the return to the "blue tag" provision, which preceded that act, under which newspapers were entered only in the postoffices of the cities in which published.

The "philanthropies" and "benevolences" alleged to have been extended to certain favored kinds of publications were again criticized today.

"Other users of the mails should not be asked to pay the subsidies and benevolences extended by the Postal Department to religious, scientific, educational papers and publications for the blind," declared David R. Rutter of Wilmington, Del., of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company.

The effect of altering the postal scale was said by Mr. Rutter to be important to the small user of the mails.

"Many dealers do not have a large appropriation for advertising," he said. "If $15 or $20 is added to his expense each month it may mean the curtailment of his advertising substantially."

"If the added revenue from the high postal scale is necessary to the Postoffice Department, we do not begrudge it," said Montgomery H. Wright, publicity director of the John B. Stetson Company of Philadelphia.

Representative Ramseyer of Iowa drew from Mr. Wright the information that his company's hats would be advanced in price next year.

"It is only reasonable then," Mr. Ramseyer said, "to expect an increase in postal rates along with everything else, is it not?"

"We are not criticizing the Government," replied Mr. Wright. "We hope only for good judgment in arranging the increases."

MADDEN WOULD CUT INCOME TAX IN TWO

Favors 15 Per Cent. Maximum Surtax and Would Abolish Estate and Gift Levies.

SEES DROP OF $350,000,000

Appropriations Committee Chairman Tells Coolidge This Year's Surplus Will Reach $373,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 31.—President Coolidge, following a conference on finances and taxation with Representative Martin M. Madden, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, declined today to commit himself to the suggestions advanced by Mr. Madden that the combined income taxes should be reduced to 20 per cent.

In the semi-weekly conference with newspaper men Mr. Coolidge reiterated that he wanted tax reductions made all along the line, and as low as possible, but was not prepared to recommend particular schedules until he had obtained figures from the Treasury and learned the effect of proposed reductions.

The President and Mr. Madden discussed the subject only in the most general way, owing to the limited time the Representative could remain. Mr. Madden virtually approved the tax reduction program outlined in Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Winston's letter to the Iowa clubs.

"I am opposed to a graduated corporation tax, but favor this tax being reduced to 10 per cent. flat, instead of 12½ per cent," said Mr. Madden. "I am in favor of eliminating all so-called nuisance taxes. I think that the combined normal and surtaxes should be reduced to 20 per cent., making the maximum surtaxes about 15 per cent. Likewise, it would appear possible to reduce the normal tax to probably 1 per cent. Certainly I would reduce the normal tax to the lowest possible figure.

Would Not Exempt Small Incomes.

"On the other hand, I do not believe that there should be any further exemptions to the man whose income is, say, $5,000. I think that if a man is paying taxes to the Government he is a better citizen and keeps more interest in his Government and watches the conduct of Congress, to the benefit of both Congress and the taxpayers.

"The estate tax should be abolished. In this respect I likewise agree with the Treasury officials. And, of course, I favor the abolition of the gift taxes. Also, if I could have my way, I would authorize the Treasury to return to the taxpayers their pro rata proportion of the surpluses when they exceed $50,000,000."

"How far can the tax reductions go next year?" Mr. Madden was asked.

"I believe that the taxes can safely be reduced $350,000,000, and probably a little more than that figure," he replied.

"Would reorganization permit of a saving of $250,000,000 as suggested by Senator Curtis?" was asked.

"I do not think so," Mr. Madden replied. "If you reorganize in one direction there would be expansions in another. Reductions cannot hope to save any large amount."

One thing that is going to prevent thoroughgoing economies, in the opinion of Mr. Madden, is a strong demand for an omnibus public buildings bill. There has not been such a bill since 1913. He is opposed to it, and thinks that a building bill of $25,000,000, authorizing the Treasury to spend this money where most needed, is sufficient in the present condition of the country.

Suggests Bonds for Buildings.

In fact, Mr. Madden is opposed to any appropriation for public buildings. He thinks that a bond issue ought to be floated for such purposes, and each building made to pay the interest rate on the bonds and provide for their retirement. He would have the money now paid by the Government in rent applied to paying the interest rate on the bonds floated to take care of the public buildings.

"The surplus in the current fiscal year will be about $373,000,000," Mr. Madden said. "I believe that the expenses of the Government can be kept within $3,100,000,000 next year, which would be a saving of about $125,000,000 over the past year's expenses."

Mr. Madden, who has just returned from a two months' trip in Europe, told the President that the foreign nations could well afford to pay their debts to the United States.

"I believe that our debtors will arrange to fund their debts, and I favor all funds received from this source being applied to debt reduction," Mr. Madden said. "This, added to the sinking fund appropriations and the other revenues required by law to be applied to debt payments, should cancel our debt of $20,000,000,000 in thirty years.

"England is already paying her debt, but of all the nations in Europe she appears to be the worse off. Her unemployment is now about 1,500,000, and other nations are underselling her. Before the war she supplied France and Italy with coal. Now these countries get their coal out of the reparations. England's export trade in coal is reduced 25 per cent. She cannot compete with Germany in shipbuilding. One large English ship firm asked for bids, and, despite its desire to help British industries, was compelled to give the contract to a German firm because of the very low German bid.

Says England Is Undersold.

"Both Germany and France are in good shape industrially, and both are underselling England. In England many fabric mills are idle. France is now making the same fabrics and selling them to English cities which formerly made them cheaper than they can be made in the English cities whose mills are idle.

"France is able to pay her debt. Belgium's debt is small, and I think that Belgium can pay as well as France, and that both intend to do so. If they do, it will be better for their own internal program and aid them in getting further loans from American bankers."

President Coolidge does not know of any idea evolved by the Bureau of Mines for seizing coal mines in case of a strike. He does not think any such plan has been mapped out. He knows that the Government has no authority to seize the mines except in case of extreme emergency. He does not favor such a move, and doubts whether any Government bureau has seriously considered it.

The President declined to discuss the prospects of getting favorable action on the World Court. He said the recent poll of the Senate on the subject had not been made at his request, but he had read of it in the newspapers. The poll has been sent to the White House offices, but has not yet been shown to the President.

NATIONS DIVIDE HONORS IN BABY COMPETITION

Irish, Polish, Syrian, American and Greek Children Take Prizes in Bowling Green Contest.

Close to the shrill blasts of North River steamers and in the shadow of the world's most congested business centre, a baby contest which became international in scope was held yesterday at 45 West Street, headquarters of the Bowling Green Neighborhood Association.

The new villagers of Bowling Green gathered to exhibit the latest additions to their community. The result was a draw among the leading nationalities contending for the health titles. Irish, Polish, Syrian, American and Greek families shared the prizes equally—three tiny girls and two chubby boys were declared the winners. Another Syrian, Mrs. Albert Shawney of 48 Washington Street, won a special prize, a silver cup, for most carefully looking after her baby.

Small children clapped delightedly, and the murmured applause in six or seven tongues of fifty mothers greeted the announcement of the winners, made by the judge, Dr. Lucy Sutton, physician for the neighborhood association.

Dark-haired, bright-eyed Mary Rosetta Hoefer, of Irish descent, who has lived for less than a year at 29 Washington Street, won first prize for the healthiest baby under one year of age. Therese Kozlowski, Polish, of 177 Greenwich Street, took second place. Katie Sead, Syrian, of 17 Washington Street, and William Ferguson, American, of 46 Greenwich Street, won first and second prizes in the class for babies between one and two years. A prize for the baby less than two years old making the greatest gain in the last six months, went to Louis Mato, Greek, of 57 West Street.

A committee of business men, including Cleveland H. Dodge, William C. Breed, Delos W. Cooke, Harvey D. Gibson and Mortimer Schiff, provided for the prizes which were a gold medal and a ten-dollar gold piece in a miniature bank for first place winners and a five-dollar gold piece for second place.

NICARAGUAN POLICE STOP MISSION ATTACK

Government Takes Hand in Anti-Protestant Demonstration at Granada.

A second demonstration against American missionaries at Granada, Nicaragua, is described in a dispatch from Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, according to The Associated Press.

A church belonging to the Central American Mission was surrounded by a mob on Monday night, The Associated Press reports, but was saved from damage by the police. Eleven arrests were made.

Several days ago, according to a report from Managua, President Solorzano sent a commission and fifty soldiers to Granada to settle difficulties between the American missionaries and the Catholic authorities.

The Central American Mission is a Protestant institution and is said to obtain its support largely from the Board of Foreign Missions of the Southern Baptist Convention of Richmond, Va. It began its activities about four years ago, but only recently established headquarters at Granada in spite of the opposition of the Bishop of Granada. Since that time there has been a series of disorders.

At the Consulate General of Nicaragua here yesterday it was said that the Government had taken ample precaution to protect the American missionaries.

"The trouble comes," said Tijirino Toribio, Nicaraguan Consul General, "from Protestant foreigners trying to go into a Catholic country and win converts. It is generally felt in Nicaragua that if they are so anxious to win converts from Catholicism they might better remain at home and convert the Catholics in the United States."

NEW YORKERS IMPRISONED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 31.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Campbell of New York, charged with the theft of a diamond ring worth 100,000 francs from the dressing room of a Versailles hotel, were unable to convince a Paris tribunal today that they intended to return the ring to its owner, and both received prison terms, the husband's of two years and the wife's of one year. The sentence also includes a fine of 200 francs for each and prohibits their residence in France for five years following the expiration of their prison terms.

charges next Tuesday and today's session was adjourned.

Mrs. Blankenburg Faints.

While the spectators were leaving the courtroom Mrs. Blankenburg, who had preserved an outward calm during the proceedings and had arisen and gone to the water cooler for a cup of water, suddenly was seen to stagger across the right arm of her chair. Her hat fell awry, the cup of water spilled over her dress, her eyes turned upward in a glassy stare and her mouth drooped. It was some minutes before she was able to sit up, and much later when she was taken out of the courtroom by a court officer and matron.

Beyond formal protestation of her innocence of the crime of perjury and fraud, and questions as to what penalty awaited her in the form of penalty, Mrs. Blankenburg made no statement. It is understood that a sentence of two years or more is possible under the law.

Immediately following the denunciation of the claimant by the court notice of withdrawal of appearance of counsel was filed by J. Weston Allen, former Attorney General of Massachusetts, and Edwin B. Abbot Jr. on behalf of their firm, Allen, Abbot & Packer.

Another development of the case in the afternoon was the assignment by Attorney General Benton of Assistant Attorney General Weston to represent the Commonwealth in court next Tuesday for the appearance of Mrs. Blankenburg and Crabtree.

Attorney General Benton said he entered an appearance in the case at the outset because the Commonwealth was interested, as $2,000,000 was left by Miss Crabtree for public charities, including a trust fund for the benefit of soldiers of the late war.

Sums Up for Claimant.

Immediately prior to Judge Prest's reading of the perjury charges, Mr. Allen had reviewed the evidence submitted on behalf of his client, Mrs. Blankenburg.

The writing on the fly-leaf of the Bible, he argued, had not been proved to be the recent, and the evidence pointed to the contrary.

In the theatrical profession there were many reasons why children should be put away, Mr. Allen argued. Lotta was appearing in juvenile rôles and it would not help her for it to be known that she was a wife and mother.

"Seven times," Mr. Allen told the Court, "has Lotta Crabtree broken the secrecy of her life, and once again her lips were shut about the child. Are all the witnesses mistaken, or is it by a fair preponderance of the evidence shown that Lotta Crabtree had a child who, for obvious reasons, was placed where it would be taken care of?"

$1,724,000 IS VOTED TO IMPROVE PARKS

Replanting and Care of Many Trees in Central Park to Be Begun Soon, Says Gallatin.

The Board of Estimate voted tax notes of $1,724,000 yesterday to pay for improvements in the parks of the five boroughs recommended by the Committee on Parks and Playgrounds of the Board of Estimate. Mayor Hylan is the head of this committee, which has been studying park needs. It includes the President of the Board of Aldermen and the Park Commissioners of the boroughs.

The appropriation was distributed as follows among the five boroughs: Bronx $454,000, Brooklyn $424,000, Manhattan $360,000, Queens $296,000, and Richmond $90,000.

The replanting, watering and nourishing of many trees in Central Park is contemplated in the committee's plan. Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin of Manhattan said that the work would begin as soon as the plans and contracts could be prepared, but that care would be taken not to interfere with the use of the park by the people this Summer. At the motion of Mayor Hylan it was voted to print 2,000 copies of the report, Deputy Controller Frank J. Prial voting in the negative.

The appropriation covers the following specific recommendations:

CELLARS FLOODED BY RAIN.

High Tide Overflows Brooklyn Sewers—Jersey City Woman Hurt.

The rain which began falling yesterday and continued well into last night flooded cellars in Brooklyn and was responsible for a woman in Jersey City being struck and seriously injured by an automobile.

The flooded cellars were on Avenue D, Clarendon Road and Cortelyou Road half a block east and west of Flatbush Avenue. The flood was precipitated by a high tide in Flatlands Bay which did not permit the sewers from the district to empty. During the downpour water accumulating on Flatbush Avenue ran over the sidewalks and into the side streets, where residents were unable to prevent the water from entering the cellars. The B. M. T. sent out a wrecking car and a crew along the Flatbush Avenue trolley line and when the men lifted the refuse catchers the flood started to recede.

The injured woman was Mary Krodenski, 43 year old of 130 Morris Street, Jersey City. She was walking across Jersey Avenue at Newark Avenue with her head bent downward and she failed to see an automobile approaching and was run over. She was taken to St. Francis Hospital in a serious condition.

Girl Sets Four Fires in Home for a Thrill; Starts Three at Once After First Is Put Out

Florence Storck, 13 years old, admitted last night setting four fires in the home of her aunt at 700 West 178th Street, yesterday.

Florence's mother died a year ago. The girl and her father, Robert Storck, a carpenter, went to live with the aunt, Mrs. Theodore Goetz.

At 6:15 o'clock Thursday night firemen extinguished a small fire in a closet in the seven-room apartment of Mrs. Goetz. At 8:15 A. M. yesterday the firemen were called again. Fire in a closet had spread to a bedroom. As the firemen were preparing to leave they were called again to the Goetz apartment. Fire in another bedroom, in a hall closet and in the dining room engaged their attention. When all were put out, Fire Marshal Willis communicated with the police.

Detectives Mullians and Geiger of the Wadsworth Avenue Station questioned Florence, and then charged her with juvenile delinquency. She will be arraigned this morning in Children's Court. Detectives said she told them she set the fires "for excitement."

SOBS FAREWELL TO CRIME

Sorrowfully Leaves His Good Friends at Headquarters, and Then Things Happen.

Hymie Goldberg, 40 years old, of 262 East Fourth Street, yesterday paid his second visit to Police Headquarters since he reformed.

"I'm going to go straight," said Hymie, on his first visit two weeks ago just after he had been released from Elmira.

"That's fine, Hymie," said Lieutenant Rastis, head of the pickpocket squad. "I believe you've got good stuff in you. Keep away from those eggs."

"You bet I will," said Hymie. "I hate a crook and you'll never see me with 'em any more. That's what I came to see you about, Cap. You sent me up, but you had me right and you played fair. I appreciate it.

"So when I got this job—I got a job—and needed a little change to keep me till they was ready for me, did I go wrong to get it? Did I hunt up my old dip frieds and borrow it? No, sir, I came here. I says to myself, 'Hymie, Inspector Rastis is one square guy. He's your friend, if he did send you up. He'll help you go right.'"

Hymie sobbed in a rich baritone. Fighting down the hysteria, he began to chant an epic of hard luck. Before he had reached the second canto Lieutenant Rastis turned to one side, passed the back of his hand over his eyes, then frowned at a window, pretending the light was annoying him. The reformed convict had a voice with the vibrations of a genuine Strad. It swayed the hearts of his listeners. It made better men of them. Lieutenant Busby of the safe and loft squad joined them and other policemen came up to hear the hard luck set to music.

It had almost reached the camp-meeting stage, when Lieutenant Rastis drew forth a five-dollar bill from his pocket, handed it to Hymie and rushed out with an arm crooked over his face. Lieutenant Busby rolled up a piece of paper money, thrust it into Hymie's hand and muttered something that sounded like "God bless you." Others chipped in and Hymie left Police Headquarters with a wet handkerchief and a substantial nest-egg.

Yesterday Hymie came in again, accompanied by Policeman John Ruff and Philip Salaisberg.

"You here again, Hymie!" exclaimed Rastis.

"Yes, I caught him picking that man's pocket of $300," said Ruff, pointing at Salaisberg.

DECIDES FOR SCHOELLKOPF

Court Denies Petition for More Pay From Lawyer in Gem Theft Case.

An application by Henry H. Klein, a lawyer, for an order directing judgment in his favor against C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf of Buffalo and former State Senator George F. Thompson of Lockport, N. Y., for $1,800 for services was denied yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Ingraham. Mr. Klein said he performed legal services for the defendants, but the answer filed by Senator Thompson said the plaintiff was employed in December, 1923, as an investigator only. He was to get $50 a day, it was added, and he received $1,000, which the defendants set forth is the full value of his services. The Court decided that the case should be decided by a jury.

The papers indicate that part of the services alleged to have been performed by Mr. Klein, who was at the time a deputy in the office of the Commissioner of Accounts, related to Mr. Schoellkopf's claims for insurance after the theft of $250,000 of jewels from his wife at a New Year's party in 1922 in this city.

TO ASK FOLEY IF HE WOULD FIGHT HYLAN

"We are going to get together again," he said. "We are going to leave nothing undone that will contribute to a peaceful settlement, and one that will make for the welfare of the city. That is all I can say."

McCooey Unswerved.

Mr. McCooey said the entire afternoon had been given over to rehearsing old arguments which had been printed again and again in the newspapers.

"As far as I can see, there was no reason why all the newspaper men in town should not have been admitted to these meetings and have heard everything that was said," he declared.

Mr. McCooey made it plain that he was still holding out for the renomination of Mayor Hylan.

"No candidate who appeals to you as stronger than Mayor Hylan has been presented today?" he was asked.

"No," he said. "That's the trouble. There doesn't seem to be any stronger candidate than the Mayor, as far as I have been able to see."

It was learned that three Brooklyn candidates, aside from Mayor Hylan, had come up for discussion. They were General George A. Wingate, Surrogate of Kings County; District Attorney Charles J. Dodd and County Clerk William E. Kelly. So apparently Mr. McCooey does not regard either of these prominent members of the Kings County Democratic organization as stronger than the Mayor, whose candidacy came in for considerable discussion.

The contention made by some of Mayor Hylan's opponents that McCooey might be prepared to accept as "stronger" than the Mayor any man from Brooklyn proposed as a substitute candidate for Hylan did not appear to hold good. Of course, there is little likelihood of Olvany and Flynn accepting a Brooklyn man for first place on the ticket; that would rather leave the decision as to who shall run for Mayor left to the primaries.

While the conference was in progress word came that Surrogate Wingate of Kings would not care to run against Hylan in the primaries. The name of Surrogate James A. Foley of New York was brought up. Mr. McCooey said he understood the New York Surrogate was of the same mind as the Surrogate of Kings.

"Well," Tammany Leader Olvany said, "I don't know. I will try to find out over the week-end."

Foley Looms Large.

The bringing up of Surrogate Foley by the Brooklyn leader was seized upon as the first indication, no matter how slender, that McCooey might shift his allegiance, although he already has ventured the opinion privately that Surrogate Foley would not do. Anyhow, suggestions that he leave his place on the bench and go into the turmoil of a primary fight were made by Democratic friends have made no appeal to Mr. Foley, who would rather see some other man take that responsibility.

Mr. McCooey was asked after the conference if his organization would support Surrogate Foley, if he should indicate his willingness to run for Mayor.

"What is the use talking about that until Mayor Hylan takes himself out of the race?" the Brooklyn leader replied. "And, personally, I do not think the Mayor is going to withdraw."

There was discussion of Supreme Court Justices Robert F. Wagner, Victor J. Dowling and Thomas W. Churchill and of State Senator James J. Walker, but it did not lead anywhere. McCooey has already turned his thumbs down on all except Justice Dowling.

FIVE-CENT FARE CLUB GROWS.

Henry Fruhauf Says Its Enrolment Shows Hylan Strong.

Henry Fruhauf, the clothing manufacturer of 377 Fifth Avenue, estimated yesterday that he would have 200,000 members of the "Hylan Five Cent Fare Club" by tomorrow night. The last total was 105,000, but members have been enrolling so fast, with eighty or ninety unpaid workers, Mr. Fruhauf said, that he was astonished at what he had started.

His interest in the election of Hylan, he said, was that of a manufacturer interested in keeping down his labor turnover. The continuance of a five-cent fare, on the other hand, enabled his employes to get out of the congested sections of the city to where they could live comfortably, he said. Consequently he had no difficulty in getting labor.

He told of starting the club, as follows:

"Some time ago when it appeared that Mayor Hylan would be ditched by the long-haired crowd—and by them I mean the long-haired financiers of Wall Street—I talked the matter over with Franklin Simon, and we had lunch with the Mayor. As a result of that I went to form the Hylan Five-Cent Fare Club.

"I called my employes together on July 3, talked to them about transportation matters, and then gave them blanks on which they could obtain the names of those who wished to enroll in the club. There are about 1,200 employes. I was amazed when the next Monday morning I found they had collected 12,600 signatures over the week-end. That showed me I was on the right path, and convinced me that Mayor Hylan was right when he said he had the backing of the people on his five-cent fare platform.

"I took the signatures down to him, and the tears came into his eyes. 'I thought that was what you would find,' he said, and I told him that I was going to get more."

CONFESSES SLAYING SPINSTER SISTERS

Louis Labombarde Says He and Chore Boy Beat the Misses Gillis to Death in Hudson, N. H.

WANTED THEIR PROPERTY

15-Year-Old Charles Lefebvre Is Also Held, Accused as Instigator of the Crime.

NASHUA, N. H., July 31 (AP).—The story of how two aged sisters were battered to death with stovewood sticks in order that their slayers, one a boy of 13, might share their little estate, was told today by Louis Labombarde of Merrimack, in the cottage in Hudson, where the bodies of Helen and Georgianna Gillis were found a week ago.

Labombarde, who had been under questioning since yesterday in connection with the murders, broke down and admitted that he and his young brother-in-law, Charles Lefebvre, who was employed as a chore boy by the Gillis sisters, were responsible for the crime.

Labombarde was brought to Nashua immediately and locked up on the formal charge of murder. Young Lefebvre, who had been questioned repeatedly since the murders were discovered, also was arrested and brought here. As late as midday today State and county officials had admitted they were without a definite clue in the case.

After some minutes of questioning on the scene of the crime, witnesses reported, Labombarde dropped to his knees and exclaimed: "We killed them." He then enacted the scenes of last Wednesday, when the aged sisters met their deaths.

According to the story told by Labombarde, Charles Lefebvre told him that the Gillis sisters were fond of him and had promised to will him their home and their money when they died. Lefebvre suggested that he and Labombarde kill the old women and divide the money, the confession continued, and Labombarde agreed. On Wednesday afternoon they went to the Gillis home to mow the lawn.

"Charlie went to the back of the house where there was a woodpile and took an armful of sticks," Labombarde said. "Each of us took one of the sticks. I went into the pantry where Helen Gillis was and raised my arm with the stick in my hand. I did not mean to hit her, but I did. It was not a heavy blow, but she crumbled up in the corner. I went back to the kitchen and saw Charlie beating Georgianna Gillis, who had been stooping down to put on her rubbers. He struck her over the head several times. She staggered into the other room and fell on a couch."

Labombarde said the two went to the kitchen and Lefebvre took a black pocketbook from the pantry. They agreed to leave the house by different routes and to meet at a place locally known as Camel's Hump, half a mile away. Labombarde said that as he went out he threw his stick into the woodpile. Lefebvre went down the State Road and they met as agreed. Lefebvre had tied a nightgown about his stick and hidden the two under his clothing. At the Camel's Hump this evidence was destroyed.

Save Boy's Body From Potter's Field

The unclaimed body of the 17-year-old boy found in the North River at 152d Street on July 7, was buried yesterday in the plot of the Department of Public Welfare in Evergreen Cemetery. The burial fund was furnished by the Social Service section of the Department at the direction of Commissioner Bird S. Coler, except for $5, which was given by James E. Low, an attorney, of 331 Madison Avenue.

Two Burned in Still Explosion.

Two men were severely burned in a fire that followed the explosion of a five-gallon still in the basement of the two-story frame dwelling at 191 Withers Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday. Both men were taken to a hospital under arrest on a charge of violating the Volstead act. They said they were Anthony Gioia of 117 Roebling Street and Joseph Martino of 191 Withers Street.

ONE BUS LINE APPROVED

American-Made Pipe Gets Preference Over Lower-Priced German Product.

Appropriations aggregating more than $11,000,000 for the advancement of the Washington Heights link in the city's new subway system were voted yesterday by the Board of Estimate.

Of the several bus items on the calendar only one was approved, granting to the Queens Bus Lines, Inc., a franchise for the Erie Basin-Borough Hall and the Erie Basin-Prospect Park routes in Brooklyn.

Opposition developed to the granting of a franchise to the same company for a route running through Bay Eighth Street, Cropsey Avenue, Eighteenth Avenue, Coney Island Avenue, Foster Avenue, Nostrand Avenue and Newkirk Avenue, Brooklyn, and the matter was laid over to the next meeting.

A large delegation appeared to press immediate granting of the franchise, but Julius Schwartz, representing the Midwood Park Property Owners' Association, declared land owners in Foster Avenue objected. He also explained that buses had been operated in that highway before and that his organization had obtained an injunction in the Supreme Court restraining them.

Mayor Sees Move by B. M. T.

"Oh, yes, I remember," remarked the Mayor. "That was really a B. M. T. injunction." Schwartz declared the Mayor was in error.

"Well, the B. M. T. was behind it, anyway," the Mayor commented.

Another appropriation voted by the board members was $80,000 to the Board of Health to continue its fight against smallpox. Charles J. Kohler, secretary of the Board of Health, in transmitting the plea, declared that 100,000 persons had been vaccinated thus far by the city and that the work should continue until November.

Over the protest of Deputy Controller Prial, the board decided to authorize the vesting of title in the property needed for the Rockaway Beach Boardwalk. The vesting will follow the so-called rule map already drawn for the work. Borough President Connolly of Queens declared the city would save thousands of dollars by taking this action, because of the rapid advance of land value in the Rockaway section.

American Pipe Preferred.

Commissioner of Purchase John E. Bowe informed the board that he had received a bid from a German concern on a $300,000 order of iron piping for the city, which was $36,000 less than any of the eleven American firms. He asked the board to instruct him what to do and to determine whether it would be the city's policy to purchase from foreign concerns. Mayor Hylan indicated that he preferred the lowest bid, which had been submitted by the Gelsenkirchen Berg works of Essen, Germany. "The point is not debatable," said Deputy Controller Prial. "There is a difference of only $36,000. It is ridiculous not to give it to an American firm."

"I warn you," said a representative of the Central Trades and Labor Council, addressing the Mayor and the board, "to be careful before taking any foreign material. The Germans use scrap iron in their pipe. It would be highly dangerous to put such piping under the streets of this city. A repetition of the breaks on Fifth Avenue would probably occur."

At the suggestion of the Mayor, the board instructed Commissioner Bowe to accept the lowest American bid.

LIMITS SUBWAY BLASTING.

Court Enjoins Use of Explosives Between 8 P. M. and 7 A. M.

The use of high explosives between 8 P. M. and 7 A. M. by the excavating concern of Moranti & Raymond, Inc., in constructing a section of the Washington Heights subway at 173d Street and Broadway, was restrained yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Ingraham in a suit of the Broadway-173d Street Realty Corporation. The plaintiff owns the buildings at 630 and 710 West 173d Street, and alleged that since June 15 the tenants had had their sleep disturbed by explosions and that the blasts had jarred the walls of the building.

Harold N. Raymond, Vice President of the contracting company, said that his company has not used unlawful charges nor worked at unreasonable hours, but stated that unless the work was completed within eight months from the beginning his company would be subject to a penalty of $150 a day, and that since the excavating was now being done through solid rock it could be accomplished only by blasting. In granting the injunction Justice Ingraham said:

"It must be conceded that there exists a public necessity for the completion of the subway now under construction, but that in itself does not in my opinion outweigh the rights of the people in the vicinity of such building operations not to submit to conditions that endanger their health by a continued loss of sleep due to the blasting of rock during all hours of the night, nor can I conceive of any hardship, or in fact any delay, in the work by restraining blasting during such hours as is necessary to be set aside for sleeping purposes. The preparation for the actual blasts may be made during the day or night by drilling holes necessary therefor, but the actual blasting may not be done during the hours from 8 o'clock in the evening to 7 A. M. of the following day."

MOTHER OF 3 ADMITS THEFT

Mrs. Perino, With Baby in Arms, Pleads Guilty to Burglary.

With her month-old baby in her arms, Mrs. Mildred Perino, 28 years old, of 36 Jackson Street, Brooklyn, mother of three children, pleaded guilty to a burglary charge before Magistrate Short in the Bridge Plaza Court in Brooklyn yesterday. She was held without bail for the Grand Jury.

When Mrs. Vincenzo Abergo returned Thursday night to her home, in the apartment house at 11 Orient Avenue, Brooklyn, it is alleged that she surprised Mrs. Pinero in the act of rifling a dresser. Mrs. Perino fled, but was caught by Patrolman Frank Reuchert of the Stagg Street Station. It is said that she had $250 in cash and jewelry which Mrs. Abergo identified as hers. Mrs. Perino's husband, Frank, a welder, was not in court yesterday.

FREY HELD FOR HOMICIDE.

Driver of Wilda Bennett's Car Awaits Trial Under $2,500 Bail.

Charles C. Frey, driver of the automobile of Wilda Bennett, musical comedy star, which was in collision Thursday night with a motorcycle, resulting in the death of Miss Anna Beach of 127 Fifty-ninth Street, Woodside, was held in $2,500 bail yesterday in the Bronx Homicide Court on a technical charge of homicide. He was bound over for a further hearing on Aug. 7. Miss Bennett was present at the arraignment.

Frey's wife sued Miss Bennett last Spring for $100,000 for alienation of Frey's affections, but the suit was later dropped.

At her home at Elm Point, Great Neck, L. I., last night Miss Bennett was said by her maid to be very nervous as a result of the accident.

COMMONS PASSES BILL AMENDING 'DOLES' ACT

It Expects to Save £400,000 Annually by Reducing Unemployment Insurance Payments.

LONDON, July 31 (AP).—The Unemployment Insurance bill was passed by the House of Commons today after a Labor motion to reject it was defeated by a vote of 263 to 98.

The measure was one of the most important projects announced in the recent budget presented to Parliament by Chancellor Churchill.

The bill amends the present Unemployment Insurance act and is intended to prevent unemployment benefit payments being obtained improperly.

The Unemployment Insurance act passed by the Labor Government of the late Premier Ramsay MacDonald, provided an elaborate scheme for payments to unemployed persons. These payments were commonly known as "doles." The funds from which they were paid came partly from the Government, partly from employers and partly from workers, who under the scheme were assessed certain sums to be applied to the fund.

The bill passed today empowers the Minister of Labor to withhold unemployment payments under certain conditions and gives him power to inquire into the circumstances of applicants for unemployment benefits with a view of preventing fraud.

The Labor Party strongly opposed the amendment passed today and declared it would deprive 70,000 unemployed persons of benefits they would otherwise receive. The Government hopes to save £400,000 (about $1,940,000) annually by the reduction of unemployment payments effected by this bill.

LEWIS THREATENS COAL PARLEY BREAK

LAYS DELAY TO OPERATORS

Calls Representatives Supernumeraries—Won't Make Change, Warriner Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 31.—Characterizing the last three weeks of negotiations for a new wage scale as "shadow boxing" by an operators' committee consisting, with one exception, of "lesser executives," unqualified to negotiate, John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, today demanded that Samuel D. Warriner, President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, and W. J. Richards, President of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Corporation, veteran negotiators, meet him in the conference room on Tuesday.

Mr. Lewis in a letter to Mr. Warriner, who is Chairman of the anthracite operators' conference, urged him and Mr. Richards, the two "big guns," who for the first time in many years have not taken part in joint wage negotiations, to participate in "a bona fide conference which would give to the anthracite miners reasonable assurance that they were not pleading their case before a jury of supernumeraries."

If such a conference, continued Mr. Lewis, should develop that the "lesser executives" have correctly stated the position of the anthracite operators, "it would the more quickly enable the mine workers' representatives to effectuate a discontinuance of the farce."

See Break as Likely.

The virtual ultimatum served on Mr. Warriner made no forecast as to the future, but it was reported that if the veteran operators fail to appear on Tuesday the mine workers will break off negotiations. The way would then be open for intervention by President Coolidge, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania or Senator George Wharton Pepper.

Mr. Lewis's letter, read over the telephone to Mr. Warriner, who was at Lansford, Pa., evoked a reply that the operators' representatives on the subcommittee "will not be changed." Mr. Warriner declared that the operators of the subcommittee represented the industry, and he would not believe that Mr. Lewis would break off negotiations "on the pretext that the operators' committee is lacking in power."

The negotiations, which have been proceeding in leisurely fashion for three weeks, began to speed up today after Mr. Lewis concluded a conference with his associates. At noon the miners' chief made the following statement:

"It is regrettable that no progress of any character has been made by the conference. The operators occupy their time-honored position of denying everything and yielding nothing. They continue to mouth their ancient phrases about wage reductions and arbitration. It is obvious to every one that they have no intention of arriving at a settlement before the present contract expires."

Blames Miners for Delay.

To which Major W. W. Inglis, spokesman for the operators' subcommittee, made the following reply:

"When the miners' representatives came into conference with demands that would add about $100,000,000 a year to the cost of production, while every competitive and economic condition demands a decrease in cost, it naturally requires some time to brin the discussions within the realm of reason. Any delay that has taken place is due solely to the deliberation with which the miners have presented their case in the earlier sessions and to the irrelavant mater introduced by them.

"The delay is certainly not due to us, since the miners, as plaintiffs in the case, have had the floor since negotiations began. As to the substance of Mr. Lewis's statement today, he apparently thinks that the only way of arriving at a settlement is to concede the demands however unreasonable they may be. As to the tone of his statement, it might be considered as part of a plan to aggravate rather than harmonize the situation.

"Today the main discussion was on one of the so-called minor demands that would, if granted, add at a conservative estimate, $30,000,000 a year to production costs, this sum to be distributed among about one-third of our employes, or about $650 a year apiece. This would be added to the present rates which already compensate these workers. Other demands discussed would also add substantially to labor costs.

"Mr. Lewis is wrong in his statement about our attitude on reaching a settlement. I am hoping that one will be reached. The operators have been accused of wanting a suspension so that they may move their surplus coal. That is absolutely untrue."

Total Loss, Lewis Says.

Major Inglis's reply was made after the conference at the Hotel Traymore at which the miners were represented by their committee, headed by International Vice President Philip Murray. President Lewis, who remained at the Hotel Ambassador, then gave out copies of the following letter to Mr. Warriner:

Ambassador Hotel,
Atlantic City, N. J.,
Philadelphia, Pa.
July 31, 1925.

Mr. Samuel D. Warriner, Chairman,
Anthracite Operators' Conference,
Philadelphia, Penn.

My dear Mr. Warriner:

The conference between representatives of the anthracite operators and the United Mine Workers of America has been in session in this city since July 9. You are aware that it has not accomplished even a modicum of its purpose. The contributions of the mine workers to the conference, namely, money and time, represent a total loss.

With one exception, and for the first time in the history of our joint relationship, the anthracite operators have seen fit to be represented in the conference by a committee of lesser executives. The exception referred to is Mr. W. W. Inglis, President of the Glen Alden Coal Company, who, of course, represents large operating interests. It is public knowledge, however, that the financial interests represented by Mr. Inglis do not in any manner feel free to speak for the Leigh Coal and Navigation Company, of which you are President, and the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, of which Mr. W. J. Richards is President. Both yourself and Mr. Richards, who have for many years been the acknowledged leaders of the anthracite operators, have seen fit not to participate in the sessions of the subcommittee, and are ostensibly represented by the before-mentioned lesser executives.

It is well known to the mine workers that five of the six operator members of the subcommittee do not even under ordinary circumstances affecting the operation of their specific companies have the power of decision upon matters of policy. It is, therefore, manifest that these inexperienced gentlemen must feel themselves totally unqualified to assume the responsibility of agreeing with the mine workers' representatives upon such fundamentally major problems as are involved in the negotiation of a wage agreement.

The before-mentioned circumstances have enveloped the Atlantic City conference with an atmosphere of indifference and mystery which has been justifiably criticized by the metropolitan press. It has also caused the mine workers' representatives to believe that the anthracite operators are not desirous of concluding an agreement and averting a cessation of operation on Sept. 1, but are engaging in a form of shadow boxing, which, while not deceiving the mine workers, is highly inimical to the public interest and likewise hurtful to the interest of the industry.

Seeks "Bona Fide" Conference.

It seems to me, therefore, that a bona fide conference should be held, participated in by yourself and Mr. Richards, which would give to the anthracite mine workers reasonable assurance that they were not pleading their case before a jury of supernumeraries. The action might also go far to convince the interested public that it was not being gulled by being compelled to witness a dress rehearsal of an amateur theatrical.

I have arranged to personally attend the conference when it reconvenes on Tuesday and would indeed be pleased if you and Mr. Richards would deign to be present. The presence of you gentlemen should expedite ascertainment of the definite position of the operators.

If it should then develop that the lesser executives have from time to time correctly set forth the position of the anthracite operators, it would the more quickly enable the mine workers' representatives to effectuate a discontinuance of the farce.

I have presumed to address you, feeling that, as Chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Conference, you are the executive leader of the operating side of the industry and the official spokesman for your associates. You will doubtless recall that in your formal address to the joint conference at the Traymore Hotel on July 9 you made a number of statements affecting the mine workers which you have never supported in personal debates. Your committee of lesser executives have found themselves unable in conference with the mine workers' representatives to either prove or adequately support your extraordinary public fulminations.

I should indeed be happy to talk with you and Mr. Richards over these things in the conference on Tuesday if your many business cares and private inclinations will permit. Yours truly, JOHN L. LEWIS, President.

See Operators in Dilemma.

The Lewis letter, in the opinion of observers, places the employers in a dilemma. Failure of the veteran negotiators to resume their old seats at the conference will, it is believed, mean a break. Assuming that Mr. Warriner and Mr. Richards do enter the conference it is believed to be unlikely that they will repudiate the work of the Operators' subcommittee. Support of the work of their subcommittee will, according to Mr. Lewis, mean an end to the parleys.

Two demands were discussed by the joint conference today. Demand 5 asks the operators to furnish jackhammers and other tools now paid for by contract miners, to keep the tools in repair and to furnish free the compressed air necessary to operate the jackhammers. This demand also would have the employers furnish electric lamps and batteries free. Demand 6, on which discussion was not completed, is for a uniform rate of 20 cents an inch for refuse in all kinds of mining up to ten feet wide.

The miners explained that jackhammers or pneumatic drills cost about $200 that they last about eighteen months and that the contract miner must pay for them out of his earnings as well as $10 a month for upkeep and a considerable sum for compressed air to operate them.

The operators' position was that miners have always furnished their own tools and that their compensation includes allowance for tools. They declared that less than 5 per cent. of the contract miners used jackhammers.

Won't Change Committee.

Here is Mr. Warriner's telephone comment on the mine chief's letter:

"I shall of course reply to Mr. Lewis's letter as soon as it reaches me. In the meanwhile, I want to say that the committee representing the operators is fully authorized to negotiate a new agreement. It was elected in the same manner that all previous committees have been elected and clothed with the same authority, by a vote of the industry.

"The position that our representatives have taken in the conference with the mine workers is the position of the industry as a whole. I can scarcely believe that Mr. Lewis will take the responsibility, as he threatens, of breaking off the negotiations on the pretext that the operators' committee is lacking in power. This, I shall assure him, is not the case. Mr. Lewis would object very properly to any attempt on our part to say who should represent the miners. He must admit the operators' right to choose their own representatives. At all events they have done so and these representatives will not be changed."

Major Inglis, Chairman of the operators' committee in negotiation with the mine workers' representatives, said this evening:

"I shall not presume to answer a letter addressed to S. D. Warriner. He will, no doubt answer himself. Personally I regret, with my associates on the committee, that Mr. Lewis's return to Atlantic City has been signalized by an attempt to shift to the operators the responsibility for any break that may occur, on the ground that our committee is lacking in power. The committee was duly elected by the anthracite industry and has full authority."

GRETNA GREEN RITE UPHELD

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 31.—Old-world romance elopements, highroad pursuits in post-chaises and chariots were recalled in Paris law courts today when a Judge declared a runaway marriage, performed a half century ago and witnessed by the famous blacksmith of Gretna Green, is still perfectly valid.

The case was a curious one in which the mother, Mrs. Emma Bertha Bishopp, asked the court to declare her own daughter illegitimate.

Mrs. Bishopp, formerly Señora Alfredo Negrao, wedded the Señor in 1872 at Gretna Green when the smith performed the Scottish marriage ceremony for eloping couples by simply witnessing their declaration of marriage intentions, as was the custom there. A year later the daughter, Maria Emma, was born in Paris and duly registered in the thirteenth city district as a legitimate offspring.

The mother asked the court in her suit to annul that registration, making the daughter illegitimate on the ground that the Gretna Green ceremony was invalid.

The Tribunal, however, refused and pointed out that Mrs. Bishopp considered the marriage valid enough to obtain a legal separation and later a divorce in Lisbon.

Colijn Forms Dutch Ministry.

THE HAGUE, July 31 (AP).—A new Dutch Cabinet, succeeding the one which resigned on July 29, has been formed by the former Minister of Finance, H. Colijn, who becomes Premier and also holds the portfolios of Finance and the Colonies in the new Ministry.

PLAN BIG BUS LINE FOR WESTCHESTER

SEEK COUNTRY-WIDE LINES

Ask for Bids on 26 Buses in Preparation for Permission to Operate Lines.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 31.—The financial interests backing the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad, the Westchester Street Railroad Company and the New York & Stamford Railroad took their first step toward organizing a bus system to cover all of Westchester County today, when they called for bids for twenty-six buses of the latest type, involving an expenditure of between $160,000 and $400,000.

It was indicated that L. S. Miller, President of the New York, Westchester & Boston, intends to waste no time in throwing down the gauntlet to the Third Avenue Railroad Company and the Westchester Bus System, Inc. Several days ago announcement was made that the Yonkers Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the Third Avenue Line, had purchased the North Street Transportation Company, which operates bus lines between this city and Yonkers and between this city and Rye Beach.

It was said today that Mr. Miller expects to appear before the governing boards of the various county municipalities within the next few weeks. He will make applications for consents to go before the Public Service Commission for certificates of convenience and necessity. The first applications will be made here, in Mount Vernon, New Rochelle and Yonkers. He will then go before the Boards of Trustees of Port Chester, Ossining, Tarrytown, Peekskill and the other large villages. Officials here are known to be in favor of one large company to cover the county.

A bus war between Edward Devore, taxicab operator of Middletown, N. Y., and M. C. Griffin, who runs buses from Middletown to Monticello, was carried to Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins in White Plains yesterday in a motion to vacate an injunction.

Recently Justice A. H. Seeger granted a temporary injunction restraining Devore from parking his taxicabs alongside Griffin's buses in Middletown and also from soliciting passengers for Monticello.

ROOSEVELTS AT YARKAND.

Have Lost 20 Ponies—Will Go Further Into Eastern Turkestan.

SIMLA, India, July 31 (AP).—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Captain Kermit Roosevelt and the members of the Central Asia hunting expedition they are leading have reached Yarkand in Eastern Turkestan, with all baggage and personnel. The expedition is traveling to Tianshan by way of the Yarkand River.

Twenty ponies have been lost on the trip.

The Roosevelt expedition, seeking specimens of rare animals of Central Asia, including the ovis poli, a great mountain goat discovered by Marco Polo, was reported in a radio message from Kashgar received at Simla two weeks ago to be "five stations away." It was expected that the party would soon reach Yarkand, an ancient and important market city of Chinese Turkestan on the Yarkand River, about 100 miles southeast of Kashgar.

The Roosevelts sailed from New York on April 11. They are hunting in the interests of the James Simpson and Field Museums of Chicago.

BRITISH SUBVENTION AVERTS COAL TIE-UP

By T. R. YBARRA.

ing into the whole position of the mining industry and seeking an efficacious remedy for its troubles. Three members of the Court of Inquiry which submitted a report on Wednesday on the coal dispute probably also will be members of the new commission.

Prime Minister Baldwin is so worn out by his wearisome endeavors day after day to bring peace between the warring coal factions that he has canceled acceptance of an invitation to the Eisteddfod celebration in Wales.

Announcement Made in the House.

Under the shadow of the coal crisis the House of Commons carried on languidly this afternoon a debate on the insurance bill. Shortly after it met the chief Government whip announced the Prime Minister was not in a position to make any statement on the mining difficulty since negotiations still were proceeding and it was not even certain he would be able to do so before the House rose. Under such circumstances a few members listened to the speeches on unemployment, but the lobbies were crowded with anxious legislators waiting for news of the coal crisis. Word finally came that the Prime Minister would be able to make a statement at 4 o'clock and Tom Shaw, Labor Minister under the Socialist Government, was warned by Arthur Henderson in the middle of a fine fighting speech he must cut it short.

Mr. Baldwin entered amid cheers from his supporters. Reading from a sheet of note paper amid a dead silence the Premier said:

"A provisional agreement has been reached with the mine owners subject to district confirmation. All notices are suspended for a fortnight. The miners' executives are sending out the following telegrams: 'Notices suspended, continue work.' If there is any local hitch owing to the lateness of the hour at which the settlement has been arrived at, I trust all parties will cooperate to remove it."

Cheers greeted the Premier's statement. Mr. Lloyd George asked Mr. Baldwin if he could say anything about conditions of the settlement and what public commitments were involved. The Premier replied the negotiations were only completed "within the last five minutes." He promised information would be given by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the press.

Cost Estimated at £10,000,000.

The satisfaction of the British taxpayer over suspension of the strike is tempered by the knowledge that whatever the Government pays by way of subvention to the mining industry will come out of his pockets. The cost to the nation is estimated at £10,000,000. Thus it is argued that other big industries, especially shipping, suffering from general depression may be encouraged to demand similar consideration and the taxpayer is wondering where in that event the drain upon his purse will end.

Newspaper editorial articles express relief that the catastrophe is averted—anyway for the present—but there is not much enthusiasm over the terms of the Government's bargain, which is described by one paper as purchase of a settlement at the expense of the taxpayer. Some papers declare the Government surrendered to blackmail and violence and predict the true will end with trade union leaders as determined as ever to plunge the country into industrial strife, but at the same time there is a good deal of sympathy expressed for the miners. A prominent Cabinet Minister said last night: "There is strong feeling in our party that the standard of life of the miner is not so high that we could afford to see it reduced, and this was a factor in the Government's decision."

The Daily Mail, which is the severest critic of the terms of the settlement, charges Mr. Baldwin, who had declared there would be no Government subsidy, with changing his mind under threats from a band of conspirators who had planned to blockade the nation—"a number of trade union wire pullers," it says, "who are carrying out orders of Zinovieff and imagine themselves to be little Trotskys and Lenins."

More moderate opinion is Mr. Baldwin had a choice of two evils and accepted the right one in the circumstances. It is realized the alternative was a general hold-up of the life of the country, which might speedily have resulted in complete paralysis of the public services and a cost to the Exchequer of scores of millions sterling more than the subvention it now is called upon to pay.

Step Toward Unification of Mines.

LONDON, July 31 (AP).—A report, which cannot be vouched for, says the miners secured from the Government an undertaking to make effective the recommendations of the Royal Commission when its report, following investigation of conditions in the coal industry, is made. Judging from the history of previous inquiries into the industry it would seem this might mean some sort of coordination or unification of the country's mining resources for more effective and economic working, or the pooling of profits for the general benefit of the workers.

Comment already is heard to the effect that England is adopting the "dumping" policy with regard to coal which she already had deprecated in the case of the German Government providing assistance to promote the export of Ruhr coal, for it is not concealed that the real purpose of subvention is to enable British coal to compete abroad.

The Government's solution of the coal mine problem will have to run the gauntlet of parliamentary debate next week. The Government has an ample majority to carry its proposals in the House of Commons, but it is not likely to escape strong adverse criticism.

The mine owners have hotly resented the report of the recent Inquiry Court, which expressed the view that there was room for improvement in the economic and efficient working of mines; but it is generally agreed that if any effective remedy for present conditions is to be found the Royal Commission will need to recommend some drastic measures.

In an editorial article written before the Government's decision on the coal situation was made known, The Weekly Economist says: "The more carefully guarded subsidies were the more surely they would involve control, which must lead rapidly and directly to national ownership."

The miners are elated at what they regard as a great victory, and their elation is shared by the entire labor world, which hails the great solidarity displayed by the trade union movement in supporting the miners in the present situation. This is the first time in the history of the labor movement in Great Britain that such an effective union has been secured. It was undoubtedly this exhibition of solidarity that finally broke down the Government's reluctance to adopt the policy of State assistance.

AMANFORD, Carmathenshire, Wales, July 31 (AP).—Further disturbances occurred during the night in the anthracite district, somewhat similar to those which took place early yesterday morning, when striking miners visited the collieries, intimidating the officials and ordering the safety men to withdraw from the pits.

The strikers, singing the "Red Flag," visited a number of the pits again last night and demanded a reduction in the number of safety men, but they were dispersed by the police after a baton charge.

BRITISH TRADE SUFFERS.

Decline Noted in Shipbuilding and Other Industries.

LONDON, July 31 (AP).—The coal crisis dominates Great Britain, says the July trade report of the American Chamber of Commerce in London. After summarizing the history of the trouble in the mining industry, the report cites the shipbuilding situation as among the adverse factors in British industry. It points out that the ninth yard on the River Wear closed down this month, only seven berths out of fifty-three being occupied. It says further that 420 ships, totaling 777,179 tons, were laid up on July 1 in United Kingdom ports.

Attention is called to the fact that Stanley Machin, President of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, after receiving answers to a circular from the various Chambers of Commerce, urged the Government to take drastic steps to meet the abnormally depressed state of British trade.

The number of unemployed is 1,221,900, which is 180,116 more than a year ago. The report also points out that the adverse trade balance has widened as compared with last year.

There has also been a marked decline in pig iron and steel production. The cotton trade is depressed and extra short time working is recommended in the American section.

American support has been disappointing in the London wool sales. The sales prices index for June was 157.7 compared with 171 in January.

The total importation of gold since April 28, when the gold standard was restored, has been £8,511,000.

SOFT COAL MEN CUT WAGES.

Special to The New York Times.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., July 31.—The threat voiced by President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, in Scranton several weeks ago, that unless operators in the bituminous coal fields discontinued the breaking of wage contracts, a general strike of all coal miners would be called, was partly explained today when it was learned that some of the largest producing coal concerns in Northern West Virginia, including the Consolidation Coal Company, have repudiated their Baltimore agreement and are now paying the 1917 wage scale in their pits.

The method of breaking the wage pact agreement is simple and effective. Operators desiring to do so are quietly withdrawing from the Northern West Virginia Coal Operators' Association which signed the scale in Baltimore in March, 1924, calling for the same wages as the Jacksonville agreement, and then going on their own hook, cutting the pay of their men to the 1917 figures.

Coal Prices Advanced 20 to 25 Cents a Ton; Strike Threat of Miners Given as Cause

Prices of domestic size anthracite coal in New York were advanced yesterday from 20 to 25 cents a ton, effective today, because, it was said, of an increased demand against a slackening supply due to the threat of a miners' strike.

Burns Brothers announced the price of nut and egg coal was increased from $13.80 to $14 per ton, stove coal from $14.30 to $14.50 per ton and broken coal from $13.25 to $13.50 per ton. Some dealers also said they would increase their prices similarly, but that the prices of pea coal and buckwheat, the latter of which is used in heating apartment houses, would remain unchanged. These classes of coal are sold at from $5.40 to $9 a ton.

The Philadelphia and Reading Coal Company has announced a straight advance of 10 cents a ton on all sizes, wholesale. The Delaware & Hudson advanced broken sizes 25 cents, egg 15 cents, stove and chestnut 10 cents, and reduced the price of pea 40 cents. M. A. Hanna & Co. advanced all sizes from broken to pea 10 cents. The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western advanced egg, stove and chestnut 10 cents a ton.

Coal prices here are usually advanced 10 cents per ton Aug. 1, with another 10 cents increase Sept. 1. Dealers said both increases were added at this time because they had been forced to pay higher prices to independent miners from whom they were forced to buy to supply the increased demand.

Fifty drivers and helpers employed by the Philip Dietz Coal Company in Ridgewood, Queens, struck yesterday for an increase of $2 in their weekly wages of $35 and $29 and for an eight-hour day instead of a when-finished day. Men were brought from another coal yard to take their places and police were called to protect them from picketers.

FLEET TO GIVE DANCE FOR MELBOURNE FOLK

Coontz Issues 2,000 Invitations for First Important American Entertainment.

MELBOURNE, July 31.—Australians are continuing their unbounded hospitality toward the officers and men of the American fleet, both here and in Sydney. Their hospitality has never varied for a moment since the arrival of the warships and the people here have been surprised and shocked over reports that the American sailors have been misused by Australians. The ill rumors have now been effectually dispelled.

While the usual rounds of entertainment of the visitors continue unabated preparations are being made for the first big event in the way of return hospitality by Americans. Admiral Coontz on Monday will give a reception and dance aboard the Pennsylvania. More than two thousand invitations have been issued.

Correspondents of provincial newspapers in Victoria and New South Wales are telegraphing long accounts of the cordial reception given to American officers and men throughout the country where they are touring in special trains.

Enjoyable week-end affairs are being given for golfers. Three-day parties are organized and special railway cars carry the golfers out and bring them back.

Bluejackets are giving the Australians a treat by staging numerous American football games, a sport which Australians do not know much about and which many consider too rough.

Two Sailors Wed in Melbourne.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 1 (AP).—The bonds of friendship between the visiting American sailors and the Australians have been reinforced in two cases by the bonds of matrimony, public records disclose today.

More marriages of bluejackets and Australian girls are anticipated, one fleet officer estimating that probably fifty such ceremonies would be performed before the fleet leaves Melbourne.

A seaplane attached to the Pennsylvania dived into the sea yesterday. The pilot and the mechanic were rescued.

Hobart Plans Welcome for Cruisers.

HOBART, Tasmania, July 31 (AP).—A great welcome is being prepared by the Tasmanians for the American cruisers due in Hobart Wednesday. The program of entertainment provided for the visitors includes trips to the most famous beauty spots and holiday resorts, a parade, a civic reception, a dinner at the Government House, dances both for the officers and men and sports of all kinds, including baseball.

GERMANY SEEKS ADDED PRODUCTION ON FARMS

Reichstag Will Consider Measures to Make Country Self-Supporting From Food Standpoint.

BERLIN, July 31 (AP).—Measures providing for an extensive program of intensified agriculture will be considered soon in the Reichstag. This program will be part of extensive plans for a nation-wide study of Germany's immediate economic needs. Increased agricultural production and the general improvement of social conditions especially will be sought. The ultimate goal is to make Germany self-supporting from the standpoint of food production.

A "back to the farm" campaign will be undertaken, with model experimental farms in various sections, farm cooperative organizations and increased school facilities. These and other improvements will be used as arguments to town and city dwellers in favor of farm life.

The program has the support of all parties of the Reichstag which nominally support the Luther Cabinet. These members are convinced of the necessity of making Germany independent of grain and meat imports. They maintain that in the present state of world markets and in view of the restrictions of German exports under the Versailles Treaty, the currency of Germany can be protected against renewed inflation only by increasing home production of all agricultural products.

There is considerable sentiment for unrestricted importation of frozen meats from the United States in order to reduce prices to the consumer here. Most German housewives continue to regard frozen meat unfavorably, but apparently its importation is the only relief available for city residents, who at present must pay high prices for meat.

DISBARRED LAWYER FREED.

Isquith Must Pay Back $1,000 He Admitted Stealing.

Louis I. Isquith, a disbarred lawyer of 1,525 East Fifty-third Street, Brooklyn, was placed on probation under suspended sentence yesterday by Judge Alfred J. Talley in General Sessions on condition that he would make restitution of $1,000 he admitted having stolen from Warren J. MacEvoy of 7 North Tenth Street, Newark.

Isquith told MacEvoy at the former's office at 130 West Forty-second Street that he put up $1,000 in Liberty bonds for MacEvoy's brother John, then under charges which since have been dismissed. Warren MacEvoy thereupon gave Isquith $1,000 to replace the bonds with the understanding he was to get his money back when the case against his brother was disposed of. When he asked for the money Isquith gave him a worthless check. It developed later that Isquith never had put up any bonds for John MacEvoy.

FRENCH PLAN SEEKS AMITY WITH SOVIET

Victor Dalbiez's Proposals Are Expected to Remove Obstacles.

Paris Said to Be Ready to Restore Fleet to Russians—Krassin May Act on Debts.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 31.—Franco-Russian relations have undergone a striking and apparently sudden improvement. Without suggesting that settlement of the various difficulties between the two countries can be rapid or easy, it can nevertheless be confidently stated that initial obstacles preventing such results are now removed. These obstacles were of a dual character—moral and material. Firstly, a mutual spirit of suspicion and stubbornness; secondly, the questions of the Russian war fleet, evacuated from the Black Sea by General Wrangel and now lying in the French Colonial harbor at Bizerta, and the French pre-war loans to the Czarist Government.

Ever since the day when France, recognizing the Soviet Union, declared the difficulties between the two countries could be settled by negotiations the road to the negotiations has been blocked by the Soviet demand that the fleet should first be restored unconditionally and by the French reply that restoration of the fleet depended on the Soviet agreement to admit liability of its pre-war debt.

The solution of the deadlock over the problem was found by Victor Dalbiez, former Minister of the Herriot Cabinet, who three months ago was nominated President of the French Commission on Russian Affairs.

One of the ablest of the younger French politicians belonging to the Left Wing and a dominant figure of the Radical Socialist Party, M. Dalbiez has long been convinced that there was little hope for a real peace and security for Europe in general, and France in particular, as long as the Soviet Union should remain hostile and in isolation.

Had Plan Years Ago.

Years ago, despite the uncompromising position of the Poincaré Government, he conceived a plan for the reestablishment of friendly political and economic relations between the Soviet Union and the rest of the world. His recent appointment as President of the Franco-Russian Commission gave him his opportunity and it may well be that a "Dalbiez plan" will soon be a worthy successor in the task of post-war reconstruction to the Dawes plan.

During the past week the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES had many conversations with M. Dalbeiz on his plan and Franco-Russian affairs generally. M. Dalbeiz wants it understood that although it is now his primary object to attain friendship and cooperation between France and Russia, his original idea was that other nations might and should take part. The correspondent is now able to state that France is willing to make a "beau geste" of restoring the Black Sea fleet to the Soviet Union unconditionally. On the other hand, the Russian "White" newspapers published in Paris announced yesterday that the Soviet Ambassador, M. Krassin, had brought back from his recent visit to Moscow an offer of an arrangement for part, at least, of the pre-revolution debt to France without preliminary assurance of French credits—it will be remembered that the Soviet Union insisted on this condition in similar negotiations with Britain but with a proviso that the Soviet Union be called on to make no payments incompatible with its budgetary capacity.

This information is perhaps not absolutely correct, but it is significant, first because neither M. Dalbiez nor M. Krassin has issued a denial, and, second, Russian funds and industrials have risen on the French Bourse in the last two days, in some cases as much as 30 per cent.

The fact is that M. Dalbiez, with the full approval of Premier Painlevé and Foreign Minister Briand, has managed to put Franco-Russian relations on a friendly footing and that the present "conversations" will give place to formal negotiations as soon as possible, probably early in September. Both sides have high hopes of a satisfactory issue.

Marshal Haig Sails From Canada.

MONTREAL, July 31 (AP).—Earl Haig, British Field Marshal, who has toured Canada aiding in the affiliation of all ex-service men's organizations into one branch of the British Empire Service League, sailed for home today. A military guard of honor, a military band and hundreds of civilians assembled at the pier to wish him bon voyage.

KATO TO REORGANIZE THE JAPANESE CABINET

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, July 31.—The coalition Cabinet at noon today formally resigned as a result of the Seiyukai Ministers breaking up of the Cabinet meeting yesterday after refusing to resign individually when they disagreed with the proposed new taxation policy.

The Prince Regent has requested Viscount Kato to continue until his successor is appointed, probably tomorrow. Observers believe that Kato will be commanded to re-form the Cabinet, replacing the Seiyukai Ministers with Kenseikai men of his own. Kato will be unable to continue in power after the Diet convenes in December, when it is believed he will dissolve the Diet and appeal to the electorate.

If Kato is not renamed Premier the post probably will go to a non-party man like Viscount Goto or former Premier Admiral Yamamoto.

If it is Yamamoto no change in foreign policy would be anticipated. Under Goto, who is an ardent Russophile, the foreign policy might turn against America and England, although Goto is considered too wily to make any sudden changes.

Baron Tanaka's manoeuvres came to light immediately after the Cabinet's resignation, when the members of his party, the Seiyukai, conferred with members of the Seiyuhonto and argued for "close cooperation," which is seen as the first step in the amalgamation toward which Tanaka has been working since recently becoming President of the Seiyukai.

The Seiyuhonto President, Tokonami, today for the first time announced his approval of the amalgamation, indicating his willingness to become Vice President of a new party with Tanaka as President.

Thus, it is expected that Tanaka will become Premier this Winter if the enlarged electorate maintains the present relative strength of all parties in the new Diet.

MRS. SHAW TO GET $6,000.

Referee Recommends More Allowance for Western Trip.

A report filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Harry N. French as referee states that, although Mrs. Charlotte I. G. Shaw, who was declared incompetent in 1901, has an allowance of $50,000 a year, it is not sufficient to enable her to make a trip to her estate at Colorado Springs this Fall. For that reason the referee approves an application by her husband, Robert N. Shaw of Boston, that an allowance of $6,000 for the expenses of Mrs. Shaw and a companion be granted.

The papers show that Mrs. Shaw, who is a niece of Lewis Cass Ledyard, has trust property valued at $1,500,000 from which the income is in excess of $92,000 a year. She lives at 170 West Fifty-ninth Street, and is not under restrictions except as to the management of her property.

BARS STATEN ISLAND BUSES.

Justice Cropsey Holds That Corporation Operated Illegally.

Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey in Brooklyn signed an injunction yesterday restraining the Tompkins Bus Corporation of Staten Island from operating in that borough.

The concern has been running eight buses between the New Dorp station of the Staten Island Railroad and Cedar Grove Beach. Such operation, wrote Justice Cropsey in his decision, was "an unlawful enterprise, by virtue of the fact that the corporation failed to secure a certificate of necessity and convenience from the Transit Commission and had no franchise."

The injunction was obtained by thirty taxicab drivers of Staten Island, headed by Anthony Marcianti of St. George.

PAINLEVE THANKS HOOVER.

Glad Delegates Were Sent to Decorative Arts Exposition.

PARIS, July 31 (AP).—Premier Painlevé today gave to Henry Creange, a member of the American delegation to the Decorative Arts Exposition here, a letter to Secretary Hoover, thanking him for sending the delegation.

The Premier told Mr. Creange he hoped this would be only the beginning of lasting relations between France and the United States in matters of industrial art.

Mr. Creange and other members of the party will sail for New York tomorrow on the Mauretania.

YOUTH IS ACQUITTED OF KILLING BROTHER

VERDICT QUICKLY RETURNED

Prosecutor in Jersey Had Charged That the Prisoner Was in Love With Victim's Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGETON, N. J., July 31.—Howard Moore, 19 years old, was acquitted this afternoon in the Cumberland County Court of the murder of his brother, Thomas Moore Jr., who was killed with a shotgun fired through the window of their home in Millville late in January. The jury was out one hour and thirteen minutes.

The verdict caused no excitement. Just before the jurors retired Justice Luther A. Campbell had warned persons in the court room against a demonstration. When the foreman announced the verdict Moore smiled and, arm-in-arm with his attorney, Francis A. Stanger Jr., left the court room.

Throughout the three days of the trial the prosecution's attempts to entangle Moore were unsuccessful. On the witness stand he told his story in a straightforward manner and could not be shaken by cross-questioning. He accounted for his movements on the night of the murder, admitting that he had returned home only a few minutes after the shooting occurred.

Prosecutor Tuso built the State's case upon the theory that Moore had killed his brother because he was in love with the latter's wife, Mrs. Hilda Moore, a pretty young woman of his own age. In support of this theory the Prosecutor sought to introduce a number of witnesses. Among those called today were Louis Steelman and Mrs. Edna Shaw.

But Steelman, instead of proving a good witness for the prosecution, aided the defense materially when he testified that Thomas Moore Sr., father of the boys, had told him the day after the shooting that he believed the shot which killed his son was intended for him.

Mrs. Shaw's testimony was even more damaging to the State's cause. She told how at the time the shooting occurred Frank Young, a half-brother of the Moore boys, came to her house in a highly nervous condition and began looking over his automobile. Young disappeared that same night and has not been seen since.

Moore's counsel had sought to introduce this testimony in the records several times, but each time had been overruled by the Court. When he finally succeeded through one of the State's own witnesses Prosecutor Tuso called Mrs. Shaw from the stand and dismissed her.

The verdict was a popular one. The jury was composed of seven men and five women.

BONUS FOR 7,500 WORKERS.

Yonkers Concern Expected to Distribute $500,000 Today.

Seventy-five hundred employes of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company at Yonkers are looking forward to the payment today of the company's semi-annual bonus, which probably will means the distribution of around $500,000.

For twelve years the company has paid a bonus of from 5 to 15 per cent. of an employe's earnings every six months. The percentage depends upon the length of service. The company has paid out more than $5,000,000 in this way.

Irish Free State Favors Arbitration.

GENEVA, July 31 (AP).—The Irish Free State's views concerning the Geneva peace protocol were officially transmitted today to all members of the League of Nations. These views had been embodied in a statement made in the Dail Eireann at Dublin by Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister for External Affairs, on May 13 last, when he criticized the system of sanctions incorporated in the protocol as unworkable and liable to prevent disarmament, and favored the extension of arbitration as the most feasible means of attaining peace.

Bijur Estate Valued at $891,944.

The estate of Abraham Bijur, tobacco merchant, a resident of New Jersey, who died May 1, 1922, was appraised yesterday at $891,944, of which $776,191 was taxable in New York. His interest in E. Rosenwald & Bros. was valued at $765,406. The bulk of the estate went to his daughter, Elizabeth.

TO REST DEBT CASE ON PARLEYS HERE

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

France from being caught in what the French fearfully regard as a squeeze play, analogous to that by which England and America got them to renounce their claim on the Rhine in exchange for a treaty guaranty which did not materialize; they do not want to be left holding the bag in case of Germany's failure to carry out the Dawes plan. It seems to that, that after repairing themselves the damage everybody did in the war, they are being asked by America to pay whether Germany does or not, and told by England they must pay if Germany does not. The composite French reply to this proposition is "Jamais de la vie," which translated into American means, "not on your life."

This is M. Caillaux's nightmare. He knows, whatever he may do at home, if he commits France to paying England and America, even if Germany does not pay, his reputation as a financial wizard will be drowned in the swelling conviction that he is a worse post-war politician than he was a pre-war.

M. Caillaux's personal idea is that the French people can pay 2,000,000,000 or 2,500,000,000 francs annually toward settling with England and America once reconstruction work is completed, which will be in a couple of years, and if Germany carries out the Dawes plan. He wants Washington and London to agree, not to a Dawes plan for France—one must not apply the same term to the conquered and victorious nations—but he wants done for France the most important thing the Dawes plan did for Germany, that is to regulate the transfer of these francs so as not to hurt French exchange. In arriving at this figure of about $125,000,000 at the franc exchange M. Caillaux planned 95 to the pound. He counted on settling with England for about $25,000,000 a year, with the rest for America. He counted that of the $160,000,000 England pays annually to Washington, Great Britain's 22 per cent. share of reparations should yield $125,000,000 and France would pay $25,000,000, leaving England to get the small remainder from Italy, Russia or anybody else who owed her money. The higher English demand has, of course, affected the plan, so that after all, as it looks now, the whole business will depend on what is done at Washington.

The personnel of the French Mission which is expected to go to Washington in September is not yet announced. M. Caillaux has said he will go for a short while if he can get away. There are important political considerations and the Finance Minister's departure for the American capital may well depend on developments here as well as in Washington between now and leaving time. The measure in which the Finance Minister would desire the credit of an acceptable settlement with America is also the measure of his disinclinaton to run the danger of failure to make a settlement or to be manipulated into making a settlement by which he would pledge France to pay the United States whether or not Germany pays France.

Negotiations Not Broken Off.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 31.—The French financial experts departed for Paris this morning and the Anglo-French debt negotiations reached a serious stage. The British official view, however, is quite clear—they have not been broken off. The idea here is that the French came to London with certain definite plans of concluding a bargain, but discovered they were very far from British views of the situation. The result is after days of discussion that they have been thoroughly informed of British notions of what they should pay and have now returned to Paris to lay their information before M. Caillaux and the French Cabinet.

The British Treasury hopes to see them return and anticipates they will do so in the next few weeks, as later they would be sending a mission to Washington, and it would be evidently improbable they would carry on two sets of delicate negotiations at different capitals simultaneously.

French newspapers have declared the amount Great Britain asked for is £20,000,000 annually. This was categorically denied today in official quarters here, and it is stated England has named no definite sum. She has always made her expectation from the Allies depend on how much she needed to add to German reparation payments to bring them up to the equivalent of her own payments to the United States and has declined to make binding calculation on what the Dawes scheme is going to bring her in during the long period it will run.

The British Treasury has no intention of impairing any claim she may make on France ten years hence by reason of the failure of the Dawes payments to come up to present expectations by any admissions she may make now. Moreover, considerable difference developed in the negotiations between what France and England reckon the Dawes payments are worth. France is inclined to be optimistic, and according to one French newspaper considers the terms she is offering equivalent to £6,000,000 annually. England is much more cautious and considers £6,000,000 altogether too high an estimate.

This guessing at what the Dawes plan will produce has been an important part in the negotiations, because France is desirous that England shall take over some of her share under the Dawes plan. This, it will be remembered, provided a gross amount paid by Germany each year to be divided in 100 shares, of which France would get fifty-two and England twenty-two. France has suggested that since she has to pay England certain sums each year and also receive certain others from Germany, it would be much simpler if she were to assign a certain number of her Dawes shares to England and reckon them as worth so much in calculating what actual cash must cross the Channel. England, however, points out that simplicity might be bought at the expense of her exchange on Berlin.

The question as to whether England ought to look to Russia for some portion of the money due her, which at one time threatened to play an awkward part in the negotiations, fortunately has dropped into the background and the French attitude as stated tonight is easier. France is becoming reconciled to making herself responsible for a larger share of the amount Britain expects to collect from her allies and may in the end consent to bear 70 to 75 per cent. of the total.

Balance of Trade Enters Discussion.

PARIS, July 31 (AP).—The full meaning of the return of the French delegation from London tonight will be known, it is said, only when a formal report is made. However, it is said the principal reason for the return of the French delegates is that each side had reached the limit of the instructions from its Government and therefore it was necessary for consultation with the authorities at home.

It is understood the British want the French capacity for payment to be determined by the balance of trade between France and Great Britain, which now is favorable to France. The French say their capacity to transfer money for the payment of foreign debts depends upon the balance of their total foreign trade, which now is favorable to France only because of the depreciation of the franc. It is maintained that the stabilization of the franc, which is one of the essential conditions for the payment of France's foreign debts, will mean the disappearance of this artificial balance in favor of France.

CALLS EARTHQUAKES MENACE TO OUR OIL

Engineering-Economic Foundation Points to Peril as Shock Zone Spreads.

URGES STUDY OF PROBLEM

YEAR'S SERIES OF TREMORS

Beginning in Canada, They Have Extended Almost to Gulf—Significance of Thursday's Shocks.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 31.—Upon receipt of news of earthquake tremors affecting territory in four States—Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas—the Engineering-Economics Foundation, which is engaged in organization of knowledge of earthquake hazard made the following statement:

"This latest of the great group of earthquakes which have occurred during the past year is significant from three points of view.

"First—That this shock extends the line of man-felt earthquakes of this present series, which started July 14, 1924, in Upper Canada, almost to the Gulf of Mexico.

"Second—Because of the historical relationships of this shock to the other great earthquakes of the Southwest. Towns from which shock is reported lie in the earthquake area adjacent to the New Madrid (Mo.) area, from which in 1811 came the severest earthquake that the United States has ever known.

"Third—From the position of the area affected, lying at the end of the long line of known oil-producing regions stretching from the lower St. Lawrence on the north to the mid-continental fields and the Southwest.

"Consider these three points in order:

"First—The earthquake of Thursday was the twenty-second in the present series of earthquakes of North America, some of which have had more than a hundred tremors. These have now progressed through thirteen months.

"Second—In the past no section of the country has suffered from earthquakes of high intensity more than has the Southwest. The greatest earthquake known on this continent was felt throughout this area and centred at New Madrid, Mo. This was the earthquake of 1811, one of whose heaviest shocks occurred at the same time as the great earthquake of Caracas, where thousands of people were crushed beneath the ruins of their stone houses.

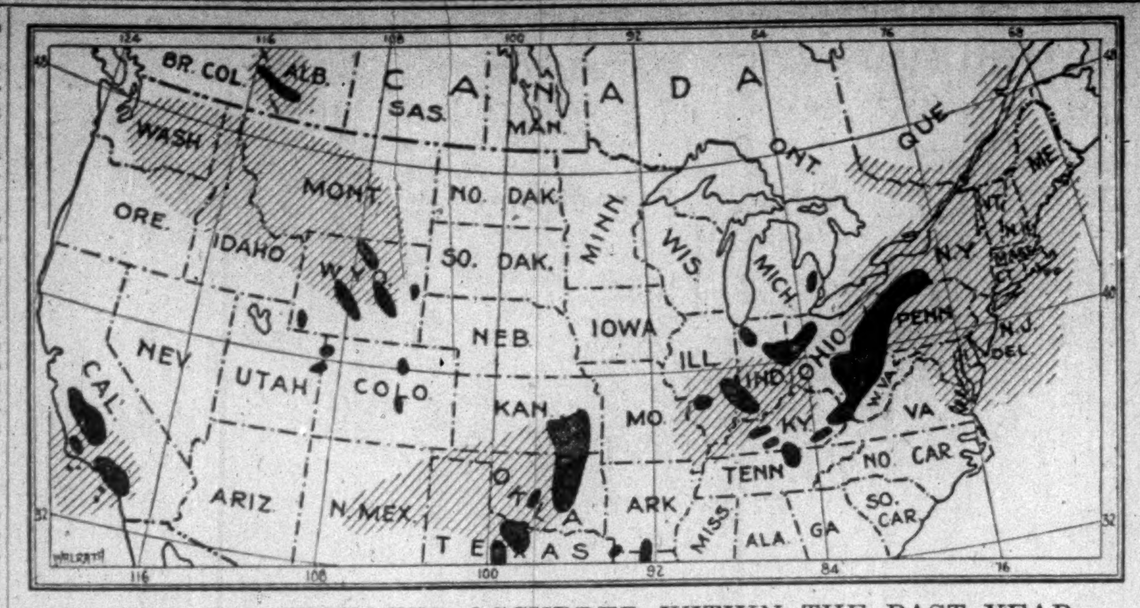
Coincidence of Severe Shocks.

"The coincidence of the earthquakes at New Madrid and Caracas will be inevitably called to mind by those who read, in the same column which held the report from the Southwest, the account of the Cerignola earthquake, with a thousand houses damaged, in Italy.

"The effects of the New Madrid earthquake of 1811 are well attested by eye witnesses, and consideration of these effects is of importance in any consideration of the oil problem and earthquake hazard. A considerable bibliography on this subject is available. The tremors of the spasm of 1811 continued for a considerable period of years. In one shock the earth was in constant motion for an hour. 'Visibly waving as a sea.'

"The waves of the earth at their highest point burst, throwing up large volumes of sand, water, and in some cases shale, and producing large quantities of fissures of great depth. The record of the fissures formed is interesting to those who have seen the pictures, now in the files of the foundation, of the fissures found in Quebec following the earthquake of Feb. 28, 1925, and in Santa Barbara, following the shock of June 29, or who have read of the fissures formed in New England and Canada by earthquake in the eighteenth century.

"Some of the fissures caused by the New Madrid earthquake had a depth of twenty-eight feet. The most notable effect of the earthquake was the formation of Reel Foot Lake in Tennessee—a lake seventy-eight miles long and three to twenty miles wide, in some places fifty to a hundred feet deep. Lofty forest trees sank with the lake, and for decades afterward were to be seen with dead branches and almost entirely covered with water. This fact of lake formation lends special interest to the formation of Gros Ventre Lake in Wyoming at the time of the Wyoming earthquakes of this year.



WHERE EARTHQUAKES OCCURRED WITHIN THE PAST YEAR.

Two Other New Madrid Quakes.

"The New Madrid earthquake was one of three serious earthquakes which this region has felt in a little more than a century. The area suffered markedly on Oct. 7, 1857, and on Oct. 31, 1895. The upper part of the area was touched by the earthquake of April 9, 1917.

"The possibility of serious earthquake shock, especially as affecting oil distribution systems in this whole zone, therefore, is one which demands careful thought from the viewpoint of earthquake history.

"Third, as regards the oil supply problem and earthquake hazard, with the spread of earthquake hazard this year into these four States, with tremors coming down almost to the Gulf of Mexico, we find the last link formed in the chain of earthquake terrain, which started on the upper St. Lawrence, spread down through the Province of Quebec, came into Maine, came down by another step to Bridgewater and Scituate, Mass., came down to Norfolk, Va., then the territory below Pittsburgh, and has at last come almost to the Gulf of Mexico. This line is not only a great earthquake line stretching along the east, it is also a line of oil production. In this latter relationship this spread of earthquake hazard becomes of primary importance to every city dweller in the eastern part of the United States.

"Through the shaded areas on the map, which show the places where men have felt earthquake shock in the past thirteen months, run the lines showing the great pipe lines that carry the oil from the fields to the cities. In that area are oil reservoirs, oil pumping stations and the whole complicated apparatus by which the basic necessity of oil flows to our doors.

"The fact that that great machinery of oil distribution is now almost entirely involved in the earthquake hazard adds greatly to earthquake menace in the cities. Only the pipe line to the Gulf and the pipe line from Wyoming to Missouri are outside this area.

Oil Machinery Easily Damaged.

"The oil machinery of distribution, moreover, is largely susceptible to earthquake shocks. Machines of various types used are so finely adjusted that a moderately severe shock will throw them out of alignment. Pipe lines are as susceptible as water mains to destruction. The history of past earthquakes has shown that storage reservoirs, in which liquid like oil can be swayed from side to side, are peculiarly liable to injury. Throw the oil distributing system out of gear by a shock which disturbs its every part and the fuel which feeds the automobile, the gas burner and the oil heater is no longer provided, and the oil by which the machines of the city are lubricated ceases to flow.

"Consider for a moment this great service of oil and its relationship to the earthquake hazard. Think back and see how necessary oil is to a great part of the acts of every one's daily life. Then think of what happens when into the distributing system which provides us with oil comes a controlling force—earthquake. That controlling force has the power to break down every part of the distributing system if men do not build up protection against its destructive force.

"There is a way, and only one way, to build up protection against the destructive force of earthquake, to secure protection to men and to insure the continual delivery of oil and other necessary services of the city. When a controlling factor like earthquakes comes into the city's services there is no other way of meeting the situation save through the organization of scientific knowledge.

"Briefly, what such organization of scientific knowledge means, in oil service, is this: The terrain through which the oil distributing service runs must be studied throughout from the viewpoint of earthquake hazard. The physics underlying all the structure of distribution must be studied from the viewpoint of earthquake hazard. The problems of fire coming from oil must be studied from the viewpoint of emergency of earthquake hazard. And the men who carry on that service must be taught by organized teaching the conditions of earthquake hazard under which their work is to be carried on.

"Every effective act of protection against earthquake shock depends upon prior development of scientific knowledge of the means of protection. For serious earthquake hazard, when it comes, brings destruction in its path to all except those who are willing to learn. The man who thinks to control earthquake without knowledge is destroyed with the same surety that the man who is not willing to learn how to sail his boat is destroyed if he is out in a heavy storm at sea.

"The only safety for the community as a whole in such a period of hazard as this is the fact that in both the United States and Canada there are men who are willing to learn and, having learned, can act wisely on a basis of knowledge."

EX-MINISTER HELD UNDER MANN ACT

Deposed Kleagle, Brought From Texas on Embezzling Charge, Also Is Sued for Divorce.

SAYS HE AND GIRL WILL WED

Charges Wife Ordered Him Out and He Obeyed—Companion Was to Have Been Married Today.

R. Carl Ziegler, former minister of a church at Hope, Warren County, N. J., and deposed Kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan there, and Miss Margaret Roberts, a Trenton stenographer with whom he eloped to El Paso, leaving his wife and two children, were held yesterday by United States Commissioner George Sommer at Newark in $2,000 bail for examination Aug. 11 on a charge of conspiring to violate the Mann act. They had surrendered earlier in the day, and as they were leaving the Federal Building Ziegler was served with papers in a suit for divorce brought Thursday by his wife at Trenton.

Ziegler, accompanied by Miss Roberts, had been brought from Texas charged with embezzling $1,000 of Klan funds, for which he had been ejected from office. They were at the home of his parents at Milford, Pa., Thursday night when they were told Federal warrants had been sworn against them and were persuaded to give themselves up. They came to Newton, N. J., spending the night at the home of a friend, and went yesterday morning to Newark.

Commissioner Sommer was unable then to give them an immediate arraignment because the warrants had been sent to Trenton. The couple remained until late in the afternoon in the office of Deputy United States Marshal Paul McLoughlin until the papers were brought by Deputy United States Marshal Marie Ewing. The General Casualty and Surety Company gave the bond.

Neither Ziegler nor Miss Roberts would discuss the case at Newark, but at Milford shortly before their departure for New Jersey Ziegler said he had left his wife because she had ordered him from the house.

"Do you intend to marry her?" he was asked.

"Absolutely," he replied. "Don't I, Peg?" he asked, turning to her.

She nodded.

Today was to have been the wedding day of Miss Roberts to William H. Chamberlain. Invitations had been sent out for the event when she ran away with the minister. Chamberlain, it was said yesterday, wanted her to continue with the plans for the wedding, but she refused.

GOV. SMITH WELCOMES KENNY AT QUARANTINE

Governor Smith took another trip down the Bay yesterday to Quarantine to meet William F. Kenny, contractor and Honorary Deputy Fire Chief, who was returning on the George Washington of the United States Lines from Europe. The Governor went on the yacht owned by an old friend, William H. Todd, President of the Todd Shipyards Corporation, who accompanied him.

When the Governor boarded the liner the band played "The Sidewalks of New York." Mr. Kenny greeted him on the deck and passengers who recognized the Governor saluted him.

The Washington brought four stowaways in addition to the passengers from Bremen, Southampton and Cherbourg. One was a 21-year-old German girl, Anna Schroepper, who said she had boarded the ship at Bremen to see some friends off and had been carried away. The George Washington called at Southampton and Cherbourg, but the young lady did not make herself known until the liner had left the French port. She was given a cabin in the third class by order of Captain Harold Cunningham and will be deported to Germany with two other stowaways, also Germans.

The tree were sent to Ellis Island. Loeser Baskey, 19, the fourth, proved himself to be a citizen of the United States and was released at the pier in Hoboken.

John A. Harman, Sheriff of Kings County, returned with his family from a visit to England and Scotland. The absence of bill boards on the ancient walls of Holyrood Palace, Sterling Castle and Arthur's seat, made a strong appeal to him.

VIENNA, July 31.—An official delegation of the anti-Semitic Hakenkreuzler, which recently was accused of organizing riots in various parts of the city, today called on Foreign Minister Ramek to protest against holding the international Zionist Congress in Vienna.

Minister Ramek emphatically declared the congress would be held anyway and warned the Hakenkreuzler brusquely against terrorism and threatened vigorous measures if such a course were followed.

Two of the British freighters laden with rubber from Singapore and Penang, the Menelaus and the Siberian Prince, docked in Brooklyn yesterday morning and started discharging their valuable cargoes. The former went to the foot of Thirty-third Street and the latter to Pier 4, Bush Stores. The masters of both vessels had feared that they would not arrive here in time for July deliveries and the consignors would lose a big sum of money involved in contracts.

No time was wasted on the voyage after leaving the East Indies and at Port Said the coal bunkers were filled to capacity and several hundred tons piled on deck by Arab coolies. One officer who left his cabin door open for a few minutes found it filled with coal on his return.

According to a radio message received at noon yesterday from the Kansas she was 1,449 miles east of Ambrose Channel Lightship. If she is making an average of ten knots she will reach New York by Thursday morning, five days too late to fulfill the conditions of the rubber contracts, which call for delivery here on July 31. The total value of the rubber shipped on the three steamships was estimated to be $14,000,000.

Trading in the local crude rubber market yesterday was on a restricted scale, but prices moved upward rather sharply following the advices from abroad that the British Government, under the Stevenson restriction plan, allowed an increase of only 10 per cent. in the exportable allowance, effective today. In many quarters it was believed that the Government would announce a substantial increase in the exportable allowance, and this belief was partly responsible for the recent reaction in rubber prices from around $1.20 to below 90 cents a pound for spot delivery.

Ribbed smoked sheets for immediate delivery were quoted at 95 cents a pound, an advance of 6 cents compared with the previous close, while proportionate gains were reported in future contracts. The London market also was firmer yesterday. Following are the prices quoted in the market here:

	July.	Aug.	Sept.	Oct.-Dec.
First latex crepe	.95	.90	.85	.80
Amber, No. 3	.83	.80	.78	.75

BRITAIN EASES EXPORT OF COLONIAL RUBBER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 31.—It was officially announced tonight that the percentage standard of production of rubber exportable at the minimum export duty from Ceylon, the Straits Settlements and the Malay States for the quarter beginning Aug. 1 has been fixed at 75, an increase of 10 per cent.

In the opinion of the Colonial Office, not shared, however, by the rubber consumers, this increase, combined with the recent release of 6,000 tons of uncouponed rubber, will materially ease the situation.

David Moseley & Son of Manchester, tire manufacturers, announce that owing to the Stevenson restriction scheme, resulting in abnormally high prices of rubber, they have been obliged to raise the price of motor tires 15 per cent.

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP).—Announcement by the British Colonial Office today that restrictions on the export of rubber from British territory in Eastern Asia had been partially lifted was not considered by American officials as a step solely to meet representations of the American rubber industry but as an application of existing regulations on the subject. The American trade had hoped for more sweeping action.

AGREEMENT ON CHINA NEAR, COOLIDGE HEARS

State Department Tells President Nine Powers Have Only to Settle Details.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 31 (AP).—President Coolidge has been informed by the State Department that an agreement between the powers on China appears to be a certainty.

Information reaching the President is that the nine nations signatory to the Washington treaty are in agreement on the policy, but not yet on detail. The progress being made toward an understanding, however, is such that the Administration believes complete agreement is not far removed.

It is the President's understanding that a satisfactory accord will be reached embracing all points at issue, extraterritoriality included.

Mr. Coolidge is kept in constant touch with the situation through the State Department, the latest advices reaching him yesterday. At that time, it was stated today at White Court, the powers were so close to an agreement that Mr. Coolidge thought it possible that within twenty-four hours a complete accord would be reached.

SENT THREAT TO COOLIDGE.

TAMPA, Fla., July 31 (AP).—Norman Klein, known also as Norman Kulley and George Kelly, is under arrest here charged with violating a special act of Congress protecting the life of the President of the United States.

Klein, taken by agents of the Department of Justice, is being held incommunicado on specific charges of writing letters to President Coolidge threatening his life.

Department of Justice agents said today that Klein had been under observation here for three months. He was traced here after a chase that led all over the country.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 31 (AP).—White House officials and Secret Service men assigned to guard President Coolidge were unable to recall the case of Norman Klein, arrested at Tampa, Fla., on a charge of having threatened the life of the Executive.

It was explained that hundreds of letters of a more or less threatening nature, most of them from cranks, are received, and that those warranting investigation are turned over to district agents of the Secret Service. The arrest of Klein, it was said, probably resulted from a request for an investigation, the district agent being instructed to use his own judgment as to whether an arrest should be made.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY OF ARSON

Two Youths Charged With Setting Country Club Fires Freed on Bail.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 31.—James Devlin and Rudolph Leppert of Harrison pleaded not guilty today when arraigned before Police Justice Cornelius Sullivan in Harrison and were held for the Grand Jury on charges of arson, involving setting fire to five buildings on the grounds of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club early yesterday.

A few hours after the boys were locked up in the county jail at White Plains, District Attorney Arthur Rowland and Mayor Frederick E. Weeks of White Plains, attorney for Leppert, agreed to set bail at $7,500 apiece and the boys were released when Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins approved surety bonds in those amounts.

Grand Jury indictments for arson are expected next week and the youth will be placed on trial in October.

PETAIN RETURNS TO REPORT ON RIFF

ANOTHER POST IS LOST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 31.—Marshal Petain landed at Marseilles this morning in comparative secrecy, for only a few officials had heard he was due there. Mme. Petain and General Mangin, commander of the Fifteenth Army Corps region, greeted him at the wharf. The Marshal was dressed in mufti, with his face bronzed by the African sun.

Despite the smile of the Marshal, it is believed his mission to Paris is in dead earnest. Reports from time to time indicate there have been insufficient reinforcements. But as Marshal Petain would not tell anything, and as the Government is anxiously awaiting his report, which he evidently wishes to make as strong as possible by delivering it personally instead of at the end of a long cable, it may be he has returned to seek greater forces for Morocco than contemplated by the Government.

The Quai d'Orsay issued a fresh denial that there were any Abd-el-Krim peace terms. This daily denial is necessary because of many recent reports purporting to announce peace offers from the Riff and giving a digest of them. Repeated denials appear to have disconcerted the ultrapacifist group in Paris while the Nationalists are only more insistent that France should fight this war and not seek to patch up the affair in a manner which, in their minds, would make Abd-el-Krim the prophet for the entire Moslem and Asiatic world and leave Morocco ripe for further trouble on a larger scale.

The Lafayette Squadron, which is due to leave for Morocco on Monday, weather permitting, will be honored as passengers of a crack French squadron composed of selected pilots commanded by Major Happe, a noted ace. Only officers will be pilots of their American comrades, seven of whom will travel in this manner, the remainder following by boat a few days later. Sweeney, Parker, Kerwood, Pollock, Bullen, Holden and Weller are those traveling by airplane.

The route selected will be Dijon-Lyons-Marseilles the first day, with short stops at each point. The second day they will be at Perpignan or Barcelona and the third day Morocco. The reason for this route is that the French squadron is not merely acting as transport service but is conducting one of its frequent long-distance flights, which are part of the Air Service's regular training. The French pilots will return home after landing the Americans in Morocco, while the Americans will take over airplanes already sent there for their use.

All the airmen had a few hours flying this week in spite of the stormy weather all over France and are considered ready for active service by the authorities watching them. The latter expressed delight at the complete mastery of the planes shown by the men, who have not flown for a number of years. Tomorrow the squadron will be guests at a tea given by the Aero Club of France.

Petain Expects Peace Soon.

MARSEILLES, France, July 31 (AP).—With France and Spain in complete agreement, a sound and dignified peace may be expected with Abd-el-Krim with only reasonable delay, declared Marshal Pétain upon his arrival here today after his trip of inspection in the North Africa fighting area. He leaves for Paris at 7 o'clock tonight and will confer with Premier Painlevé tomorrow.

"Those waging war against France in Morocco are making a commercial affair out of it," said Marshal Pétain. "Our troops have all necessary material and their morale is very good. The surprise attack launched against us in April could not be possible again. The Moors are aware of the valor of our forces."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FEZ, July 31.—Ain Bou Aissa was blown up by its garrison last night. Ain Bou Aissa is not important, strategically speaking, but from the standpoint of human interest it is outstanding among many great pages of bravery and endurance which have been written in the course of this inferno among wars.

Hour by hour French headquarters was getting reports from Freydinburg's column or from airmen flying low over the fort, telling of the last stages of the life of this outpost. Since it was blown up the reports have been describing the fate of the remnants of the garrison so far as known. And far from the little tent in Morocco where General Naulin has his temporary headquarters under the blazing sun the entire world is learning almost hour by hour the tragic story of Ain Bou Aissa—a close neighbor of Beni Derkoul, which also ended its career by being blown up, but with defenders torn to shreds with the post they so fiercely defended.

At Ain Bou Aissa, however, it is yet unknown how many of the garrison perished. Fifteen men arrived at Teroual today, but the fate of the wounded Lieutenant who was in command and forty-five men is still unknown, and airmen are looking for them among the rocky crags in the shadeless Moroccan mountains.

Baffling obscurity continues to shroud the last hours of the gallant defense. Even men who have returned from this hell—haggard and with shattered nerves—cannot tell the hour when it was blown up nor where their comrades are. Aviators returning after flying over it early this morning say the walls are still standing but the roof is gone. They thought they saw a handful of French troops in a trench 800 yards away.

This occasioned a belief the garrison blew up the post before the Riffians ended the tunnel they were building to mine it, and took refuge in trenches in order to await assistance which they knew would come, but not when. The Riffians fired on the airplanes which were swooping low and sought to riddle them with machine guns.

While fifteen men straggled back to Teroual through the lines of the enemy, Freydenburg's column was marching to relieve the outpost—fighting against the hidden enemy, against heat and against the sand-filled air eddying under a scorching sirocco wind blown from the deserts far to the south. The column had only four miles to go, but it seemed like 400. Two hundred feet in front of the advancing skirmishers a French plane crashed into the rocks, where it was entirely at the mercy of the enemy. Another pilot returning safely told me the plane immediately was surrounded, although he did not know whether by the French or Riffians, but he believed the latter. The air base here is awaiting anxiously news of whether their fallen comrade is living or dead—in the hands of enemies or friends.

Freydenburg's column hoped to reach Ain Bou Aissa while the defenders still held it, but when they started on the trek before dawn they learned it had been blown up. They persevered in the march, hoping against hope they might rescue the wounded Lieutenant, who commanded the post from a litter and directed the fire of the French artillery, six miles to the south, by flashing a mirror while unable to walk. Forty airplanes accompanied the advance, and all available artillery poured barrages onto the crests where the enemy was lurking but unseen. Later in the day airplanes had to be used to fight the enemy, who were filtering closer and closer to Ouezzan, ten miles west of Aissa, but the column kept up a slow, painful advance.

A report that a few members of the garrison were occupying a trench near the outpost was immediately sent to Freydenburg, and it was read to his men, who redoubled their efforts in order to save their comrades. It was believed only those able to make the risky march toward Teroual—fifteen living skeletons—had been sent south by the Lieutenant in command. Of forty-five others that composed the post it is certain some were killed and many wounded. The entire force is believed to have been divided into three groups, sent out toward the French lines along different paths. But although they have not sighted the other two groups, one of these is believed to be fighting to the last breath in the trenches, which may be now their tomb, while a third cannot be located, either by hearsay or after long airplane searches.

Latest reports say that when the decision to blow up the post was taken the Riffians were lying just outside the barbed wire, tossing grenades within the walls. But the report most anxiously awaited has not come in yet—where is the Lieutenant and those who are standing by him?

Spanish State Peace Terms.

Abd-el-Krim must recognize the sovereignty of the Sultan and authority of the Khalifa of the Spanish zone. He must hand over all his artillery to the Spaniards. The Spaniard shall maintain a permanent fortified Spanish post at Ajdir, Abd-el-Krim's headquarters in the Riff. All Spanish prisoners must be liberated.

In return the Spanish Directory will grant the Riff local independent Government, with Spanish functionaries. Riffians will be permitted to have a small army to be paid by the Spaniards and will receive financial assistance for introduction of their local Government.

Spanish authorities at Tetuan have been informed by Abd-el-Krim's emissaries that he is prepared to negotiate peace on the same terms as those already communicated to the French, namely, preliminary assurance of independence, and that negotiations are to take place at Tangier.

Amelioration of the situation on the French front does not seem to be maintained. Riffians are withdrawing in the centre to threaten the French flanks east and west and are regrouping their forces. The heat is very great and French troops are suffering fatigue, but reinforcements continue to arrive and the morale is excellent. The enemy continue filtering through the French lines, and convoys have been attacked far back behind the lines.

Riffians succeeded in reaching Fez Taza, on the railway line between Sidi Abdullah and Taza, but beyond taking up a few rails no damage has been done. Traffic was only stopped for a few hours.

It is reported tonight the Laraiche powder magazine has been blown up by natives. There is said to have been no loss of life but considerable damage to property and windows in the town.

Activity on Spanish Front.

MELLILA, Spanish Morocco, July 31 (AP).—Spanish airmen today bombed the rebel front, destroying houses in the villages of Cameo, Annual, Tasgarin, Benibuyabi, Llano and Tijitit and along the Kebir River. The airmen report that the Riffians hurriedly sought shelter in dugouts, but their bombs killed several of the rebels.

Hydro-airplanes carried out a reconnaisance of the coast and the pilots used machine guns on several groups of rebels on the Sididris beach.

Abd-el-Krim Writes to Tribes.

MADRID, July 31.—A newspaper publishes an interesting letter which Abd-el-Krim has ordered his agents to read in the market places of the tribes which have not yet taken up arms. Referring to the campaign Abd-el-Krim says:

"Pay no attention to false notices our enemies are spreading about the French and Spaniards reaching an agreement to unite. These peoples always have hated each other and always are desirous to destroy each other. By the grace of Allah we have many good friends in France, also they are not lacking in Spain. These friends all assure us we have nothing to fear, as the French and Spaniards can never unite. We shall, therefore, make a last definite effort first against the French, whom we shall force to concede peace, recognizing Riffian independence and allowing us the necessary means to live without bonds of slavery. Afterward we shall possibly turn against the Spaniards, whom we shall defeat with little effort, as that nation has decided not to shed more blood and make no further expenditures in a sterile enterprise."

TO PUSH 3D PARTY PLANS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Determined that the Third Party movement started by Robert M. La Follette shall not die with him, several of his followers will meet at Riverview Park tomorrow to hold a memorial in his honor and to pledge themselves to continue the insurgent cause.

The meeting, planned long ago as an outing, will be held under the auspices of the Progressive State Committee headed by Charles J. MacGowan. Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, La Follette's running mate in the 1924 Presidential campaign; Dr. A. E. Haydon of the University of Chicago, who conducted the funeral ceremony at Madison; Mayor James A. Andrews of Kewanee, Ill.; Mayor J. Herman Halstrom of Rockford, and Jacob G. Grossberg of Chicago will speak.

Plans to enter Third Party candidates for United States Senator, State Treasurer, Congress, the Legislature and county officers in 1926, will be launched, it was announced.

IDENTIFY GIRL IN DEATH CAR

Has Police Record but Supports Family of 8 in Scranton.

The girl who was in the stolen automobile which killed a 7-year-old boy on Mulberry Street Thursday afternoon was identified yesterday by her fingerprints as Rebecca Gibbons of Scranton, Pa., who the police say has been convicted of vagrancy and has attempted twice to commit suicide.

The girl had called herself Marie Labette and Marie Dufraine. She became hysterical when confronted with her police record and insisted she knew nothing of the two men in the car save that they "picked her up" and that one called the other "Pete." No trace of them was found after they ran from the car and disappeared in a subway station.

A dispatch from Scranton said the girl was the sole support of her mother and seven small brothers and sisters. Her father, William, was injured in a training camp during the World War and is in a hospital at Philadelphia. The police of Scranton said her desire for pretty clothes and good times got her in trouble. Her mother said she had been working here in a restaurant.

"She was our only support," she said, "and if she's in jail, I don't know what we will do."

WOMAN IS AMNESIA VICTIM.

Found Dazed on Street, She Is Unable to Tell Her Name or Address.

An unidentified woman, about 23 years old, who was found standing dazed at Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street by Patrolman Landricht, of Traffic A, was taken last night to Bellevue, apparently a victim of amnesia. She was unable to tell her name or address.

The woman, who wore a wedding ring and carried a beaded handbag, is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds and has dark brown hair and gray eyes. She wore a black and white checkered dress and black hose and slippers.

S. P. Tuck to See Opium Sessions.

GENEVA, July 31 (AP).—The League of Nations has announced that S. Pinkley Tuck, Consul in Geneva, will represent the United States unofficially at the next meeting of the Advisory Commission on Traffic in Opium and Other Dangerous Drugs, which will commence here on Aug. 24. The announcement has caused great satisfaction here and is construed as indicating an intention by the United States to continue collaboration in the League's anti-opium activities, despite the withdrawal of the American delegation from the anti-opium conference here last Winter.

Stalled Barge Delays Trains.

East and westbound trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad running between Newark and Jersey City were delayed for seventeen minutes yesterday afternoon when the oil barge Walter Tracy became wedged in the drawbridge channel in the Hackensack River at 4:25 o'clock and prevented the closing of the bridge.

Federal agents arrested five men yesterday on a charge of manufacturing and dealing in liquor. The prisoners were held by United States Commissioner Cotter for examination on Aug. 7. William Gilbert, who led the raiders, and Assistant United States Attorney John M. Harlan said that there was evidence that the defendants were distributing liquor to patrons throughout the United States by the same methods employed by the eight men who were arrested about two weeks ago.

The raid was made on the building at 20 Leonard Street, where a large quantity of liquor and wines and several barrels of alcohol were seized.

The prisoners were Joseph, Louis and Frank Casino, Otto Meyer and Thomas Plescia. Joseph and Frank Casino were each held in $3,000 bail and the others in $2,000 each.

RUM LIBELS ON SHIPS LIFTED.

U. S. Must Return Seized Liquor Under Judge Hand's Verdict.

Following arguments lasting more than four hours the libels placed on the Norwegian steamship Sagatind and the Canadian schooner Diamantina, after they were seized by the Coast Guard last October, were dismissed by Federal Judge A. N. Hand yesterday. The libels placed upon the cargoes were also dismissed. The action releases the Sagatind, which has been tied up at the naval base in Brooklyn since the seizure, and the bond given by the Glenn Fishing Company, owner of the Diamantina. The Government will be required to return the liquor if it can be located.

In the hold of the Sagatind the Coast Guard seized 40,000 cases of Scotch whisky. Shortly after the seizure complaint was made that Federal and local officials had raided the captured whisky and that a large quantity had disappeared. On the Diamantina 1,900 cases of Scotch were seized.

The Court's action followed the failure of the Government to prove that the vessels were importing liquor and not merely transporting it. Under the Volstead act no forfeiture follows seizure of liquor in transportation unless there is a conviction of the person responsible for it. In the case of these two vessels there were no convictions.

Assistant United States Attorney Francis A. McGurk represented the Government. The owners of the vessels and their cargoes were represented by Henry A. Wise, Emanuel Tacker, Karl Frederick and Louis Halle.

To Sue Bootleg Bondsmen.

This is the last day of the bargain court for bootleggers. Those who were on the calendar and failed to appear will receive prison sentences if they are caught and convicted. The bondsmen of those who forfeited their bail will have to pay or be sued. In June and July there were about 1,000 bail forfeitures in prohibition cases involving about $600,000. This amount has been increased during the five days of the bargain court by more than $200,000.

zenship—family ties; chances of inheriting money from German relatives; desire to escape service in the Polish Army; hope that Germany would reconquer her lost provinces; or, as one stolid burger put it, "Because I and my forefathers always have been German."

None appeared to have had the faintest idea that their vote would lead to their expulsion five years later from what they regard as their homeland.

They had to sell the bulk of their belongings at starvation prices because few had the foresight to ship their goods in time. They have lost the roofs over their heads, their jobs, their stores or their farms. They have no plans for the future and mighty slim prospects of finding congenial employment. The German Government has opened an employment agency, but thus far only unmarried agricultural laborers have found work on West Prussian farms.

Germany Expels 20,000 Poles.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 31.—A steady procession of special trains, carrying the Poles expelled from Germany back to Poland, today passed through Berlin, en route to the frontier.

The most wretched passengers are coal miners and their families who for years have lived in the Westphalian coal fields.

Formerly resident in the German part of Poland, they had the misfortune of voting to keep their Polish nationality in the 1920 plebiscite. Hence, as the German reprisal for Warsaw's expulsion of the Germans located in Posen and Upper Silesia, they are being ousted from the Reich.

All told there are more than 20,000 of them—the most pitiful-looking lot of working-class persons imaginable. Being wage-earners, they have only a few marks between them and want. The country toward which they are traveling is foreign land to them, even though it is their native country.

A large percentage of their wives and children speak German. What fate holds in store for them they cannot even guess, but they are sure it will be something unpleasant.

Once across the frontier, they will be concentrated in barracks in Posen. With the Silesian collieries and steel plants operating at half time or closed down altogether, their chances of getting jobs are nil. The best they can expect is ill-paid farm work.

INDICT 11 IN SALES OF DISEASED COWS

PROMINENT MEN INVOLVED

Criminal Proceedings Follow Investigations by Federal, State and County Officials.

CORTLAND, N. Y., July 31 (AP).—Investigation lasting nearly five months into the sale and use in Cortland County of cattle condemned as tubercular ended here today when the Special Grand Jury, called by order of Governor Smith, found thirty-nine indictments against eleven cattle dealers and farmers, the majority prominent residents of the county. Against one man, Daniel B. Grant, a merchant, sixteen indictments were returned on four different charges.

Two former Sheriffs, one of whom concluded his term Dec. 31; a former School Commissioner, a local hardware merchant and his son, a garage proprietor and several farmers were named. All were in court when the indictments were opened and entered pleas of not guilty on being arraigned immediately before Supreme Court Justice James. P. Hill. Bail fixed at from $1,000 to $5,000, according to the number of indictments, was furnished by all except Walter Totman, a cattle dealer.

Date of trial was set for Aug. 11, while hearings were set for Monday. It was reported that some of the defendants might change their pleas, but this remained unverified from the men themselves.

List of the Men Indicted.

Those indicted, and the charges against each, were:

Daniel B. Garant, merchant, sixteen indictments, including eleven for sale of tubercular cattle, one joint indictment with his father, Byron L. Grant, for sale of cattle, two for failure to report to the State Department of Farms and Markets the existence of tubercular cattle, one for an attempt at bribery, and one for bribery. Bail set at $5,000.

Charles W. Ellis Jr., Cortland attorney and cattle dealer and former School Commissioner, five indictments, one for sale of tubercular cattle, one for removing from the premises where it had been placed for slaughter a tubercular cow, one for failing to report existence of tubercular cattle among the animals in his possession and one for forgery. Bail $2,000.

Frank M. Henry, farmer and former sheriff, four indictments for sale of tubercular cattle. Bail $2,000.

Walter Totman, dealer, three indictments for sale. Bail $3,000.

Thomas Moore, dealer, three indictments for sales. Bail $2,000.

Eber Bowdish, dealer and former sheriff, two indictments for sale. Bail $1,000.

J. Allen Leach, dealer and garage proprietor, two indictments for sale. Bail $1,000.

Benjamin Kaplan, butcher and slaughter house proprietor, one indictment for removing tubercular animals from the premises for other purposes than immediate slaughter. Bail $1,000.

Totman was taken to the court room from the county jail next door, where he is being held in default of $1,000 bail on a charge of making fraudulent statements in taking out a motor vehicle driver's license. He was previously convicted and sentenced on this charge, was released from Onondaga County Penitentiary on a certificate of reasonable doubt, but was unable to furnish necessary bail.

County Dairy Industry Crippled.

Interest in the eventual outcome of the case is high here, not only because of the prominence of the men indicted but from the standpoint of importance of dairying as a Cortland County industry. Approximately one-third of the population of the county is engaged in the dairy industry or some work closely connected with it, while in the county there are between 35,000 and 36,000 head of cattle. Most of the milk supply goes to New York City and vicinity, and the developments growing out of the inquiry have seriously affected the sale of Cortland County milk.

Federal, State, county and city investigators early this year located nearly 1000 head of tubercular cattle, which formed the basis of the Grand Jury action and by which the authorities assert they have proof definite enough to convict all of the accused men. Every head of cattle found to be tubercular, but sold as healthy, was photographed to show the "T" brand on each side of its jaw, and the area of flesh containing the brand was cut out and retained as evidence.

In the courtroom today were practically all of the State and Federal investigators who have worked upon the case for weeks, and also Joseph H. Wilson, research director of the State Board of Estimate and Control, Deputy Attorneys General Maurice A. Kaman and W. W. Burrell.

SAYS JAPAN DEPENDS ON ITS FOREIGN TRADE

Tadao Wikawa, acting financial commissioner for Japan, in the last of five lectures at Columbia University on Japan's economic and social problems, said yesterday that Japan was in a transitory stage of development from an agricultural to an industrial country and that her future welfare would depend entirely on her industry and foreign trade.

"In Japan's foreign trade," he said, "the United States leads all other nations. It took in 1924, for instance, more than 40 per cent. of her total exports and furnished 27 per cent. of her imports. For this commercial reason only it would be foolish for her to dream of war with the nation that is her best business asset."

He also discussed the statement of Dr. Leith Wednesday at Williamstown that Japan is removed as a war threat because of her lack of steel.

"Even if Japan did have an abundant supply of steel," he said, "she would never be a war menace, for she is far advanced in her humanitarian ideals as evidenced by her ardent support of the League of Nations, the World Court and the Washington Conference. It is not because Japan can not fight, but because she will not fight, as she is devoted to her ideal of permanent peace among the nations of the world."

TO SWIM CHANNEL TODAY.

French Woman Confident She Will Make the 20-Mile Crossing.

BOULOGNE, France, July 31 (AP).—Jane Sion, the French woman swimmer who will attempt tomorrow to negotiate the English Channel, starting from Cape Gris-Nez at 3 A. M., arrived at Calais this morning. She will be accompanied by the tug Champion, which followed the Argentine, Tiraboschi, on his successful Channel swim in 1923.

The French swimmer says that if the present weather holds for eighteen hours she is confident of earning the distinction of being the first woman to swim the twenty-mile waterway between France and England.

Meanwhile, the American and Anglo-Argentine entrants in this year's woman's Channel swimming derby are hard at work training for their attempts, scheduled for the middle of August. Miss Gertrude Ederle, the American champion, is practicing daily in the waters off Cape Gris-Nez, and Miss Lillian Harrison of Buenos Aires, who has made three unsuccessful assaults on the swirling Channel currents, has gone to Paris to compete in a marathon swim in the Seine tomorrow.

Mlle. Sion holds the woman's Channel record, having stayed in the water fourteen hours and forty-five minutes in 1923, abandoning her swim owing to bad weather when she was only four miles from Dover.

WIFE ASKS $250,000 IN HENDRICKS SUIT

'SECOND HONEYMOON' OVER

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 31.—Mrs. Ida May Hendricks, wife of Clifford Hendricks of New York, has filed suit for $250,000 separate maintenance in the San Francisco Supreme Court. She charges her husband with cruelty and alleges that he had struck and cursed her on numerous occasions in their married life.

The suit discloses that the "second honeymoon" of the young couple at Lake Tahoe, which followed the filing of a divorce action by Hendricks in New York last March, had come to an abrupt end, with the causes veiled in mystery.

The complaint sets forth that Mrs. Hendricks separated from her husband in California on July 17, 1925, shortly after they had gone on a trip to the Grand Canyon and on a hunting expedition. They were married on March 27, 1920, at Kenmore, N. Y., and have a 4-year-old daughter, Jean.

That her husband "hated her" long before he filed his suit for divorce on March 26 of this year is set forth in Mrs. Hendricks's complaint. She gives no cause why her husband should hate her.

Hendricks, who is under 30 years of age, recently inherited a fortune from his father. In his suit for divorce Hendricks named Joe Secakuku, a Hopi Indian guide and movie "sheik," as co-respondent, together with two other men, one N. G. Smith and a man named Parsons.

In 1924 the Hendricks took a trip to the Grand Canyon and then went to Los Angeles, where Hendricks has a residence. This trip was followed by a hunting expedition, during which, Hendricks's divorce suit alleged, his wife was involved in misconduct with the guide.

Harry C. Miller of Miller & Warner, attorneys, of 2 Rector Street, who represented Mr. Hendricks in the Nassau County divorce action, said last night that he was not surprised at the suit filed in San Francisco by Mrs. Hendricks, saying that it had been intimated that such a course would be followed.

The Nassau County divorce action is still pending. He said that he knew nothing of any reconciliation between the pair after the suit had been filed. He said that Mrs. Hendricks had failed to file an answer to the divorce action within the period allotted by law. This however, will not prevent her from contesting the suit, he pointed out.

GASOLINE INDUSTRY SETS HIGH RECORDS

Output of 994,000,000 Gallons in June an Advance of 6 Per Cent. Over May.

Domestic production and consumption of gasoline in June established new high records in the history of the industry, according to figures published yesterday by the United States Bureau of Mines. A new high record was also reported in the amount of crude oil run to stills. Stocks of gasoline in storage dropped 22,000,000 gallons during the month and were equal to fifty-five days' supply at the rate of consumption reported on June 30.

According to the Bureau of Mines, 994,000,000 gallons of gasoline were produced in June, a gain of 6 per cent. compared with May. Domestic consumption amounted to 868,000,000 gallons, a gain of 7 per cent. compared with May. Surplus stocks of gasoline on June 30 aggregated 1,695,000,000 gallons, a reduction of 22,000,000 gallons compared with May 31. The equivalent of fifty-five days' supply at the June rate of consumption may be compared with sixty-one days' supply May 31.

It was also reported that the production of crude oil amounted to 66,675,000 barrels during June, a new high record for all time, and a daily average of 2,223,000 barrels. East of the Rockies, according to the bureau, stocks of crude oil were reduced by 1,350,000 barrels, while west of the Rockies there was an increase of 2,070,000 barrels in stocks.

In the Middle West, exclusive of Louisiana and Arkansas, the bureau reported a reduction of about 5,000,000 barrels in the stocks of crude oil, chiefly in the area where most of the light grade crude is produced. During June 311 refineries ran an aggregate of 64,847,000 barrels of crude to stills, both domestic and foreign, and operations were reported at 86 per cent. of capacity.

who was in this bonding company when you gave that bond?"

"No; he only came down to my office and told me if I could give him the bond."

"You never met him before?"

"No, sir."

"Did he tell you his father was the Commissioner?"

"No, sir."

"Have you any other contracts, Mr. Paino, that have been bonded by Sinnott & Canty?"

"No, sir—only the Board of Water Supply."

Mr. Paino, when first questioned about this contract, which was one of the largest he ever had with the city, professed to be unable to recall the name of his broker, until prompted. He was a very reluctant witness. He paid premiums amounting to $7,464 yearly to Sinnott & Canty on this Brooklyn job, which required more than two years to complete.

The fences along the Catskill Aqueduct also provide revenue for the son of Water Supply Commissioner James P. Sinnott. Joseph L. Burke's contract provides for fences at various localities along the Catskill Aqueduct, the Shandaken Tunnel and about the Schoharie Reservoir, to be paid by the City of New York at a cost of slightly over $100,000.

How He Changed Bonds.

Mr. Burke was asked if he had given the bonds on this contract through the firm of Sinnott & Canty, and replied in the affirmative. He was asked how he came to give Sinnott & Canty these bonds, and he replied:

"I never was in their office. I will tell you how that came about. When I was awarded the contract—generally my bonds have been put in the National Surety with the exception of two in the Fidelity & Deposit, and this young John Higgins, I told him I would sooner stay with the National Surety and owing to this condition—I had met Sinnott when I was awarded the arsenal job, he represented himself as Sinnott of the Sinnott & Canty Company, and he said: 'I would like to do your business,' but I said: 'You are late on this job. I promised this young man and I must keep my word,' and he said: 'I hope you give us consideration on the next job you are awarded,' and I said I would.

"When that was awarded they came up to the office and he said, 'I understand you promised Sinnott of the firm of Sinnott & Canty,' and I said, 'Yes, I did.' So I gave it to him and I said, 'I am doing business with the National Surety and they have been very nice to me me when I was struggling to get on my feet,' and he said, 'That is our company,' and he said, 'If you come down'—it is customary—their engineer goes over your figures—and he said, 'That is all right,' when he saw my steel prices. Then the Vice President came down and said, 'We could take that ourselves, that is safe.' That is all. When the other bonds came along I called them up and asked them to take care of it."

In addition there are various contracts that have been made by the Board of Water Supply for pipes, valves, &c., not all of which have yet been investigated. On some of these it has already been disclosed Sinnott & Canty collected a rake-off in the form of a commission for bond premiums. These include the contract with the Michigan Valve and Foundry Company for valves and other fittings on the Catskill Aqueduct, on which a bond of $75,000 was provided.

The Wataga Contracting Company, the investigation has disclosed, obtained a $15,000 bond from Sinnott & Canty on a contract for hydrants and valves in the Borough of Manhattan. The Michigan Valve and Foundry Company paid Sinnott & Canty $766, and the Wataga Company, $307.

Big Hylan Project Pending.

There is pending a project favored by Mayor Hylan for another duplicate tunnel through the solid rock between Manhattan and Brooklyn as an addition or extension of the Catskill Aqueduct system. This, according to the engineers' estimates, would cost $60,000,000. If Sinnott & Canty obtained the bond writing privileges on this, they would win another $135,000 in commissions without any particular effort; but there is little likehood of its adoption while Controller Craig holds office.

James P. Sinnott is a member of the Board of Water Supply of the City of New York at a salary of $12,000 a year. The Board of Water Supply has at present few contracts to award, but some of them run into large amounts. They vary in size from a few dollars into the millions. This is a fertile field for a bonding agency, and, as indicated, it has not been disregarded by Sinnott & Canty, even though the matter of relationship might attract undesirable notice to their operations.

There are only three members of the Board of Water Supply, and, owing to Mr. Sinnott's long connection with Mayor Hylan, from the days when they played politics in East New York together, he is looked upon as the dominant member of the board.

Commissioner Sinnott, father of the well-known Sinnott brothers, is regarded as Mayor Hylan's real political boss. He is the father of John F. Sinnott, Mayor Hylan's secretary and son-in-law; the father of J. Paul Sinnott, head of Sinnott & Canty, 80 Maiden Lane; the father of Carroll Sinnott, manager of the Yellow Taxis, and father of Francis J. Sinnott, Secretary of Mayor Hylan's Board of Transportation, which has control over the "$600,000,000 Hylan subway plan."

Saratoga Handicap Taken by Valador, an Outsider, on Opening Day of Meeting

VALADOR CAPTURES SARATOGA HANDICAP

SARMATICUS ALSO VICTOR

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 31.—William Martin's five-year-old horse, Valador, which has been running in selling races and was a six-to-one shot in a field of six, upset all calculations this afternoon by winning the twenty-third running of the Saratoga Handicap and doing it with ease. He beat the Rancocas Stable's Mad Play, the 11 to 5 favorite, the Greentree Stable's Cherry Pie, the Salubria Stable's My Own, A. C. Bostwick's Spot Cash and the Long Cabin Stable's Ladkin, which finished in that order.

The race was the feature number on the opening card of the meeting of the Saratoga Association and a throng of 15,000 watched Valador come home three lengths to the good, running the mile and one quarter in 2:05 3-5 under the light weight of 106 pounds. Callahan had the mount on the winner, which was saddled by T. Moran. The race was worth $5,950 to Valador's owner.

The opening card was also marked by the fifty-first running of the historic Flash Stakes for two-year-olds over the course of five and one half furlongs, the winner being Robert L. Gerry's Sarmaticus at 7 to 2. Coltiletti had the mount. Carrying 125 pounds, the bay son of Sarmatian and Pretty Lady ran the distance in 1:06 4-5, earning $4,050 for his owner.

Track in Top Condition.

Saratoga was at its best to welcome the racing folk once more. It was cool enough to be thoroughly enjoyable and the sun was obscured all afternoon. The track, which has been resurfaced, was in first class condition and had dried out nicely after the rains of the early part of the week.

All of the seven named over night for the Saratoga Handicap accepted the issue with the exception of Lee Rosenberg's Sun Pal. Valador drew the post position on the rail, with Mad Play next, Spot Cash third, Ladkin fourth, My Own fifth and Cherry Pie on the outside. They were only two minutes at the post at the furlong pole.

Valador, under his feather, broke in his stride and he never relinquished his advantage. Around the paddock turn Ladkin attempted to stay with the leader, but the son of Fair Play could not hold the pace and rapidly dropped out of the contention to finish a poor last.

Mad Play did not receive the best ride from Laverne Fator. He got into close quarters and Fator finally had to take up and go around. He made a strong bid in the stretch, but Valador had opened a lead of five lengths and this was too much to overcome with a difference of twenty-three pounds in the weights.

My Own Makes Vain Bid.

On the final turn Barnes made a move on My Own, and the five-year-old moved up into second place, but he lost third money when Cherry Pie came from behind. The gelding trailed his field for half a mile and finished with a rush. My Own was half a length back, leading Spot Cash by half a length, the latter being fifteen lengths ahead of Ladkin. The fractional times were 0:24 2-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:13, 1:38 2-5, 2:05 3-5.

Ten ran, and the Walter J. Salmon entry of Powhatan and Sport Royal was the 2 to 1 favorite. Mr. Salmon scratched his speedy Flight of Time, while J. E. Griffith declined the issue with Canter, as did William Ziegler Jr. with Colorful and General Watson. The Rancocas Stable sent in Nichavo as an added starter.

It was a hard field to get aligned, and the youngsters were five minutes at the post. The Greentree Stable's Brazen was particularly obstreperous, unseating Ellis.

Sarmaticus off Well.

Sarmaticus was one of the first to find his stride and Coltiletti at once took him out into the lead. Coltiletti saved ground with his mount and never relinquished his advantage. Sarmaticus showed a high turn of speed, going to the quarter in 0:23 and to the half in 0:47. Fiddlesticks was off well and was closest to the pacemaker until the very end, when Sande got Blockhead up to take the place.

Blockhead was probably the best of the field. He took up top weight of 127 pounds and was rather slow to gain his stride. He was shut off after the start and forced back into seventh position. In the stretch Sande took his mount to the outside and he finished with a great burst of speed.

The Log Cabin Stud's Chance Play ran the third race of his career. He had not been under colors since his two victories at Jamaica, and probably needed this race to put him at his best. He finished fourth, a length back of Fiddlesticks.

The steeplechase was one of the best contests of the season through the field. Eight ran and all stood up over the journey of two miles, although there were several narrow escapes. The winner was Triple B Stable's old bay gelding Byng, the 8 to 5 favorite.

The Rancocas Stable started its Saratoga campaign auspiciously when Superlette and Royalite ran one-two in the opening number. This was the Inaugural Purse for three-year-olds and upward at six furlongs, and seven faced the barrier.

P. F. Joyce's old gelding Opperman was the best of seven that ran in the mile dash for three-year-olds and upward, winning easily by three lengths from Mrs. K. E. Hitt's three-year-old gelding, Master Crump.

Because of the large number of entries the sixth race was split. The event was for maiden two-year-olds, over the five-furlong course. The first section was a victory for John E. Madden's filly, Frances Rock, a 20 to 1 shot, which won easily over T. H. McCreery's Son Ami, a 100 to 1 shot.

The second section furnished one of the best contests of the day. Harry Payne Whitney's Brushaway ran head and head with Mrs. K. E. Hitt's Revelry all the way down the home stretch and won by that margin.

Noted Horses Won Handicap; Roamer Victor Three Times

SARATOGA SPRINGS, July 31.—Many of the great horses of the American turf have been returned winners of the Saratoga Handicap, which annually opens the Summer meeting here. It was instituted in 1901, being one of the more modern of the important stakes, and was won in that year by W. H. Sealey's Rockton. Roamer is the only horse having the distinction of winning more than once, having been the victor in 1915, 1917 and 1918. Recent winners have been as follows:

Year.	Horse.	Weight.	Time.

GREENWAY BOY WINS BLUE IN HORSE SHOW

BUT MEETS DEFEAT LATER

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 31.—A steady rain that fell throughout the day and softened the turf did not detract any from the skill and daring of the riders who took part today in the opening of the eight annual Stamford Horse Show on S. W. Taylor's Sunaim Farm here, although it did make things uncomfortable for the riders, the spectators and the horses. Weather conditions considered, a surprisingly large gathering of persons of social prominence watched the horses and riders.

The outstanding class was the open jumpers, in which fifteen of the best jumpers in the East took part. It developed into a duel between Miss Margaretta Barnwell McNeal, a Philadelphia girl who was making her first appearance of the season in the Metropolitan district, and Miss Ivy Maddison of Port Chester, an experienced rider who has won blue ribbons galore.

Miss McNeal took her chestnut gelding, Greenway Boy, cleanly over the hurdles every time, but Miss Maddison, on Vada Belle, hit one hurdle on the last trial and had to be content with second prize.

Later, in the class for hunter hacks, Miss Maddison turned the tables on her rival, taking first with John McE. Bowman's Dansant, while Miss McNeal got second on Greenway Boy.

J. A. Ramsdell of Newburgh, and George Crouch of New York led the early winners with three blues apiece. Other winners of blues were Miss Elizabeth Greve, with Wee Becky; Miss Ivy Maddison, with Vada Belle and the McE. Bowman horse, Dansant; Miss Isabelle Beck of Riverside, Maurice Wertheim of Greenwich, and Edgar Y. Clausen of Port Chester.

A colorful class was that for teams of three polo mounts ridden by women. The Greenwich team, composed of Miss Sally Lanier, Mrs. Eddy and Miss Marie Leary, clothed in purple striped polo suits, won from a team in green composed of Mrs. Danforth, Miss Banks and Mrs. Snow, representing the Lawridge stables of Port Chester.

SHARKEY BEATS SOLOMON.

BOSTON, July 31 (AP).—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, tonight won a close decision from King Solomon of Panama in a ten-round battle fought in a drizzle of rain at Braves Field. All was about even until the final round when Sharkey cut loose with a terrific body attack which slowed Solomon down. Sharkey weighed 190 pounds and Solomon 186.

George (Kid) Lee of Worcester won his first bout as a welterweight by getting the decision from Tony Julian of Brockton in the eight-round semi-final. Archie Skinner, Sharkey's boxing partner, knocked out Clemented Saavedra of Chile in three rounds.

Weissmuller Swims Fastest 100 Yards Ever Known, Is Timed in 50 4-10 Seconds

SEATTLE, Wash., July 31 (AP).—Johnny Weissmuller of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, who is taking part in the national A. A. U. swimming championships, today swam the fastest 100 yards, free style, ever known. He was timed in 0:50 4-10, breaking all world records. He performed the feat with a strong wind obliquely at his back.

The wind ruffled the water to some extent and by the time the title races got under way the swimmers had to fight through anything but a calm course. The 300-yard medley swim was won by Harry Glancy of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A., with Harold Krueger of the Illinois A. C. second, and A. J. Allen of Stanford University third. The time was 4:04 2-10. Glancy later took to the water and won the mile free style in 24:27 2-0. Les Smith of the Olympic Club was second and Walter Laufer of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. was third.

Pete Des Jardins of the Roman Pool, Miami, Fla., won the ten-foot springboard title. Al White of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, was second, and Clarence Pinkston, Los Angeles A. C., was third.

At the close of the third of the four-day competition the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. was leading with 22 points. The Illinois A. C. was second with 19 and the Roman Pool of Miami was third with 10.

Johnny Weissmuller's performance at Seattle yesterday in swimming 100 yards straightaway in 50 4-10 seconds surpassed all existing world's records for 100 yards covered either on a straightaway or in short stretches. The fastest previous time ever recorded for 100 yards was 51 4-5 seconds, made by Weissmuller over a 20-yard course in Minneapolis, March 19, 1923. Weissmuller's record of 52 3-5 seconds for the distance over a 25-yard course, recognized as the official world's record by the International Swimming Federation, was made in Honolulu on May 27, 1922.

The fastest previous time for a 100-yard straightaway swim was 52 4-5 seconds made by Weissmuller on June 23, 1923. The straightaway record prior to this was 53 seconds, made by Duke Kahanamoku in Hui Nalu, Honolulu Harbor, Sept. 5, 1917, and was considered at that time to be such a phenomenal record that experts predicted it would be years before it would be eclipsed.

U. S. GAINS 7-5 LEAD IN NEWPORT TENNIS

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—Brilliant play in the afternoon's doubles featured the second day of the international inter-university matches between teams representing Oxford and Cambridge and Harvard and Yale, on the Casino courts today, and as a result of the day's play, in which the United States won four of the six matches, the American collegiate players lead in the two days' score by 7 matches to 5.

Tomorrow will see the completion of the tournament, when nine matches, six in singles and three in doubles, will be played, but so close have been the contests of these two days that it would be folly to predict the outcome.

Overcast skies greeted the players this morning and remained so all day. This served to keep away the usual large gallery, but the real lovers of tennis were there, and the occasional shifting showers of rain did not deter the players from carrying out the day's schedule, in which America won two singles and two doubles matches and England won one single and one double.

While play has been steady and of excellent quality, it was not until this afternoon that tennis of the brilliant type was seen. There were two doubles matches this afternoon which contained hair-raising periods of play that kept the gallery teetering back and forth in suspense.

Jones and Watson Score.

Arnold Jones, captain of the American team, and Charles Watson 3d of Yale defeated the crack Cambridge pair of Van Alen and Lezard in a thrilling match, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2. It was no easy task, this victory of the Americans, for the British team put up a stiff fight, and Van Alen's peculiar underhand twisting service, varied with his stiff overhand drive, proved puzzling.

Close-in engagements and long-lobbing contests featured the match, as they did the other doubles engagement on the championship court, in which another American pair, Briggs and Hopkins of Harvard and Yale, defeated Jonklaas and Sumner of Oxford, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3. The Americans, time after time, were put on the defensive, but after a hard-fought middle set, which they dropped at 5—7, they pulled out the match.

The American pair to lose was Ingraham and Whitbeck of Harvard, whose defeat was a surprise, but their conquerors, Lester and Carleton, Oxford, played a very keen game, particularly overhead, and won at 6—3, 6—3 in straight sets.

Arnold Jones distinguished himself in the morning's play in his victory over Carleton of Oxford, for with a display of ungettable service, which resulted in two love games and one at 40—15, he mowed Carleton down in the first set at 6—0, and it was only when he let up in the second that the Rhodes scholar was able to drag down three games for a final score of 6—0, 6—3.

Briggs Victor Over Jonklaas.

Alden Briggs of Harvard won from E. J. Jonklaas of Oxford, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2, the final set being quite thrilling in the last few games, when Briggs led at 5—2 and Jonklaas threatened to prolong the contest. There were several exhibitions of back-court exchanges and fast work at the net which resulted in kills, with Briggs usually getting the breaks.

The British victory in singles came when J. H. Van Alen of Cambridge took John Whitbeck of Harvard into camp, 7—5, 6—2. Whitbeck made a strong play in the first set, the score being 5—all, each game going on service until the eleventh. Whitbeck took the first two games of the second set and then slumped. Van Alen ran out the next six games without difficulty.

The summaries:

SINGLES.

Alden Briggs, Harvard, defeated E. M. Jonklaas, Oxford, 6—3, 2—6, 6—3.

J. H. Van Alen, Cambridge, defeated J. F. Whitbeck, Harvard, 7—5, 6—2.

DOUBLES.

Jones and Charles Watson 3d, Yale, defeated Van Alen and J. J. Lezard, Cambridge, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2.

Briggs and A. L. Hopkins, Harvard and Yale, defeated Jonklaas and E. H. Sumner, Oxford, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3.

H. K. Lester and Carleton, Cambridge and Oxford, defeated W. W. Ingraham and Whitbeck, Harvard, 6—3, 6—3.

Rain Stops Binghamton Trots.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 31.—Showers today made Ideal Park track so heavy that the getaway-day Orange County circuit harness races were postponed until tomorrow afternoon.

Post and Paddock

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 31.—One of the most remarkable demonstrations in honor of a jockey was the outburst when Earl Sande made his first appearance here today. It was in the third race as he paraded on the Idle Hour Farm Stable's Blockhead.

The reception began at the clubhouse and as soon as the crowds understood what it was all about the grandstand rose en masse. The band played "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot." Sande took his honors modestly.

It was here just a year ago that Sande met with the accident that kept him many months in the hospital and threatened the termination of his career.

When the band played the national anthem before the running of the first race and the crowds stood at attention, the annual meeting of the Saratoga Association was officially opened.

There is a fine card for the first Saturday of the meeting, with the Shillelah Steeplechase, the $10,000 United States Hotel Stakes for juveniles and the Miller Stakes for the three-year-olds. The latter, unfortunately, reflects on the three-year-old situation, as there are only three entries for the event out of the eighty-one nominations.

The course of the Saratoga Association was a perfect picture with its miniature lake, where swans serenely moved about, its shrubbery and flowers all radiant through the recent rains.

All of the racing world turned out for the opener and four favorites came home in front.

SEABRIGHT TENNIS STOPPED BY RAIN

TODAY'S FINAL MATCHES.

10 A. M.—Final of women's singles, Miss Helen Wills vs. Miss Elizabeth Ryan. Final of men's doubles, William Johnston and Clarence Griffin vs. Robert and Howard Kinsey.

2:30 P. M.—Final of men's singles, Vincent Richards vs. James O. Anderson. Final of women's doubles, Miss Helen Wills and Miss Mary K. Browne vs. Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Eleanor Goss.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 31.—A heavy rain that fell here all day and showed no signs of letting up tonight disrupted the schedule of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club and caused the postponement of the final matches in five events until tomorrow. If the weather and the condition of the courts permit the play will start at 10 o'clock in the morning, according to James C. Auchincloss and Holcombe Ward.

Helen Wills will play Elizabeth Ryan in the final of the singles tournament at that hour, and at the same time William Johnston and Clarence Griffin will meet the Kinsey brothers in the final of the men's doubles. In the afternoon at 2:30, Vincent Richards and James O. Anderson of the Australian Davis Cup team will take to the courts in the final of the men's singles, and the concluding round of the women's doubles will be held at the same hour, bringing together Miss Wills and Mary K. Browne and Miss Ryan and Eleanor Goss.

Not in years has the Seabright tournament faced so heavy a final day. In view of the fact that Richards is scheduled to play in the final of the metropolitan championship at the Crescent A. C. on Sunday, continuation of the rain tomorrow would place the tournament officials here in a predicament.

Four more interesting matches that are scheduled for tomorrow could hardly be arranged for one day. Particular interest is centred in the meeting between Richards and Anderson. Anderson is of the opinion that Australia would stand a better chance of defeating the United States in the Davis Cup challenge round with Richards on the defending team than with Johnson. Richards, naturally, will seek to correct that impression.

Miss Ryan's playing all week has been so conspicuous that Miss Wills is expected to have a bitter fight on her hands tomorrow. Miss Ryan's crushing victory over Eleanor Goss, followed by her triumph over Mary Browne, established her at the top of American tennis.

DEMPSEY EXPLAINS DELAY TO OFFICIALS

SETTLING NOW WITH HIM

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 31 (AP).—Jack Dempsey telegraphed today to the New York Boxing Commission asking its indulgence in the matter of his delayed appearance before it and flatly denying he had "signed or consented to box any one other than Harry Wills," the commission's choice of an opponent for him.

Dempsey's telegram in full, as given out by his publicity representative, read:

Hon. James H. Farley, Chairman State Athletic Commission, New York, N. Y.:

Am sending you an airplane letter which best explains conditions of my clearing up my affairs with Jack Kearns. It involves a lot of money and settlement has been partly perfected. Fair consideration would not have you insist or expect me to make big financial sacrifice.

You and your official associates will appreciate that one's private business concerns only himself. I have signified an earnestness in agreeing to match with Harry Wills on the commission's exacted demands, and to which I do not except. Mr. Kearns now knows that I will hereafter act for myself for my professional engagements.

Having not the least inclination to ignore your honorable body, for which I still hold proper respect, I request that consideration of match with Wills, with my appearance before commission, receive reasonable official attention.

Regardless of what enterprising and extreme newspaper boys say, I have not signed nor agreed to fight any one as yet but Harry Wills. Respectfully yours, JACK DEMPSEY, World's Heavyweight Champion.

Still Ready to Sign.

While Dempsey is not definitely planning any title bout except the Harry Wills fight next year, he still is willing to meet Harry Greb at Michigan City next September, "providing Floyd Fitzsimmons and I can come to an agreement on the financial end of the deal," the champion said tonight.

"I agreed some time ago to meet a suitable opponent at Michigan City, but no articles were sent to me and nothing definite was done about a guarantee, so I had about given up thinking of a September bout with Greb or any one else.

"However, if Fitzsimmons can sign Greb and we can reach an agreement when he comes out here to sign me, as I suppose he will, why, I am ready to go ahead with the bout.

"I am continuing my light training and will be in shape for the fight if it goes through.

"Jimmy De Forest was in to see me today," he added, "and offered me a substantial guarantee if I would fight Wills for him next July 4.

"I told him Tex Rickard had the first call on my services and that I did not doubt Rickard would make me a satisfactory offer, but that if for any reason Rickard dropped out, then we might talk business."

Arrangements With Kearns.

Dempsey said the task of straightening out his business affairs with Jack Kearns, his former manager, would keep him busy for weeks.

"There is still a lot of detail to be gone through in connection with the division of our property," he explained, "none of which would interest the public but which will keep me busy for weeks.

"Roughly speaking, Kearns takes the Wilshire apartments here, and I take the Barbara Hotel; and I do my own managing."

The Wilshire apartments is a piece of property valued at $300,000 and is unencumbered. The Barbara is said to be worth more than half a million, but there is a $200,000 mortgage on it.

RICKARD NEGOTIATING A WILLS-TUNNEY BOUT

Confers With Mullins and Gibson for Match in September—May Bill It as 'Title.'

Negotiations for a fight between Harry Wills and Gene Tunney next September, which possibly may be billed as a world's heavyweight championship battle in the event Jack Dempsey should again be placed under ban by the New York State Athletic Commission, were launched yesterday by Tex Rickard. The promoter, apparently desiring to stage at least one big heavyweight battle this Fall should Dempsey fail to come to a satisfactory agreement with the commission next Tuesday on the Wills challenge, held conferences yesterday with Paddy Mullins and Billy Gibson, managers of Wills and Tunney, respectively, and both accepted Rickard's proposition conditionally.

Rickard said, however, that all depended on what transpires at next Tuesday's commission meeting, when a showdown on the Dempsey-Wills controversy is scheduled. The commission held an informal meeting yesterday, but announced that it had not taken up the heavyweight championship situation. It was also stated that the commission had not received a telegram from Dempsey, which, according to a dispatch from the Coast on Thursday, the champion had announced he would send to the board accepting a Wills fight for July 4, 1926.

Should Dempsey fail to make his peace permanently with the commission on next Tuesday, Rickard said he was preparing to hold a Wills-Tunney bout this Fall. He added that he would be willing to stage the match in any event, but it is doubtful whether this can be brought about if Dempsey steps into the arena, as both challengers say they would rather fight Dempsey than each other.

Gibson said he still was most anxious to get a Dempsey fight for Tunney. If, however, Dempsey will not fight, he said he would be ready to close a match with Wills for the championship.

Mullins was more conditional in his acceptance of Rickard's offer. Wills, he said, would have to be officially recognized as the world's champion before he would consent to a Tunney fight.

"The only fight we want right now," said Mullins, "is the Dempsey fight. Wills has been recognized by the commission as the foremost challenger for the title, and if Dempsey refuses to come to terms we expect the commission to declare Wills the champion. If this is done, Wills will be ready to defend his title against Tunney any time. But it must be understood that Wills enters the ring the champion and Tunney the challenger, in which case Wills would receive 37½ per cent. of the receipts and Tunney 12½."

Just how much of a stumbling block this demand by Mullins would prove in the path of the proposed fight remains to be seen, but Rickard yesterday appeared inclined to believe he would be able to adjust the matter of terms satisfactorily once it is definitely determined that the two contenders would meet.

Rickard believes the fight would easily prove the biggest match that could be held this year without Dempsey. He was not prepared to say definitely where he contemplated holding it, but the Yankee Stadium is the most likely place.

In the absence of the expected telegram from Dempsey the commission held an uneventful meeting. Routine matters were disposed of and the decks cleared for action for next Tuesday's meeting. In addition to the Dempsey-Wills matter, the Mickey Walker-Dave Shade issue also is scheduled for settlement.

3 BOXING SHOWS OFF.

Rain Stops Bayonne, Golden City and Ocean View Bouts.

Rain yesterday caused the postponement of the open-air boxing show at the Bayonne Stadium in Bayonne, N. J., in which Louis (Kid) Kaplan, world's featherweight champion, was to have appeared against Bill Kennedy of New Orleans in the featured event of twelve rounds. The show is scheduled to take place next Wednesday night with the entire card to remain intact.

The weather also caused a cancellation of the Golden City A. A. show in Carnarsie last night in which Charlie Goodman and Spencer Gardner are booked to meet until the night of Aug. 14. The Harry London-Jack Sharkey bout at the Ocean View A. A. in Long Branch, N. J., was postponed until tonight.

GENARO WINS BOUT IN 11TH ON A FOUL

LOSER FLOORED IN FIFTH

Frankie Genaro, holder of the American flyweight championship, won from Hilley Levine, Coney Island bantamweight, on a foul in the eleventh round of a scheduled twelve-round bout at the Rockaway Beach Arena last night. Despite the fact that there was a severe storm, a crowd of more than 2,000 persons turned out to see the battle which was fought indoors.

Levine, who had been badly beaten up to this stage, had been warned twice for hitting low, and in the eleventh round, after 1 minute and 9 seconds of action, he was disqualified by Referee Patsy Haley. Genaro weighed 113¼ pounds and Levine 118¾ pounds.

Genaro displayed the same form that has marked his work from the time he first gained recognition. He outfought and outpunched the willing Levine virtually all the way. Levine put up a courageous battle and every was willing to exchange punches with the shifty Genaro, but his courage was far from enough to cope with the elusive champion. Genaro gave Levine a genuine boxing lesson and punished his Coney Island opponent with his cutting lefts and his hard rights.

Genaro punished Levine so often with his sharp left in the early round that the Coney Island representative, annoyed at his failure to reply with anything in the way of effective blows, started to swing wildly, and a number of these punches landed foul. It was for these offenses that Levine twice was warned by the referee, and when, in the eleventh round, in a final effort to connect with a punch that would end the attack of the ever-aggressive Genaro, Levine struck a telling blow below the belt, and it was then that Referee Haley stepped in and awarded the fight to Genaro.

Before the eight-round semi-final bout went on the rain came down in torrents and leaked through the roof in many places. Spectators inside were forced to put up umbrellas, but no one seemed to mind, for Anthony Ricco of Philadelphia, sometimes known as Chick Kansas, and Frankie Nanci of Miami put up a hard fight. Rico got the judges' decision. He weighed 121, against 125½ for Nanci.

The other three bouts also went the limit. Joe Magnelo of Brooklyn, 110 pounds, got the judges' decision over Joseph Eulo of Jersey City, 111, in four rounds. Willie Suss of Brooklyn, weighing 119, and Willie O'Connell of the west side, weighing 121, went six rounds to a draw. The other six-rounder saw Joe Farrentino of Brooklyn, 110 pounds, defeat Nat Stavitsky of East New York, who scaled 114½.

KELLY'S HOME RUN UPSETS CUBS, 4 TO 3

NEHF HOLDS FAST TO LEAD

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Long George Kelly, who can cover a lot of ground by merely lying down, jarred a home run into the left field bleachers today and completely changed the complexion of a ball game. Up to the eighth inning the complexion had been nothing to boast of: After the eighth it was rosy and radiant.

Besides supplying a synthetic blush, George added three runs to the Giant score with his potent punch. These runs were no more useful to the Giants than food is to a starving man. They made the score 4 to 3 in favor of New York, and Arthur Nehf, who had relieved Wayland Dean, saw to it that there was no funny business in the Chicago eighth and ninth.

The first thing William Wrigley Jr. should do next Fall is to move his fences back. The Cubs are slowly advancing backward simply because the opposing teams are quick to see that it takes only a glorified bunt to land the ball in the laps of the customers. Wrigley should either enlarge his playground or make the left field fans special deputies, with power to catch any balls that come their way.

Take the eighth inning today, for example. The Cubs would like to take it and throw it into the lake, but take it nevertheless. Tony Kaufmann, the agile Chicago righthander, was breezing along to an easy victory. He had hopped into terrific trouble in that inning and hopped right out again until Kelly came to bat.

Frisch Opens With Double.

Frisch led off with a double to left, and Young walked. Two runs were needed to tie. For no reason at all Charley Grimm booted Beusel's grounder and filled the bases as full as they can ever be under the present rules.

With Memphis Bill Terry, their best long-distance hitter, coming up, the Giants were all set to make a big killing. The Cub outfielders moved back until they were leaning against the fences. But Terry crossed them by hitting to the pitcher, who threw to Mr. Gabby Hartnett. One out. Gabby tossed to Grimm. Two out. Young moved to third and Meusel to second.

Some Chicago strategists were of the opinion tonight that Kaufmann should have walked Kelly, inasmuch as first base was empty. But Mr. Kaufmann likes to toy with dynamite. He looked Long George squarely in the eye and served him one in or near the groove. The next seen of the ball, it was descending into the paw of a large butter and egg man in the left-field bleachers.

This, by the way, made the Giants' record here read three out of four. It also brought the Giants a little closer to first place. The Pirates, who were idle, are now slightly more than a game ahead.

Kaufmann had something on the ball besides the cover. The Giants nicked him for a run in the second inning and then relapsed into a state of coma. Meanwhile, the Cubs had scored twice in the second and their lead was reinforced when Cliff Heathcote boomed a homer over the right-field parapet in the sixth.

A walk to Meusel started the ball rolling in the second. Terry singled to centre, Meusel pausing at second. Kelly flied out, but it was deep enough to allow Meusel to rumble to third, which was an excellent thing, for he was able to score a minute later on Lindstrom's long hoist down the midway.

Dean Surrenders Advantage.

Dean promptly proceeded to surrender his advantage. After Grigsby had singled, Brooks soaked a double to right, the high wind carrying the ball out of Young's clutches. Grigsby hoofed homeward while Kelly was attending to Grimm's grounder. Hartnett walked. Kaufmann hit to Frisch, who fumbled long enough to miss a double play, Brooks scoring while Hartnett was being forced. Then Adams doubled to left, but further damage was averted when Frisch engulfed Maranville's fly.

Nehf had two out in the eighth when Brooks singled and Grimm walked. This brought Hartnett to the plate and the crowd to its feet, but Mr. Gabby socked a very vertical fly which Southworth grabbed lovingly.

Pep Young made one of his typically smart plays in the third. Heathcote singled to right and Young fired the ball to first, catching the Bruin while he was crawling back in desperate haste.

Mr. Heathcote looked as sheepish as a boy caught in the jam closet. Oh! well, live and learn. These city slickers.

The Giants softened Kaufmann in the seventh. Gowdy singled with two dead and Bentley, hitting for Dean, walked. Walker ran for Gowdy. The stage was all set, but Southworth bounced a short one to Maranville, who made a nice play at first.

Maranville heard a chorus of jeers when he came to bat in the ninth. The fans blame the Rabbit for everything, including the weather.

The weather, by the way, was nothing to speak of—cold and blustery with a wind blowing from the north. Circulations were generally bad.

MAY TWIRLS REDS TO 7TH STRAIGHT

Yields 8 Hits and 7 Passes, but Roush's Triple and a Wild Pitch Beat Braves, 4-3.

CINCINNATI, July 31 (AP).—With Jakey May on the mound, the Cincinnati Reds gathered their seventh consecutive game by defeating the Boston Braves, 4 to 3, in the opening game today of the present series.

Although May allowed eight hits and gave seven bases on balls, he pitched remarkable ball when Boston threatened to rally. Roush scored the winning run on a wild pitch after he had tripled in the sixth inning.

7 IN LAST 2 FRAMES WIN FOR ROBINS, 9-4

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, July 31.—Dazzy Vance outpitched Leo Dickerman here this afternoon, and the Robins won the final game of the series from the Cardinals by a score of 9 to 4. Vance allowed ten hits, but increased his season's crop of strike-outs to 153 by fanning eight batsmen. Dazzy retired Toporcer, Hornsby and Bottomley on strikes in succession in the first inning. It was Vance's third straight victory and his fifteenth winning game of the season.

Dickerman, a former Robin, was effective until the eighth inning. Only five hits were made off Leo in the first seven frames, but after that he weakened, and the Robins scored seven runs in the last two sessions, making two in the eighth and five in the ninth. It was the first time a right-handed pitcher has started a game against the Flatbush team since July 15.

Although Vance retired the side on strikes in the first inning do not by any means imagine that the Cardinals did not have a chance to score. Dazzy started by passing Jack Smith, who stole second as Toporcer fanned. Hornsby was called out on strikes, and as he watched the third strike go by Smith stole third. A hit by Bottomley meant a run, but Vance struck him out.

Three Scratch Hits off Vance.

In the second inning three scratch hits were made off Vance and two of them produced a run. Hafey led off with an infield hit to Stock, and Mueller followed with a towering fly that dropped close to the left field foul line for a double, on which Hafey scored from first. Mitchell threw out Bell, but O'Farrell raised a short fly to right that fell safely for a single. Mueller stopped at third. Vance then fanned Dickerman, and Smith, hitting the first ball pitched, forced O'Farrell.

The only hit made by the Robins off Dickerman in the first four innings was a two-bagger by Mitchell. That wallop was made in the first chapter and did nothing but improve his batting mark.

In the fifth, however, the Robins gathered four hits and took the lead. Brown led off with a single that was too hot for Hornsby to handle. Johnston lifted a pop fly to Toporcer, but DeBerry singled to centre. Vance helped along his own welfare with a double to right that sent Brown over the plate with the tying run. Mitchell followed with a single to right and DeBerry scored. Stock's best effort was a short fly to Smith, and Wheat closed the inning with a grounder to Toporcer, who threw him out.

Robins Score Two in Eighth.

There was no further scoring until the eighth, when, with two out, the Robins obtained two more runs. With one down, Wheat singled and Fournier drew a pass. Cox hit to Dickerman and Wheat was forced at third, Bell making a great gloved-hand catch of Leo's throw. Brown then tripled to left, sending Fournier and Cox over the plate. Johnston ended the session with a grounder to Toporcer.

The Cards came back in their half of the eighth and scored one run. It resulted from a single by Hornsby, a force play at second and Mueller's second double. Heinie's hit scored Bottomley, who had forced his manager at second base.

Vance started the Robins' ninth inning attack on Dickerman by drawing a pass. Mitchell singled and Stock sent them both home with a triple to left. Wheat bounced a single off Bottomley's gloved hand and Stock counted. Passes to Fournir and Cox filled the bases. Two more runs were scored when Brown singled to centre. Johnston ended the session by hitting into a double play.

In their half of the ninth the Cardinals scored two runs. O'Farrell singled and Reinhart batted for Dickerman. He made a single. A pass to Toporcer filled the bases, and then came two sacrifice flies by Hornsby and Bottomley.

Notes of the Game.

In the ten-inning game in which Vance fanned seventeen batters "Specs" Toporcer gained the distinction of being the only batter who did not strike out. In today's game Toporcer was the first Cardinal to fan. He whiffed in the first frame and was called out on strikes in the third

When Toporcer fanned in the third he was Vance's one hundred and fiftieth victim of the season.

There is no doubt about Vance being a good box-office attraction. He was advertised to pitch today, and in spite of threatening weather there was an increase in attendance. About 4,000 fans passed through the turnstiles.

When Mueller hit his two-bagger in the second inning he limped to the keystone bag. He broke his right ankle a month ago and still feels the effects of the injury.

U. S. OARSMEN TAKE 5 CANADIAN TITLES

WRIGHT'S CREW BEATS SON'S

Coach's Penn A. C. Eight Leads Argonauts, Stroked by Wright Jr., Over Line—Gilmore Scores.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 31.—Honors in the final events of the Canadian Royal Henley here today were equally divided between crews from the United States and Canada. Of the ten championships decided, five went to oarsmen south of the boundary and the same number to Canadians.

The West Side Rowing Club of Buffalo led the field with three victories and the Detroit Boat Club, the Argonauts of Toronto and the Don Rowing Club, also of Toronto, each won two titles, with the Lachine Rowing Club of Montreal taking the other event.

More than 7,000 persons saw some of the most thrilling races ever staged on Canadian waters, the finishes in the junior and 140-pound eights being less than two feet. In the junior eights, Coach Duffield's Detroit crew won by six inches from the University of Toronto, with the Argonauts but a length behind. Lachine's margin in the 140-pound eights was a foot and a half over the Niagara District eight from St. Catharines, which used a former Leander Club shell.

Goerss Conquers Levy.

Buffalo started its winning day when G. Goerss of the West Side Club finished six lengths ahead of E. Levy, a clubmate, in the 140-pound primary singles, with Sven Berg, now of the Malta Boat Club of Philadelphia, trailing Levy by more than five lengths.

In the 150-pound special fours, Buffalo showed three lengths to the good over the Ottawa crew, and the Bison City string was extended to three when the West Side juniors beat the Dons of Toronto by a length and a half.

Philadelphia scullers monopolized the spotlight in the senior quarter-mile dash when they won all four heats and tomorrow will have the championship all to themselves. Those who qualified are Paul Costello and Charles McIlvaine of the Penn. A. C., W. Garrett Gilmore, Bachelor Barge Club, and Algernon Fitzpatrick of the Malta Boat Club.

Costello, showing surprising form, eliminated Johnny Durnan, the Canadian dash champion, in the first heat when he won by a length and a half in the fast time of minute 25 seconds. Barclay Knight of the Philadelphia Bachelors also was eliminated in this heat.

Fitzpatrick, national dash titleholder, beat Walter Hapgood of the Bachelors by one length in one minute 30 seconds. Gilmore, the national sculling champion, had a half length to spare over Chester Turner of the Argonauts and had to row hard to win in 1:32½. McIlvaine outclassed the veteran W. Durnan, uncle of Johnny, in the fourth and last heat, winning by four lengths in 1:39.

Wright's Crew Is Victor.

Joe Wright's Penn. A. C. senior eight, with Jack Kelly, Olympic star, in No. 2, won its heat from the Argonauts of Toronto, stroked by Joe Wright Jr., a young giant of 185 pounds and standing 6 feet 2 inches. The University of Toronto eight, containing five of the men who rowed in the runner-up crew to Yale in the last Olympics, took the second heat from the Lachines of Montreal, and tomorrow will fight it out with the Philadelphia eight and the Detroit junior eight, which moves up by winning in its class today.

This is the first time that Joe Wright has ever coached a crew against the Canadians. He saw Stroke Maguire send his eight over the line a length and a half ahead of his son's Argonauts, who are coached by Tommy Allison, a Wright pupil of some years ago. The Penn. A. C. eight covered the none too smooth Henley course of one mile, 550 yards, in 7 minutes 19 seconds, while the University of Toronto did 7:28¼ a half hour later, in the twilight. The Edward Hanlan trophy, the most sought-for prize in Canadian rowing, will go to the winner tomorrow.

The points scored today were divided as follows among the various competing clubs:

Dons, Toronto, 13; West Side, Buffalo, 13; Argonauts, Toronto, 9; Detroit, 7; University of Toronto, 4; Lachine, Montreal, 3; Niagara District A. C., St. Catharines, 3; Hamilton, 2; Bachelor Barge, Philadelphia, 2; Ottawa, 2; Brockville, 1; Malta B. C., Philadelphia, 1; Penn A. C., Philadelphia, 0; Wyandotte Legion, Wyandotte, Mich., 0.

YANKS HAND RELEASE TO CATCHER O'NEILL

By HARRY CROSS.

The weeding-out process of the oldtimers on the Yankees got under way yesterday with the unconditional release of Catcher Steve O'Neill. This is only the start and before the season is over other veterans will be on their way. In another few weeks, when the minor league season ends, the new talent which the Yanks have corraled will be headed toward New York, which will mean that not a few of the older players will be somewhat anxious about the future.

O'Neill was a veteran when he came from Cleveland to the Yankees and he has taken part in only thirty-five games. Steve has become portly and his speed has been affected accordingly. He was quite a catcher, Steve was, a few years back in Cleveland. But the coming of Luebbe has given the Yanks a promising young backstop and a place had to be made for him. Bengough now has the first call on the job.

Just when the Yanks had hit a reasonable rate of speed for the first time this year of course the rain had to come along and prevent them from taking a possible fourth straight from St. Louis. Yesterday's game with the Browns was called off and will be played as part of a double-header when St. Louis pays its final visit in September.

Naturally the Yanks are somewhat elated over what they accomplished against St. Louis. It will give them considerable enthusiasm when they start the series at the Yankee Stadium this afternoon with the Cleveland Indians. Cleveland has in its midst the league's leading batsman, Tris Speaker, who leaped to the front only a few weeks ago against the Yankee pitching. It was while the Huggins band was visiting Cleveland last that Speaker hurdled over the .400 mark.

The Yankees still have a long way to go before they reach the standard set by the better clubs of the circuit. The hitting and pitching is still far below what it should be. The best batsmen on the Yanks are those who are not in the game regularly. Veach leads with .370. Combs is the real leader with .359, with Paschal close behind him with .354. Ernie Johnson in his utility job is hitting .315.

Of the regulars, Dugan and Gehrig are hitting .308, but Meusel, who has always been a clouter, has an average of .286, not impressive for him, while Ruth, who always led the swatting brigade, is hitting only .275. Ward is down to .247, while Wanninger is hitting .262.

PASSAIC COACH RESIGNS.

PASSAIC, N. J., July 31.—Professor Ernest A. Blood, Physical Director of the Passaic public schools, tendered his resignation today, to be effective at once, and will become basketball coach of St. Benedict's Preparatory School in Newark. The Superintendent of Schools made no statement in connection with the resignation.

Professor Blood coached the Passaic High School basketball team, which during a period of five years won 168 victories without a single defeat. The team's long winning streak was finally broken in a game with the Hackensack High School team on Feb. 12 last.

Grand total, 6,604 yards; par, 71.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ontario, July 31.—With the two preliminary rounds finished and the stage in the annual Canadian open golf championship all set for the critical third and fourth rounds tomorrow, the American invaders have dug their way into almost impregnable positions. When the big field had played through its second round on the Lambton Golf and Country Club course today, the first four names on the score board were those of American professionals, and there were only three Dominion representatives within the first dozen.

Leo Diegel, the Glen Oaks professional who is defending the title he won last year, remains at the head of the procession, his total for the two rounds being 144 strokes, two over the par for the distance. Leo did not do quite so well as yesterday, when he established a new competitive record with his 69, but he did well enough to remain in the lead by the margin of a single stroke. He had a 75 today, which lacked only a shot of being the best mark of the round, Walter Hagen having a 74. Several equalled Diegel's score, but on the whole the going was much harder than it was on the opening day, when the weather conditions were ideal.

Those who meandered forth today, especially the early starters, had to struggle against a stiff wind which was baffling on several holes. When the leading couples went out in mid-afternoon it had died down somewhat, but not to any appreciable extent.

Hagen, starting two strokes behind Diegel, had a gorgeous opportunity to wrest the lead from the Long Islander and when he finished the first nine holes the appearances were that he would succeed. Out in 34 against Diegel's 38, he had made up his deficit and added two strokes to his advantage, but it took him 40 to come home while Diegel was pounding over the same distance in 37, so that at the finish the Great Neck professional still was leading the field by a single shot.

It was Diegel's totals for the two rounds, therefore, that determined those who are to be dropped from tomorrow's competition. The rules of the Canadian Association provided that only those within twenty strokes of the leader at the end of the first two rounds are eligible to continue playing. Only those who are 164 or better therefore are left to play the last two rounds, which means that about sixty golfers are to be dropped tomorrow, leaving about eighty contestants in the field. Of these there are not more than a dozen at the outside who have any possible chance, and it is hardly likely that any of those whose totals are beyond 150 will figure in the final reckoning.

Among those in this classification are Willie Macfarlane, the American open champion and his predecessor in office, Cyril Walker of Englewood. Macfarlane was unable to get going in today's round and only succeeded in keeping himself in the hunt by a hard, uphill struggle. His total now is 152, eight shots back of Diegel, while Walker's is 151. They still have a chance, for there are two rounds left to play, but it will take some cracking on the part of the leaders to enable the Westchester and New Jersey pair to work their way up the ladder.

Immediately behind Diegel and Hagen are M. J. Brady of Winged Foot, who had a 75 today on top of his 72 yesterday, and Frank Sprogell of Saginaw, Mich., who had identical scores. The next in line is Andrew Kay, the little Scotchman, who represents the home club. Kay had a 77 today, giving him a total of 148 for fifth place. Joe Kirkwood, the trick-shotartist, is sixth, his total being an even 150, while tied with Walker at 151 is W. J. Thompson, one of the leading Canadian amateurs, hailing from the Mississauga Club here.

Three Tie Macfarlane.

Three are tied with Macfarlane at 152, two of them being Americans and one a Canadian. The Americans are George Christ of Rochester and Frank Williams of Grand Rapids, and the Canadian is C. H. Perkins of Brantford.

The gallery had a rare treat today, for the officials started Diegel, Macfarlane, and Hagen with only one pair in between, so the spectators were able to hop about here and there and keep in constant touch with the situation as it affected the three leading lights. However, it was Hagen who drew the greater part of the gallery, especially since neither Diegel nor Macfarlane started in impressive fashion. For the first nine holes Hagen gave his following a rare golfing treat, for he was never above fours and played each hole in par figures. He might have been even lower if his putter had been working as it generally does.

He began with a par 4 at the first hole, but it should have been a 3, for his mashie approach left his ball not more than a yard from the cup. He used an iron off the second tee and was lucky not to get into a trap on the right, his ball stopping less than a foot from the face of the bunker. He got his par 3 by holing a four-footer and was near 3's at the next two, missing putts by hairs. His approach to the fifth hole left him only two yards away, but he was short on his putt, and again at the seventh—strange doings for Hagen, who is generally a bold putter.

His first break came at the tenth hole where he pitched his second shot into a trap, tried to get out with his putter and failed to get close to the hole and then took three putts from where he was. From there on he went along in par figures until he came to the seventeenth, where he took a 5, and on the home green he was trapped and the experience cost him a 4, one over par. Taken all in all, however, Hagen's play was close to perfection itself, his drives were tremendously long and nearly every one placed advantageously, while his approaching at times was uncannily true. It was not often that he was not putting for birdies.

Diegel started off in a staggering fashion, due mainly to the fact that his putter was behaving badly. He had a fifteen-foot putt for a 3 at the first hole, but slid by the cup and at the second he failed to get on the green and then chipped four feet past and missed the putt. That put him a stroke above par, and he lost another at the third hole when he drove so close to a bunker that he couldn't take his stance for his second shot and took a 5. He had another 5, one over par, at the sixth hole, where he took three putts and finished the outgoing half with another 5 at the ninth hole, where his drive was only a few feet off the fairway, but sent his ball into a road and up against a rock.

From there on, though, Diegel made only one mistake, that being the eleventh hole, where he was over the green with his second shot. He began with a birdie 4 at the tenth, chipping to within a yard of the hole, and after a 4 at the short twelfth played better than par golf from then on until the some hole, which cost him a 4. He and Hagen have been paired for tomorrow's round and a great duel is in sight.

Macfarlane was unable to make much progress, hitting his shots in a manner that was hardly typical of him. For instance, he underclubbed himself at the second hole and then chipped four yards past the pin. He hooked into a bunker going to the third and it cost him another stroke to par. The worst break of all came at the fourth when he was putting for a 3, but wound up with a 5.

Having got those mistakes out of his system, he was traveling in par style until he came to the eighth hole where he put his drive into a brook that runs along the right hand side of the fairway and the penalty gave him a 6. He did better on the incoming side and par at the last hole would have given him a 78. He did not get the par and so had to count up a 79 which may make some difference tomorrow.

MISS COLLETT WINS GRISWOLD GOLF CUP

VICTOR IN UPHILL FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 31.—Miss Glenna Collett won the Griswold trophy today, defeating Mrs. H. D. Sterrett of Hutchinson, Kansas, 1 up, after one of the hardest and most bitterly contested matches of her career. Miss Collett was on the defensive almost all the time for the first nine holes, having all she could do to even matters with the hard driving, accurate putting Kansas star who took the first hole and waged an aggressive fight against the Providence girl from then on.

The battle swayed back and forth constantly. Miss Collett managed to even matters at the turn and then was able to carry the battle to Mrs. Sterrett. She held Mrs. Sterrett safely from then on and beat her by one stroke on the eighteenth.

The irony of the game was never better illustrated than in today's match. Mrs. Sterrett had been almost unbeatable on her putts from the beginning of the match. Time after time she thrilled the big gallery by her masterly putts. No matter how far from the pin she lay, the Kansas golfer always was dangerous. Yet, on the eighteenth hole when she lay a scant yard from the hole and with the match depending on it, she missed the putt.

Miserable Weather Prevails.

Miss Collett played beautiful golf to win after getting away to a bad start by losing the first hole. The match was played under miserable weather conditions. Rain fell almost constantly, but the big gallery, while drenched, seemed oblivious of everything but the match.

After the match the prizes were awarded by President J. P. Taylor Armstrong of the Shenecossett Club. The Griswold trophy now becomes the permanent possession of Miss Collett who already had won it twice.

Miss Collett lost the first hole, 6 to 4. Both made long drives to the right of the course and producing much longer No. 2 shots than has been the rule in first flight matches in this tournament. Mrs. Sterrett was almost on in two, but Miss Collett landed in the trap and took two to get out and on the green. She missed her putt and conceded the hole when Mrs. Sterrett got on in three by a fine approach shot.

Mrs. Sterrett drove into the rough, on the second shot onto the road and sank a putt after a fine approach. Miss Collett was on in 2, barely missing a long putt for a birdie 3, and they halved the hole with a par 4. Both players made good approaches to the third, Miss Collett sinking a long putt and winning the hole, 4 to 5.

On the fourth both were on the green in one, Miss Collett rolling to the extreme corner, from which she holed in two putts, losing when Mrs. Sterrett sank her putt for a birdie 2, again leaving the Western contender one up. They divided the fifth with 5s when Miss Collett missed a putt but stymied her opponent. Mrs. Sterrett was on in 3 at the sixth and had a better lie than Miss Collett, but conceded the hole, 4 to 5, when the latter rimmed the cup on her third.

Match Again Squared.

That made the match even again, but on the seventh Mrs. Sterrett was 1 up again when, with a remarkable approach, she laid the ball dead on the pin for a birdie 4. On the eighth both drives were better than 225 yards and the hole was halved. At the turn the match was even again when Mrs. Sterrett, landing at the road with a clump of trees between her and the green, conceded the hole, 4 to 7.

Miss Collett won the tenth, 4 to 5, making her 1 up, but her lead was brief, for on the very next hole Mrs. Sterrett sank a long putt for a birdie 2 after both had driven to the green.

The twelfth and thirteenth were halved, but Miss Collett won the next, 3 to 4. That put her one up again, but in the fifteenth her lead was snatched away once more, when Mrs. Sterrett won, 3 to 4, evening the match when Miss Collett missed her second putt. They divided the sixteenth with 4 each and the seventeenth with par 5s.

With the match still even Mrs. Sterrett started the eighteenth by driving into a trap, but electrified the gallery with a spectacular recovery, followed by an approach that dropped almost into the cup. Miss Collett made a fine 200-yard drive and was on the green in two. She missed her long putt. Mrs. Sterrett missed her putt, a ridiculously easy one compared to several she made during today's match. Miss Collett then sank her putt and the match was over.

Mrs. R. H. Barlow Merion won the final match in the second flight by defeating Mrs. E. C. Stone, Belmont Springs, 7 and 6.

SEES CINEMA'S VALUE AS HISTORY TEACHER

But Hilaire Belloc Says the Picturization Must Be True to the Facts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 31.—The value of the cinema as a teacher of history was stressed today in a speech by Hilaire Belloc, but he insisted that the picturization must be true to the facts. "I say the other day," he said, "a cinema representation of Nero wherein the Roman Emperor was represented as a vulgar German with four chins. Whatever else Nero may have been he was at least a gentleman."

Belloc pointed out as an example of educational value the pictorial history of London Bridge of today and 200 years ago, and so on back to the time of the Romans. The making of such film would not cost much except in cardboard and paint and would give a true idea of the peoples of different ages, their dress and gestures.

JOHN EMERSON RETURNS.

Hopeful That Reinhardt Will Direct as Guest of Actors' Theatre.

While in London, Mr. Emerson said he had completed arrangements for the production of his play, "The Whole Town's Talking," by Thomas Dagnall, in association with Gilbert Miller.

After visiting Paris, Berlin and Vienna, Mr. Emerson went to Venice to see Max Reinhardt about his proposed visit to New York in the Fall.

"I have every hope," he said, "that Professor Reinhardt will come to the Actors' Theatre as guest director for a production during the coming Winter. He is enthusiastic about America, and assured me he would do all in his power to arrange his affairs in Berlin, Vienna and Salzburg so as to permit him to spend several months in New York this season."

Mr. Emerson added that more than 40 per cent. of the plays produced in London this season were of American origin.

Margot Kelly Back From Europe.

Margot Kelly, the actress who starred in New York last season in "Loves of Lulu," returned yesterday on the Cunarder Berengaria from a trip to London, where she saw the official censor of the drama and tried to get permission for the production of the play there. The censor refused his consent. Then Miss Kelly saw eight plays in four days, she said, and went to Paris with her mother. She saw the French play which Mr. Dillingham is having adapted for her to play the leading rôle this Fall.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Cackling Hens," a comedy by Miller and Lyles, the negro comedians in George White's "Scandals," is announced for production by Mr. White in November.

An Italian repertoire company, headed by Maria Bazzi, will come to New York in September to present a series of plays. Mme. Bazzi has recently been appearing in Italy in a group of American plays, including "Rain," "Anna Christie" and "Enter Madame."

Mabel Normand will leave Hollywood, Cal., for New York today to begin her five-year stage contract with A. H. Woods, play producer. Her contract also calls for some motion picture work.

CATHEDRAL SEIZED AS BISHOP IS JAILED

PLATON TAKES POSSESSION

A taxicab taking Bishop Adam Philippovsky to the Ludlow Street Jail to serve a thirty-day sentence for contempt of court had barely left the Russian Cathedral of St. Nicholas at 15 East Ninety-seventh Street, yesterday afternoon, when six private detectives and a score of supporters of Archbishop Platon Rodzestvensky stormed three entrances to the rectory, battered in the doors and routed the remaining members of the Bishop's party.

The coup was accomplished only after the bitterest resistance on the part of the Rev. Michael Chervinsky, to whose care the Bishop had entrusted the cathedral property when he started for jail, and Mrs. Chervinsky. Abandoned by their constituents, who had fled at the first appearance of the Sheriff, the priest and his wife barricaded themselves in their bedroom on the third floor rear. Only after they had exhausted every strategy did they finally consent to the demand of the invaders to vacate the premises. Then, with heads high and oblivious to the taunts and jeers of the Archbishop's supporters, they got into a taxicab with their five-year-old son, and were driven away.

Maurice B. Gluck, attorney for Bishop Adam, who was cited for contempt of court at the same time and for whose arrest a warrant has been issued, was not taken into custody yesterday. Archbishop Platon's attorney said that they do not plan to arrest Gluck before Monday. "The main thing," he said, "was to get those people out of the cathedral. We have done that. We can get Gluck whenever we want him."

Deputies Demand Entrance.

Until 11 o'clock, the hour set by Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy for Bishop Adam to either vacate the cathedral premises or go to jail, many of the Bishop's adherents believed that he would obey the court and take refuge in the home of friends. But the appointed hour passed and two others. Then a blue and white taxicab bearing Deputy Sheriffs John Murphy and Leo Goldstein drew up before the front door, and the deputies showed their credentials to police officers on guard, mounted the front steps and rang the doorbell.

A minute later the Rev. Mr. Chervinsky appeared at the basement door. He was ordered to open the iron grating but the priest refused. The deputies were preparing to batter in the grating when there was a cry in the street and Bishop Adam, in full ecclesiastical regalia, was seen standing on the front steps of the cathedral.

Sheriff Murphy ran up to him with a copy of the order. The Bishop read it through. Then he said:

"I am found guilty of contempt of court. The court order which I am accused of violating and because of which I have been instructed to turn over my church to Platon, was never received by me. I was in Canada at the time and have never been served with copies of it. But I shall go with you."

While this was going on, a battery of cameramen, gathered in front of the cathedral, kept shooting away at the Bishop. But even while the photographers were making flashlights the Bishop stood unmoved. He neither spoke nor glanced up from the papers until he had read them through.

Then he started down the steps with Deputy Sheriff Murphy toward the taxicab. A great shout arose from all sides. The police had formed lines around the cathedral and would not let inquisitive persons near, but at the sight of the departing Bishop Russians rose from everywhere. They appeared in the windows of houses across the street, from behind piles of bricks and in doorways, and their cries were not diminished until the taxicab disappeared into Fifth Avenue.

Bishop Adam Put in Cell.

Two friends accompanied Bishop Adam to the jail. They were the Rev. John Kushwara of Yonkers and John G. Boruch of 195 Fourth Street, Passaic, N. J. The Bishop made no complaint. "Perhaps," he said, "through my misfortune I may be the means of ousting this usurper Platon, who comes here with no authority to take possession of our churches. It is such men as Platon who have brought Russia to her present miserable condition." Then he kissed his two friends in the Russian fashion, gave them his blessing, and was led by a turnkey to a cell.

Meanwhile, at the cathedral, Archbishop Platon's followers were taking possession. The taxicab in which the Bishop left was not out of sight before six private detectives appeared with H. H. Shepard, Platon's attorney, and Valerian Greaves, secretary of the cathedral congregation. The detectives carried two large beams, with which they began battering down the front doors, while others of the Platon party climbed the back fence and entered through the kitchen door.

Up to the time of the Bishop's arrest there had been at least twenty persons in the house, but after he left all but the Rev. Chervinsky and his wife and son, Oleg, fled through the back door. Oleg, who had apparently been instructed by his parents, stood just inside the doorway, yelling at the top of his voice. And he remained there while the invaders swept by. Father Chervinsky and his wife, hearing the men in the house, took refuge in bed with all their clothes on.

When the detectives went to the door of their room and called upon the Chervinskys to open it, Mrs. Chervinsky screamed and cried out to them that she was sick in bed. But they battered in the door and informed her that they would send for an ambulance at once.

Then both Chervinskys jumped out of bed and Mrs. Chervinsky began divesting herself of her clothing, confident that the detectives would never dare take her from the house in that condition.

"Listen, lady," one detective said, "we'll wrap you in a blanket and carry you out if you do that, so you might as well be sensible." The disrobing stopped and the priest and his wife seated themselves on chairs and tried to argue with the invaders.

A detective seized the priest and prepared to evict him, but Father Chervinsky eluded him and climbed upon his wife's lap. While she clung to her husband with one hand and to the chair with the other the detectives tried to separate them. When at last they succeeded the priest sat down and his wife sat on his lap, and for ten minutes the scene was repeated.

Finally, convinced that their struggles were futile and exhausted by their long fight, the Chervinsky gave up. They packed their clothing in bags and went down stairs, where Oleg was waiting, got into a taxicab and drove away.

Sacramental Wine Gone.

The next thing the Platon supporters did was to make a systematic search of the house. They reported that a year's supply of sacramental wine, about ten gallons, which had been left in the house, had been drained to the last drop. Inspection of the church revealed that the "winding sheet," a document of authority given to the church by Patriarch Tikhon and without which no Russian church can hold services, was missing. The seals of the Diocesan Council and of the church also were gone.

Half an hour later Archbishop Platon arrived. As he entered the door the clergy and laity present sang the welcome chant. Then they conducted him to the church, where thanksgiving services were held. The Archbishop made a short address, in which he thanked his followers for their loyal support. He told them there would be no services at the church next Sunday because of the condition in which it was found, and said it would have to be renovated and reconsecrated. This last, he said, was made necessary by the presence there of Bishop Adam, who he said was "no Bishop at all." Later the Archbishop held a reception in his study.

Mr. Greaves, speaking last night for Archbishop Platon, said that he regretted the fact that it had been necessary to send Bishop Adam to jail. "The Archbishop," Mr. Greaves said, "will appeal tomorrow to Justice Levy to release Bishop Adam. We think he has been punished enough. Besides, we do not believe it was his fault, but his counsel's. We know that he was badly advised."

FREE "AIDA" TONIGHT.

"Aida," the first of the grand opera performances to be presented free to the public by the City of New York, will be given in Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, this evening at 8:45. More than 40,000 tickets have been distributed through the office of City Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer and the five Park Commissioners. In addition it is expected that 10,000 more persons will seek admission to any seats that remain unoccupied after 8 o'clock.

In case of rain the performance will be postponed to Monday evening at the same hour.

A Brooklyn artist, Mrs. Gertrude Wieder, will sing the rôle of Amneris. Her last performance of this part was during the course of four operas given by the Civic Opera Association at the Polo Grounds in June, 1924, when she was called upon at the last minute to replace Carmela Ponselle, indisposed by a severe cold.

She sings at the Union Temple of Brooklyn and the Free Synagogue of New York. For the last two seasons she has been heard in Brooklyn opera presentations of "La Gioconda" and "Il Trovatore" and on several occasions with the Schola Cantorum.

$7,500 Prizes for Musical Works.

The committee of the Sesquicentennial International Exposition of Philadelphia is offering prizes aggregating $7,500 for original musical works to be given for the first time at the exposition next year. The competition is open to persons of all nationalities in this or in foreign countries. Three thousand dollars is offered for an opera; $2,000 for a symphony or large orchestral work; $2,000 for a ballet, pageant or masque, with full orchestral accompaniment; $500 for a capella choral suite. Manuscripts for the opera must be submitted by March 1, 1926. James Francis Cook, editor of The Etude, is Chairman of the Competition Committee.

MUSIC NOTES.

"The Beggar's Opera," which, on its revival in London in 1920, ran for more than a thousand nights, will be given in the ballroom of the Hotel Majestic Aug. 12 under the direction of Jerome Hart. The principal parts will be taken by members of the company which appeared at the Greenwich Village Theatre in December, 1920. They include Dorianne Bawn as Polly Peachum, Celia Turrill as Lucy Lockit and Herman Golhausen as Captain Macheath. Herman Neuman, and will act as conductor and harpsichordist, has arranged a version from the original work and from the score of Dr. Pepusch.

Twenty-four of the best negro soprano voices to be found in this section of the country will compete in a public audition and recital at Town Hall Friday evening, Aug. 7, for a free course of instruction in grand opera offered by Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana. Mr. Fontana will present the winner in "Aida." The twenty-four contestants were chosen from 250 heard in preliminary try-outs.

AN IMPORTANT VACANCY.

President COOLIDGE is reported as saying that he considers the office made vacant by the death of Ambassador BANCROFT to be the most important one that he has to fill. This is a sound view. The present strategic value of our embassy in Tokio is twofold. First of all, there is the need of an Ambassador there able and willing to smooth out, if possible, the minor difficulties which have arisen in our relations with Japan. Next comes the still more weighty consideration of the whole complex question of the Far East. That this is to be of critical significance for the United States during the coming years no informed person can doubt. This country has great opportunities as well as heavy responsibilities in the Orient, particularly just now in China. It is plain that they can best be dealt with if there is a good understanding and sympathetic cooperation with the Japanese Government.

That the President should, therefore, be looking for a man with an unusual combination of qualities to succeed Mr. BANCROFT is perfectly intelligible. To make of the Ambassadorship merely a political reward or a personal ornament would be inexcusable at this juncture. The type of man required may not be found in the regular diplomatic service. It is exceptional work that has to be done, and a man quite out of the ordinary should rightly be sought to do it. Undoubtedly, the Japanese people would deeply appreciate the sending of an American Ambassador who in character, cultivation and winning personal traits is an outstanding citizen. What is obviously required is one who in his own individuality would be a friendly gesture to Japan, and the sort of symbol of our good-will, and of our recognition of the great place which Japan has come to hold in the world, that would most impress the Japanese imagination.

There is no thought of urging flattery or servility. The note ought to be that of manly equality. An American Ambassador to Japan or any other country must represent the dignity and rights of his own Government as well as its conciliatory spirit. But the duty of filling the Tokio vacancy properly is so pressing that the President will be justified in taking time and searching as with a lighted candle in order to find the right man. And when he has, as we hope, had the good fortune to discover him, the man called upon ought to feel that he is summoned, even at great personal sacrifice, to do his country the very highest kind of patriotic service.

PLAIN TRUTHS ABOUT DEBTS.

In a concise summary of the Administration's policy toward Europe, Mr. WILLIAM R. CASTLE Jr., Chief of the Division of Western European Affairs of the Department of State, had some words to say at Williams College about the interallied debts which are of particular significance in view both of the authority with which he spoke and of the coming arrival of the Belgian Debt Funding Commission, which left Brussels yesterday. According to him, the Administration holds that > international relations must be founded on the sanctity of international obligations, that repudiation of these war debts or any others would indicate lack of good faith, that their cancellation would demonstrate sentimental weakness almost equally unsettling to sound international dealings.

This does not mean, however, that the United States wishes to be an exigent creditor. He stresses the determination of the Government to be liberal, "generous because it has no "intention of taking advantage of "weakness, no thought of overesti-"mating capacity to pay." The British settlement is to be the general guide, but there will be such departures from it as are necessary in order to meet the needs of each debtor.

In all this there is little that is new. Various spokesmen for the Administration and many others have striven to emphasize these general principles. Unfortunately, the nations of Europe have been reluctant to listen. They have thought that a settlement might be avoided or at least evaded; and hoped that if they cast upon America the reproach of being an unscrupulous and cruel creditor they might be able to bamboozle our Government into cancellation, partial or entire. But to them Mr. CASTLE answers pointedly, speaking as an official intimately acquainted with the Administration's policy: "The American Government "insists that these debts be formally "recognized through the negotiation "of funding arrangements." This must mean that the missions which come henceforth are expected to get down to business. The Administration is no longer willing to allow the question of debts to remain unsettled, and is determined to come to an understanding with its debtors, based on a study of the capacity of each to pay.

The validity of the debts as debts is not even to be open to discussion. Their formal recognition as binding obligations will be demanded. This much settled, full allowances will be made for the special problems of each nation. If in some cases a moratorium is necessary, it will undoubtedly be granted. If in others only a nominal rate of interest can be paid during the first years, such an arrangement will be made. But the time for juggling and temporizing is over. The Government, Mr. CASTLE affirms, is determined to bring about a funding of all war debts to the United States, and to do it in the near future. It has been more than patient to date.

EVICTED GERMANS AND POLES.

The melancholy plight of German families evicted from their farms in Poland, and of Polish miners deported from the Ruhr, is symptomatic of the tension on her eastern border which Germany hopes to lessen through membership in the League of Nations. That Poland acted within her rights, as defined by The Hague Court of Arbitration, Germany does not question, but she protests warmly against the suddenness and violence of the eviction. Poland retorts that she gave due notice long ago and that an orderly exodus was prevented by German consular agents who lulled their nationals in Poland into a false security. The implication is that the German authorities wished to keep the peasants on what is now Polish territory with a view to a "rectification" of the frontier. There is some evidence of such an animus in the German retaliation. Even more suddenly, some 12,000 Polish families are being shunted from the Ruhr to the Silesian mining region, already in the grip of a crisis of unemployment. Poles and Germans together, the number of unfortunates is estimated at 50,000.

A somewhat ironic contrast is afforded by the recent handling of Greeks fleeing or being transported from Turkish dominions. Mainly under control of the League of Nations, upward of a million and a quarter were adequately cared for and are rapidly being assimilated economically. The present disorders, in all probability, result from German official as distinguished from German governmental action. So far as they have any effect beyond the suffering involved, it must be to increase the bitter feeling against Poland while making more dubious Germany's effort to regain former territory.

ANNEXATION BY STATISTICS.

The efforts of the British to recapture the lost thirteen Colonies (plus the thirty-five other units that call themselves States today) is unceasing. Fortunately, we have American wits to match the British Machiavellis. The vigilant and gallant HIRSHFIELD unearthed the great Textbook Conspiracy, and saved the innocent children of America from contamination by British-bought historians, who were scheming to hand the country over to the King. Two years later a 190 per cent. Irish weekly discovered that JOHN W. DAVIS was in name the candidate of the Democratic Party, but in fact the tool of Great Britain, and called upon all good Americans to show that any man who had worn black satin breeches and bent his knee before an English King was unfit to preside at the White House board.

Undaunted by these two disastrous exposures, the British steadily pursued their evil purpose of annexation. Once more, however, they have been caught in the act and their plot laid bare before an outraged citizenry. On the authority of an Italian-American paper, which bases its conclusions on an article by a gentleman of the name of MCSWEENEY, it appears that the Immigration Restriction law was engineered by these diabolical Britishers, with the idea of making America safe for Englishmen. At the root of the conspiracy is a certain Mr. NORTH, of whom the Italian paper darkly remarks, "the name is significant." Presumably, he has some subtle relationship to the entire Nordic myth. This gentleman, it appears, studied the racial compositions of the American people and came to the conclusion that 52 per cent., more or less, are of British ancestry. His cry was taken up by the English-Speaking Union and the Sulgrave Institute and echoed in the World's Work, which, according to the same authority, is published under the control of Ambassador PAGE. The obvious implication is that it is an organ of British propaganda. The mere fact that the articles referred to were published five years after Mr. PAGE's death and were written by a gentleman of Italian origin is lightly passed over.

The real heinousness of the British offense lies in the numerical relation which the persons of British ancestry bear to the rest of the American people. The new Immigration law, it will be remembered, provides that after 1927 the quotas shall be based on numbers determined in accordance with the theory of "national origins." This theory takes the total white population of the United States according to the 1920 census and endeavors to estimate what proportion is of German, Italian, British, Irish and other origin, taking into account, so far as possible, the total contribution of the different European stocks to the American race. Preliminary estimates show that persons of British origin number about 52,000,000, the Germans come next with 12,000,000, the Irish follow with 5,000,000, and then come the Italians with about 3,500,000. Obviously, this shows a great preponderance of Britishers. Inasmuch as the new quotas are to be based on estimates of this nature, it follows that more Britishers than any other nationality will be admitted as immigrants and that, ergo and ipso facto, the "anglicization" of these United States will proceed at a feverish pace. Against this iniquitous conspiracy of statistics it behooves all good Americans to rise in righteous wrath.

THE ARCTURUS'S CARGO.

The Arcturus has come into port with its weird cargo harvested from the deep. It is none of MASEFIELD'S ships; no quinquereme of Nineveh with ivory and apes and peacocks, sandalwood, cedarwood and sweet white wine; no Spanish galleon from the Isthmus with a cargo of diamonds, emeralds and amethysts, topazes and cinnamon and gold moidores; no dirty British coaster with a load of Tyne coal, road-rails, pig-lead, firewood, ironware and cheap tin trays. Nor yet is it one of KIPLING'S merchantmen with things of value got some by purchase, some by trade and some "by courtesy of pike and carronade." This cargo has no value in the markets. Its fish are not what GROVER CLEVELAND would classify as "edible A." The manifest of the Arcturus shows enormous eels with "black beaks and jowls," dwarf sharks with "lustrous green eyes," lantern fishes carrying their lights on tiniest of poles to lure or prevent collision, creatures luminescing at every pore and others that are as transparent as glass, phantom crustaceans, fighting squid, giant scarlet shrimps, the pickled amphioxus, fish that have feathers or hairs for scales and halobates that walk on water as crickets on the land.

Captain BEEBE and his crew have no reason to sing as did KIPLING'S merchantmen's crew:

> Now shamed at heart are we
> To bring so poor a cargo home
> That had for gift the sea.

Their cargo is precious to science since it will undoubtedly make some further revelation concerning the period and process of creation. With all the practical-mindedness of Americans, this seems to be at the moment their greatest concern. The Arcturus cargo comes a bit late for the Dayton trial, but it has testimony for a future occasion, if needed, that goes back far beyond the memory of the land as to the life that antedated man's coming. DARWIN began his world-influencing studies partly as a result of his observations in the same waters which Mr. BEEBE has traversed. There he has seen at close range the descendants of the surface fish that have made their adaptations to the depths, generating their own light in the aqueous darkness and developing structures that endure the greater pressure. There he has met direct descendants of the first vertebrate ancestor who have still kept to the old homestead and clung to the ancestral ways of tens of millions of years ago.

Mr. BEEBE did not find the fabled Atlantis out in the Atlantic, but has had a fortune like SAUL, who went in search of his father's asses and found a kingdom. It was hoped by some that Mr. BEEBE would find traces of the continent which PLATO put on the map in his "Timaeus" far out beyond the Pillars of Hercules, greater in extent than Libya or even "Asia," a land whose invading army was defeated by the men of Athens 7,000 years ago, and whose glories thus dimmed were buried beneath the waves "in a single day and one fatal night." If this buried land is actually there and not merely a philosopher's dream, the archaeologist will some day find it, as he has found the Labyrinth of King MINOS, the coins of CROESUS and the Temple of Ur of the Chaldees. But Mr. BEEBE has meanwhile found a kingdom beneath the remoter sea, into which he wandered, quite as significant in the chronicles of earth as the lost Atlantis. The public which will some day have full benefit of his cargo should be grateful not only to this deep-sea explorer and discoverer and his companions, but also to those generous patrons of the expedition who made it possible.

THE CONNERS FOUNDATION.

The Conners Foundation is the dream of a self-made man who started in life with nothing but mother wit and amassed a fortune. Sympathy for the under dog, the down and out, the disabled, the unemployed, the unfortunate, inspires the benefaction. Starting as a newsboy and dock laborer, WILLIAM J. CONNERS fought his way up, getting many hard knocks and giving many, to a success to which no man who knew his origin and his handicaps could dispute his right. The helping hand must have been extended to him sometimes, and to others he gave a lift. The poor succor the poor. In his time W. J. CONNERS has been a politician, a boss, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and has had his enemies. He was a very practical politician.

On points of ethics not always nice he had a rough good humor and a gift of blarney that carried him through many a hard fight and left few scars. He came to be known as a character. The stories told about his rude ways in politics, his shrewd strokes in business, his mannerisms, his lapses in grammar, his ready wit and his robust common sense brought him a reputation that extended beyond the State. The mention of Buffalo linked CONNERS of the Midas touch with the great city on Lake Erie. This picture of him was very near the truth:

> A rubicund, pleasant-faced man with genial eyes; just a little inclined to be stout; a mellow voice, a merry way. He wore a turndown collar, a black four-in-hand tie with a simple stickpin, a well-fitting brown business suit. And this was the Hon. WILLIAM J. CONNERS, capitalist, captain of industry, statesman, politician, traveler, erstwhile dock laborer, saloonkeeper, foreman of stevedores, contractor, rough and tumble fighter.

Lately Florida has been the scene of the activities of W. J. CONNERS. His constructive mind saw money in public improvements. He predicted a great future for the State that was long thought to be only sand and swamp, of no value except as a Winter resort. He was one of the pioneers in developing the Everglades. He boasted that he could make a large tract of its black soil which he bought "the finest farm in the United States." He built a road around the east side of Lake Okeechobee to the town of Okeechobee City to obtain an outlet for his products. It was his purpose, for which he obtained legislative sanction, to connect this road at Sebring with a highway running to Tampa on the west coast. In his other projects the former dock laborer, who likes to call himself W. J. CONNERS of Buffalo and West Palm Beach, has worked on the theory that any well-planned improvement in Florida will pay for itself in increased value of the land. He himself has benefited so much that he expects to add $4,000,000 to the sum of $1,000,000 with which the Foundation will be started. He says of it:

> I have decided that the best charity is one that will give help to the needy, give it promptly, without red tape and without any regard to race, religion or anything but need.

The trustees have been named, two Catholics, two Protestants and two Jews. It will be exclusively a Buffalo charity. The Foundation "will "look after the needy, whether it is "need of a ton of coal or help to go "to a hospital, or help in any way." As he has a genius for organization, it should be another of his successes. At first Mr. CONNERS thought of building a hospital, but he concluded that he would rather lend a helping hand to individuals who were finding life heavy going and with a little aid might make a place for themselves in the world, as he had done. It is a fine thing to see a man who has risen from poverty and want to wealth, created by his own endeavors, turning with an active sympathy to the people who used to share his trials, and planning to have them share the money he has accumulated. Buffalo has reason to be proud of this citizen.

BROADCASTING AS A PURIFIER OF ENGLISH.

In the latest tract of the Society for Pure English, Mr. BRIDGES, the Poet Laureate, suggests, among other means of standardizing speech, our universal friend, broadcasting. Broadcasting requires clear utterance. It may be called a monitor of enunciation; but what does it do for the correction of slovenly English or mispronunciation? Alas! our most broadcasted speaker talks through the nose. He, too, like all the rest of us, has his individualisms of pronunciation. There is no harm in that. We recall with pleasure that Mr. SEWARD used to put the accent of "European" on the second syllable. This was not only in the early and middle American manner; it was in accordance with the tendency of certain meritorious polysyllables to shift their stress backward. Variety is the spice of pronunciation. To some of us "standardization" is a guest whom, as somebody says in "Hector O'Malley," a gentleman would not be justified in borrowing money to entertain. E Pluribus Unum is no motto for the independents.

Besides, if the majority is the supreme tribunal, how about "museums"? In that referendum would even "theatre" be robbed of its once authoritative, its ancient, worthy and Latin accent? The sons or grandsons of old men have heard of the old battle and the old wound: "As I was "boonding roond the moond I heard "a hoond." For the moment, we forget the rest of it; but the supreme climax lodges in the memory: "And "the hoond gave me a profoond "woond." "Deaf" was another bone of contention. What difference does it make? Pronunciations change, as other fashions. What Quintilian in Heaven of late ordered the elect, who had been putting a short i on "anti-slavery" all their lives, to make all the "antis," in a world chuckfull of 'em, squeak that Rooseveltian vowel long? It is no business of ours, sworn friends of everything the dictionaries abominate, of every "dialectal form," "colloquialism," "mispronunciation." A correspondent of The London Times, following the hint of Mr. BRIDGES, hopes that broadcasting will bring about "the stand-"ardizing of place-names throughout "the world."

The iconoclasts or conservatives in Eastern Europe, "restoring" local names, have made the geography of that region as lucid as Basque. Gaelic as a national language has hidden and made more attractive many names once familiar in their adulterated form. These movements of "nationalism" have their obscure but strong supporters here and everywhere. Will "Spokane," that locally, and therefore properly, rhymes with "man," ever consent to the ignorant East, where it rhymes with "mane"? At great pains we learned to pronounce "Los Angeles" in the artless Castilian way, once insisted on by the prigs of El Dorado. What was the good, except to ourselves, of that moral effort? As the marvelous city grows, so grows the number of the "American" reciters of its name. Must the Texas and the New York "Houston" get together? Shall "Coenties Slip" be spelled as it is pronounced—unless we have dropped behind the rest of the world, after the manner of other "old New Yorkers," fresh from Indiana and way-stations—like the ancient home of the Adamses and the Quincys? How do you say "Greenwich"? Outside of the English Greenwich, famous for meridians and fish, we decline to vote.

How many New Yorkers can utter "Haverhill," "Groton," "Billerica," as the Yankees do? What is the proper pronunciation of "Hoboken"? We know what it would be in a popular referendum, unless the gods of the west waterside mislead us. This town in which we live and breathe, so far as smoke and gasoline permit—how is it called? Unless our ears deceive us: "Noo Yoick."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

These Men Hard to Understand.

Out in Chicago "the law," as represented in the police force and the courts, will be satisfied if it convicts and sends to the gallows the three survivors of the five men who raided the Drake Hotel. Really, however, little or nothing will be accomplished by that except in the way of preventing those particular men from repeating their exploit. That is something, but their deaths will have no measurable effect on others like them.

What does "like them" mean? Their confessions do not throw much light on that question. The attack on the hotel seems to have had amazingly little preparation. One of the men knew in a vague way that there was a lot of money in the cashier's office, but apparently he had considered few of the risks involved in an attempt to get it. For associates in the desperate venture he chose men of whom he knew but little, and those men knew as little of his capacity for leadership in such an affair. No good or sufficient reason why they should have trusted each other is presented, but the selected accomplices fell in with the scheme with as little hesitation as if a fishing trip down to the creek had been proposed by an old neighbor.

No skill in the execution of the plan was shown, and though one of the men had a "record," none of them was a professional criminal, with training and intelligence such as the bank robbers of other days often possessed.

The only device any of them knew for obtaining "easy money" was the pointed pistol, and murder, instead of being the last resort, as it was of the old-time burglars, was the first one of these bunglers. The minute they are caught they begin to talk the rope around their necks, and it is obvious that they are as stupid as they are vicious.

Enemies of the human race, no doubt, like pirates, and as such to be put permanently out of the way, but all responsibility for what they are does not rest on themselves alone.

They're Not Products of the War.

It is noted that some of the Drake Hotel raiders had been in the army and served in the World War. Probably that means nothing except that the draft put into the army men of all sorts, including some criminals who concealed their records.

That the training in the use of firearms received in the war by so many has had anything to do with the development of what seems like a new form of crime is most improbable. It is made so by the fact that most of our so-called bandits are too young to have been in the war, yet they are just as ferocious as are the few veterans who have joined in the desperate hold-up game. That the youngsters have been taught by the veterans need not be even suspected, the crudity of their methods showing that nobody has given them any instruction at all.

And almost never have these robbers been spurred to their evil deeds by poverty—by hunger. They steal, or try to steal, as an alternative to work.

A common characteristic of their exploits is inability to foresee results. That is the same thing as lack of imagination, which, in turn, is the basis of courage of a sort.

Something in environment and heredity produces our bandits, and does it in greater numbers now, seemingly, than ever before. That is the misty domain which is in need of investigation, and it is more likely to be effective than are any of the proposed measures for dealing with the effects of the unknown causes. "A fence at the top of the precipice is better than an ambulance at its foot" is an apothegm made long ago.

They, Too, Have a "Touch."

Further inquiry about the men who handle the levers on steam shovels and put those wonderful machines through their diversified activities has revealed that though every one of them, to hold his job, must possess no little skill, yet there is much difference between them, some being real artists and others only high-class workingmen.

As one observer of the group puts it, the best of these men have a "touch" comparable with that of the real musician. They can use the power at their command with delicacy, when occasion for delicacy arises, and yet they can handle the big weights just as well when that is what needs doing. They can estimate distances with nicety, too, instead of roughly, or "well enough," and there is no waste of energy in their operation of their machines. The other men lack this "touch." They can do the work, but to the understanding judges they are not truly expert at it.

Of such judges there are not many outside the higher ranks of the mechanical trades and those who have risen from them to supervisory positions. To the chance watchers, looking down into the pit where room for the foundation for a skyscraper is in the course of making, the manipulators of the steam shovels and the big derricks seem all alike and all amazingly adroit.

A Youthful Editor Is Troubled.

JOSEPHINE IJAMS of Knoxville, Tenn., is only 12 years old, but she already is ambitious to be a journalist, and, what is more, she already is one. For three years past, in her school vacations, she has published a paper which she calls The Ijams Weekly. It contains editorial articles as well as news, and one of them in a recent issue, naturally enough, was on the Dayton trial, or, rather, on the law which made the trial possible.

JOSEPHINE may or may not be a Fundamentalist, but if she is she is not of the kind that would forbid the teaching of evolution, and what troubles her most is that her beloved State has been made ridiculous.

"It is a shame," she writes, "that Tennessee is stamped as ignorant and laughed at all over the world for the act of her Legislature." But conscience intervenes and tells her that her effort to discriminate between the legislators and other Tennesseans will prompt the question, "Who elects the legislators?"

A successful answer to that painful question was beyond JOSEPHINE, as it has been beyond her elders in a like predicament, for all she can think to write in reply is: "Remember that there are many others who are not responsible for this and are ashamed to have Tennessee classed as the State of Ignorance. There are those who have sworn allegiance to the State and would now be glad to truthfully say they were not from the State of Tennessee. And could you blame them? Who wants to be from the Funny Page State? No one, to be sure."

The truth is that Tennessee, like every other State, has just the Legislature it deserves—just the sort that the majority of its people want. Else they would have another sort.

All that JOSEPHINE can say in conclusion is: "There are still a few wise people in Tennessee who have not yet been elected to office."

Would Charge Fees at Library.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is no doubt that the circulating collections of the New York Public Library have for many years been woefully inadequate. The remedy lies in having the public libraries directly under city control, abolishing the present undesirable and (I believe) illegal "fine" system, and, instead, charging a small fee for the use of books.

In this way the libraries can doubtless be made largely, if not entirely, self-supporting. It is only under some such plan that New York will ever have a library system that is anywhere in keeping with its needs. A similar plan is used to maintain roads, municipal golf links, tennis courts, &c., and has worked out satisfactorily. New York library users do not need nor do they want private charity. Certainly it would be far preferable to pay for adequate service than to obtain gratis service which is of little or no value.

The public is perfectly willing to pay for motion pictures, baseball games, theatres, courses at colleges and entertainment and instruction of various kinds; therefore, why not for the use of books?

The members of our family have found the present circulating collections of the library so unsatisfactory that they no longer use their borrowers' cards. READER.

STILL VOYAGER.

The river, on its way to sea,
Flows gleaming past my desk and me
And, laughing, leaves the tower high
Where I am captive in the sky.
On rivers that run down to sea!)

The train that takes me home to bed
Becomes, at times, a ship instead,
And, with a white sail all a-quiver,
I pass my office on the river.
(Take care for him whose soul has fled
The trains that take him home to bed!)

Each ship on which I sail away
Founders upon the reef of day;
Come 9 o'clock and comes the hour
When you will find me in my tower.
(A curious place for me to stay Whose heart in ships has sailed away!)

PROGRESS IN PRINTING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In one of your recent issues appeared an editorial entitled "Progress in Printing," occasioned by the issue of the fortieth anniversary number of The American Printer.

During the course of this editorial you asked the question, "Are we doing better printing than forty years ago?" and quoted in reply from an article by E. A. Kendrick, "We are not."

You said, further, "There is, to be sure, good printing done today—printing as good as that done forty years ago, but little, if any, that is better than the best of a half century or more ago. The growth in volume has so far outstripped the advance in quality that it may be said that in general we have grown more than we have progressed."

These statements, which are drawn largely from Mr. Kendrick's article, give, I believe, an erroneous view of the situation. I have great respect for Mr. Kendrick's judgment in matters relating to printing, but in this case I feel his conclusions are absolutely wrong. You could have no more graphic demonstration of the difference in the art of printing during the last forty years than to compare the best of the department store advertisements appearing in The New York Times of 1885 with almost any one of the department store advertisements in your issue today. The comparison, so far as taste is concerned, is spectacular. And in the monthly and weekly magazines and the rotogravure sections of some of our newspapers we see frequently advertisements which are models of beauty as well as legibility.

The art of advertising composition, which has so great a bearing on our daily life and reading, is almost entirely a product of the last two decades.

In the field of commercial printing the extent of the difference artistically during the last forty years has been equally marked. We can safely challenge Mr. Kendrick to produce a commercial catalogue printed forty years ago that would pass muster by even a mediocre printer today. The average level of advertising printing is constantly improving, and many catalogues issued today are productions of real beauty.

In the book publishing field one must admit that the average trade book is a pretty poor thing. This undoubtedly is the result of quantity production and the growth in volume to which you have referred. It is, however, beyond doubt that there are ten times more well printed books now produced each year in the United States than there were forty years ago.

As a matter of fact, there was only one good printing office in the United States forty years ago, that of Theodore L. DeVinne, in his time the dean of American typographers. Mr. DeVinne printed for individuals and for the Grolier Club a number of fine books. Yet it is no reflection on his work to say that not one of them measures up in taste and beauty to those currently produced by two or three present-day printers. Where forty years ago we had one distinguished printer, we have today half a dozen masters of their craft and at least a score more who stand in the front rank of their profession.

Throughout the country there is growing up a generation of young compositors who have a real enthusiasm for fine typography, an enthusiasm which does not spring from commercial motives but which brings, most fortunately, a commercial return. If one seeks today with any degree of intelligence, there can be found in almost any city in the country young men who will set a printing job—be it a book, a booklet or an advertisement—tastefully and effectively. These young men are reading the printing journals assiduously (and the printing journals themselves are improving all the time), are buying and reading books on printing and are setting type on jobs in which they have an interest during their spare time.

Look for a moment at the other side of the story and you will find almost all of the capable compositors of forty years ago interested in rule twisting and the weird combination of atrocious types in layouts of hopelessly involved design.

Present day typographic standards are, I feel, infinitely higher than they were forty years ago, twenty years ago or ten years ago.

Calls Rents Here Excessive.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a retail merchant, I believe the prevailing high rents are not justified by either the volume of business or the profit made upon retail turn-over today. This applies to nearly every line of retail business. Ladies' ready-to-wear and millinery are lines of business that can stand high rents. This is due to large volume of business, quick turn-overs and good profits. But even these lines are finding it almost impossible to pay the exorbitant rents asked. Three firms who contracted for stores at high prices have failed.

It is interesting to note that the north side of Forty-second Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, has had more retail failures than any other street in the city in proportion to the number of stores. The rents on this street are very high. The failures have been due in most cases to excessive rents.

There are many stores operating at cheap rents, due to old leases which have not yet expired. If these stores were to charge themselves with present-day rentals, they would not make a profit. Indeed, many would show a loss.

The retail merchant is confronted by a very big problem. He must either pay less rent or do more business. To get more business he must sell his goods at less profit and incur a much greater expense in many different ways. In numerous instances the increased business will not warrant the increased cost of getting it. What is the answer? Frankly I do not know. Perhaps some one else knows the solution.

Country Air for City Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can you imagine how it must feel never to have seen a green country field? And yet there are hundreds of little children who have never been out of the shadow of grim tenements.

We want to give as many as possible of these children a breath of fresh air, a chance to see the sun on flowers and fields. Last Summer the Henry Street Settlement took 1,100 children to the country for a two weeks' vacation. For those who could not go for so long a period day parties to neighboring beaches were arranged; 11,962 children and 175 weary mothers were given outings. We want to take them away from the cruelty of the Summer's heat in the city.

Each dollar sends one child away for one day. We need help to erase some of the fear of the stifling days and nights from their minds by making it possible for us to give them a vacation in the country.

MULTIPLE TAXATION.

Judge Clearwater Criticizes the Present System of Death Taxes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the last meeting of the New York State Bar Association I called attention to a system of unjust taxation upon the estates of the dead which prevails in forty-five of the States of the Union, a system which, although characterized as extortionate by the Supreme Court of the United States, I learned, to my surprise, has escaped the attention of a large majority of the bench and bar of the country. It is the imposition of extraterritorial taxes by States upon the transfer of securities owned by a decedent issued by corporations created by other than the State of the decedent's residence and issued by corporations created by the State imposing the tax.

The limited space you can afford me will permit of but few illustrations. One of my clients, an executor, was compelled to pay in extraterritorial taxes to a single State, in order to obtain the consent of its Tax Department to the transfer of securities belonging to the estate of his decedent—a resident of New York—$685,000. Another was obliged to pay to the Tax Departments of thirteen different States to obtain the consent of their Tax Departments to the transfer of securities held by her decedent—a resident of New York—$100,000 upon an estate of $354,000.

Not only do many of the States impose a transfer tax upon the value of the securities issued by corporations organized under their laws, but assess the tax upon the entire value of the decedent's estate, no matter how composed. Many of them refuse to allow deduction for the Federal estate tax and transfer tax of the State of the decedent. The burden of multiple taxation in many instances has amounted to confiscation, and in cases brought to my attention practically the entire estate of the decedent thus has been absorbed.

In addition to the imposition of these pernicious taxes, there is a serious delay due to the inefficient and meticulously senseless exactions imposed by the various taxing departments in granting consent to the transfer of securities of nonresident decedents. New Hampshire, Connecticut, Kentucky and Virginia recently have imposed a flat 2 per cent. tax on the market value of the securities issued by corporations created by their laws, regardless of the amount and without reference to the proportion of debts and expenses to the gross estate or to the character of the devolution of the particular securities. This not infrequently results in the assessment of a tax which would not be due if the amount of the debts and expenses and the character of the devolution of the property were considered. Arizona, North Carolina and West Virginia persist in taxing stocks of foreign corporations owning property or doing business within the State when owned by a non-resident decedent, despite many decisions against the constitutionality of such laws and the jurisdictional power of the States to levy such a tax. California, Colorado and Texas refuse to allow a deduction from the value of the locally issued securities for the proportionate share of the general debts and administration expenses, and allow only a deduction for local debts and expenses. The laws of these States and of Illinois provide for a full personal exemption in the case of foreign estates, but deliberately destroy the effect of this exemption by the position that the local assets should be taxed as passing intact to the residuary legatee, thus allowing but a single personal exemption. The statutes of some of the States, notably California, Michigan and Ohio, provide for a proceeding in court in order to determine the transfer tax upon foreign estates, and in some of them it is necessary for a foreign executor or trustee to employ and pay local counsel to represent him in the proceedings.

Most of the States do not exempt legacies to charitable and educational institutions, unless they are organized or operate within the boundaries of the particular State.

These are but a few illustrations of the iniquitous character of this method of taxation, a full description of which, because of the complexity of divergences, would require a treatise. If persisted in, it will be imperative for lawyers who are counsel to large investors, to advise them to dispose of all securities issued by corporations of States other than the one in which they live and are preparing to die, and to suggest that those who hope to live refuse to invest in securities of corporations other than those created by the State of their residence.

It is hoped to bring this matter to the attention of the convention of the National Tax Association, to be held at New Orleans in November, and at the next annual meeting of the American Bar Association, to be held at Detroit in September, and that some measure of relief there will be formulated; but without the action and aid of the press and the bar, the action of both will be futile. It is with the hope of enlisting both that this letter is written.

The Tongue Mountain Road.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As you have repeatedly evidenced your interest in the Lake George Park on Tongue Mountain, and in the proposed Tongue Mountain highway, I enclose a recent letter from Mr. Robert Moses to the President of the Bo[illegible]ton Assoc[illegible] and a copy of my reply [illegible] Chairman [illegible] Highway Committee of [illegible]hat asso[illegible].

The [illegible]roposed T[illegible] Mountain road, as specif[illegible] by the [illegible]y Department, is not a [illegible]ge or [illegible] top road, nor does it co[illegible]and wid[illegible] Leaving the lake shore [illegible] the h[illegible] Northwest Bay, it follow[illegible]he broo[illegible] a level valley for abou[illegible]ree mil[illegible] turns sharply up the [illegible]tain, [illegible] a ravine through heavy [illegible]ods to [illegible] feet in two miles. The [illegible] of the [illegible] level, with steep moun[illegible]ides o[illegible]hand, and is densely wo[illegible]. The [illegible] is equally abrupt, follow[illegible] a ravi[illegible] through forest cover, to the [illegible]ke shore [illegible] Sabbath Day Point.

It h[illegible] been sug[illegible]ted that a branch road be bu[illegible] to a l[illegible]out point near Deer's Leap [illegible]ff, but [illegible] not part of the present plan. This would give a view down the Narrows of Lake George. A view of the Green Mountains or Adirondacks is, however, geographically impossible.

Your reporter has confused the Tongue Mountain project with the newly built State highway from Hague-on-Lake George to Chestertown, which climbs nearly 1,500 feet above Lake George to Graphite and there commands a magnificent view of the north end of the lake and all the intervening country to the Green Mountain range, which is seen from end to end. Descending the westerly slope, there is an equally wide view of Adirondack territory. From the Swede Mount Fire Station, ten minutes off the road, a tremendous circuit panorama can be seen.

The proposed Tongue Mountain road will have an entirely different character, passing through fine stretches of forest. The grades, while as steep, will not be as long as the Graphite grades; and the climb over the ridge will be only about half as high.

SOUTH CHINA RIOTING IS EXPECTED TODAY

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PEKING, July 31.—The legations here are apprehensive over tomorrow's planned demonstrations in South China. The radicals have assumed control of Amoy, declaring a strike against the British and Japanese. A British warship is there and an American warship is en route. The radicals have assassinated two Chinese, one being the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. Virtually all the Americans in the interior are now quartered in Amoy.

Swatow reports that everything is quiet, although consular telegrams are delayed forty-eight hours in transmission. The postal strike is complete. The foreign community is short rationed, causing the British naval force to commandeer a merchant vessel as the sole means of supply.

The Chinese object to a judicial inquiry into the Shanghai clashes, and may publish a protest, alleging that it nullifies the conclusion of the Chinese and diplomatic commissions for a settlement of the local issue, thus ignoring their treaty revision demands.

SHANGHAI, July 31 (AP).—The International Mixed Court here has dismissed an appeal by Zinovis Dosser, alleged Bolshevik agent charged with attempting Communist agitation, from the expulsion order of July 16.

When expelled from the International Settlement Dosser can remain in the French concession or in the Chinese city.

Dosser was deported from Hongkong in June and later arrested in Shanghai when documents were found in his possession seeming to identify him as a Communist agent. The Soviet Counsel at Shanghai declared the documents were forgeries and Foreign Minister Tchitcherin protested.

Later Dr. Eugene Fortunatoff, physician to the Soviet Consulate in Shanghai, was arrested and charged with offering $10,000 to a detective to say he had planted forged identification papers in Dosser's effects.

PREDICTS SEVERE QUAKES.

Pastor Who Said Davis Would Be Elected Sees Signs of Disturbance.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur W. Brooks, pastor of the Chapel of the Redeemer at Yonkers, and former member of the staff of St. George's Episcopal Church in this city, issued a statement yesterday, saying that the conjunction of Mars and Neptune on July 23, the coming partial eclipse of the moon, and certain planetary perturbations, caused him to predict that severe earthquakes would shake the southwestern part of the United States before Aug. 22.

Dr. Brooks on Aug. 3, 1924, said that the positions of the sun, moon, Uranus and Jupiter strongly indicated the election of John W. Davis in the approaching November election.

Sinclair Oil Sued Over Movies.

A dispute over the ownership of the motion picture film, "The World Struggle for Oil," came into the Supreme Court yesterday when William I. Rosenfeld filed suit against the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation. Rosenfeld sued on an assigned claim of Harry E. Butler, and asserted that he was the sole owner. He stated that the Sinclair company had notified him and others with whom he had been dealing that it was the sole owner, and that consequently he had been unable to close any contract for the picture.

BAY STATE PHONE RATES UP.

Twenty Per Cent. Rise Will Give Company $8,460,000 More a Year.

BOSTON, July 31 (AP).—The Public Utilities Commission today granted to the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company increases estimated to average more than 20 per cent. on various classes of service, effective tomorrow. It found that an 8 per cent. dividend is not excessive.

The commission cut approximately $1,000,000 from the $9,460,000 sought. The increases were requested Dec. 1, followed by lengthy hearings, with 157 towns and cities opposing.

Increases asked for on service connections or installation charges were disallowed and so were some others, while proposed increased rates on private branch exchange switchboards were materially cut.

The report said that on May 1, 1925, the company was behind 4,194 new installations, 1,367 changes of location and 27,385 regrades of service.

PROVIDENCE, July 31 (AP).—The Public Utilities Board today refused to grant the motion of the City of Providence to request the telephone company to postpone the increased telephone rates, which will become effective tomorrow, with an increase of 26 per cent. in the Providence exchange area and an average ris of 13 per cent. for the remainder of the State.

APPEAL FOR RAJAH'S AID.

British Ask Release of Captain Arthur From French Prison.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—A sequel to the famous extortion case involving Rajah Sir Hari Singh and Mrs. Robinson developed today in Paris with an appeal made by the British embassy to the French Government requesting an explanation for the continued imprisonment of the Rajah's former aide de camp, Captain Charles Arthur. The scandal leaped to its height last December, when it was revealed the Rajah had given two checks to a man posing as Mrs. Robinson's husband. Only one of these checks was cashed.

In the course of the developments, Captain Arthur was charged with complicity in the affair. He was arrested and the British Government requested his extradition. The French, however, refused to surrender him on the ground he had received in France money which he knew to have been obtained by extortion. The French, however, have held his in prison without trial. Now, it is claimed, he is seriously ill and should be released if there is no case against him. For three months he has been steadily writing the Rajah for recommendations which might result in his exoneration, but the Rajah has thus far failed to respond.

HINDENBURG URGES ACCORD

BERLIN, July 31.—President von Hindenburg stressed the need of international peace and intellectual accord between the United States and Germany in order to cement that peace, in a talk to delegates to the American seminar, headed by Dr. Sherwood Eddy, this afternoon. It was the first time that the President had received Americans who were not members of the diplomatic corps.

Herr von Hindenburg greeted the delegates heartily and then assumed his customary stern military pose. He expressed pleasure at meeting representatives of the organization who had the same goal as Germany, that of international peace through the promotion of international understanding.

The President again asserted that the best way to prevent wars is to have the peoples of the various nations get acquainted with one another.

A. C. JAMES GIVES NEWPORT PAGEANT

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 31.—One of the most elaborate entertainments ever given in the Summer colony was that of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James at Beacon Hill House tonight. It was a pageant called "A Summer Night in the Rose Garden," staged and directed by Joseph Linden Smith, and followed by a ball and supper, the latter served in a tent adjoining the southern terrace of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. James gave the pageant as a sort of farewell party before they leave next week for a European cruise on their yacht Alcha.

The pageant, which was participated in by a company of forty professional and amateurs, was amid a natural setting. The rose garden at Beacon Hill House is in a hollow at the side of a hill, surrounded by rocky ledges and woodland, and it was in the centre oval of this garden that the action of the pageant took place. About the northern sides, on two natural levels, there were seated the guests, nearly 400 in number, representing the Summer colony of the city and their guests and many guests of the host and hostess of the evening from away.

Electric Lights in Foliage.

The sight was beautiful. The roses about the garden are in full bloom, and the rose beds were a mass of miniature electric lights. The trees were the same and, in fact, every bank of foliage, every one of the large Venetian vases about the edge and every entrance was outlined and located high upon a ledge. At the rear were two batteries of spot and flood lights. About the flower beds and in the foliage of the trees and shrubbery the lights were of every hue, but the driveways to the garden and to the house were outlined with green lamps, and the direction of the traffic through the grounds was indicated with red illuminated arrows.

The rose gardens were particularly a handsome sight, for practically every rose had its individual miniature red electric light hanging from its stem. There were fully 10,000 electric lamps used in the decorations.

The story of the pageant, which was read by Mr. Smith after the guests were seated, was one of a fairy tale of old. There were sounds of music and revelry and song in the distance, while in the centre of the garden stood an ancient marble fountain. From this appeared a nymph, who in reality was Miss Marian Dumas, loved by a young shepherd (William Gregory), who appears only at night. His pipes were heard through the trees and he appeared at the fountain, where he charmed the nymph to come up all wet and shining and sit on the edge of the fountain and make love.

But there was a rude and sudden alarm that disturbed the lovers. The nymph sank back into the fountain as there came from the château lords and ladies who danced and feasted and enjoyed the pleasures provided by the Count and Countess. These guests were taken into the rose garden for the fête. The cause of the lovers' parting was to be seen and lanterns were brought by the peasants. In came a band of musicians, Conrad's orchestra of twenty pieces, all in costume, and the merrymakers, all masked except the madcap Countess, reveled until there was a command to unmask, and all joined in various games, battledore and shuttlecock and blind man's buff.

Band of Strolling Mountebanks.

The Countess flitted from group to group, when there came upon the party a band of strolling mountebanks and mummers led by Mr. Smith. They had lost their way and came through the woods upon the party. They were trespassers and were caught by the Sheriff, but the heart of the little Countess was touched, and soon forgave the trespass. She became one of them, and all joined in the revelry until the nymph peeped over the edge of the fountain, was caught and was carried away into the woods with the shepherd.

The leading female rôle was taken by Miss Estelle Winwood, well-known as a member of the cast of "Spring Cleaning," while John Gerard had one of the leading male parts. The principal dancing rôle was portrayed by Miss Martha Graham, a Follies girl, who was the dancing star at the entertainment given by Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan at Bonnie Crest last Summer.

With them in the pageant were a group of other professionals, and the remainder of the company was made up of young people from the Summer colony and amateurs from New York, while Mr. Smith's two daughters, the Misses Rebecca and Frances, also had rôles, but the names of the others were kept a secret.

With Mr. Smith in his band of mountebanks was the Tanarki troupe of Japanese balancers, the six sheik Arabian dancers, John Daley and his wife as the clowns and many others.

Mr. and Mrs. James received their 400 guests at the main entrance of the rose garden, where there were chairs for them on either side of the entrance that seems cut through the ledge.

Mr. and Mrs. James had as their house guests Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Linden Smith and their three daughters from Dublin, N. H.; Miss Constance Jennings, Miss Trimball, Donald Blagdon, Albert Ely and Thomas Whitemore of New York, while their yacht, the Aloha, in the harbor also was filled with guests.

BEAUTY CONQUEST AT LAST.

Miss Emma Soltis, who a year ago lost a suit in the Westchester County Supreme Court to be declared "Miss Yonkers" in a beauty contest, won the honor of representing even greater territory yesterday when it was announced she would be "Miss Westchester" in the annual beauty contest to be held soon at Atlantic City.

Miss Soltis last year sought an injunction to prevent the American Legion Post of Yonkers from sending Miss Florence Kriesler to Atlantic City as "Miss Yonkers." Miss Carol Kriesler, a sister of Florence, had won the honor and Miss Soltis had been elected as alternate. Later Carol was disqualified because she was too young, but instead of choosing Miss Soltis the judges selected Carol's sister, Florence. Miss Soltis then brought suit, but the case was dismissed. Yesterday the judges chose her unanimously.

Jesse I. Strauses Go to Saranac.

CHILDREN WINNERS OF FLORAL PRIZES

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 31.—Henry James Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry James of Hill Street, and Jane Mellon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Mellon, won the prizes for children under 10 years of age offered by Mrs. Mellon at the Southampton Flower Show, which closed this evening after two days of exhibition.

The James boy was adjudged to have the best arrangement of wild flowers, with John Henderson, son of Mrs. C. R. Henderson of Meadow Lane, receiving second prize. Little Miss Mellon had the best arrangement of garden flowers, with Stanley Sobel Jr., son of Mrs. Henderson's gardener, Stanley Sobel, second. Constance Torney, daughter of Mrs. H. W. Torney, received special "honorable mention" for her entry.

Mrs. H. H. Rogers, who won two of the most coveted prizes in yesterday's competition, again took many awards on the second and last day of the Flower Show. A magnificent display of lilies, grown in Mrs. Rogers's gardens under the direction of Thomas Henderson, her superintendent, won the Joseph Manda Company silver cup. Mrs. Rufus L. Patterson, who took dozens of small prizes in the cut flower competition yesterday, took second place in the lily competition and carried off many first prizes as well.

The entries which were judged today included vegetables and large potted plants and were not as colorful as yesterday's brilliant flower displays. There was great interest, however, in the displays of palms, ferns and flowering plants skilfully arranged in spaces of not more than fifty square feet. In this Mrs. Patterson's entry was the winner, as well as in the competition for the best bay trees. Most of the prizes for vegetable exhibits went to the Meadow Club, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Patterson and Stephen Peabody.

Ogden Reid's Child Left $30,485.

The estate of Elisabeth Reid, the nine year old daughter of Ogden Mills Reid, was appraised yesterday at $30,485. The estate of the child, who died Dec. 24, went to her parents. It consisted of Liberty bonds worth $29,596, cash amounting to $388 and personal effects worth $500. The report shows that her grandmother, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, set aside a trust fund for her benefit in 1919, but under its terms she was not to get the principal until she reached 21. For that reason the fund was declared untaxable.

EX-PRESIDENTS TO CLASH.

Poincare and Millerand Take Opposite Sides in Paris Lawsuit.

PARIS, July 31.—Former Presidents Poincaré and Millerand are going to quarrel after many years of friendship, each having been selected as counsel on opposite sides of a Saint Etienne lawsuit which has arisen over an alleged imitation.

A well-known firm which establishes styles in dress fabrics offered the market its latest creations some time ago, but a few days later a rival firm is alleged to have mnaufactured nearly identical stuffs and suit was immediately filed against it.

The plaintiff selected M. Millerand, while M. Poincaré was chosen to defend the case, thus making it considerably more interesting to the general public than it would have been otherwise.

COOLIDGE EULOGIZES AMBASSADOR BANCROFT

Writes Brother of His Valuable Work in Japan—Funeral in Tokio Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, July 31.—The importance which President Coolidge attaches to the post of Ambassador to Japan was emphasized today in a letter of condolence to Dr. Frederick Bancroft of Washington, brother of the Ambassador, Edgar A. Bancroft, who died in Japan on Tuesday. His letter to Dr. Bancroft follows:

> The unexpected and lamentable death of your distinguished brother, Edgar A. Bancroft, American Ambassador to Japan, has brought to me a deep sense of personal loss, which enables me profoundly to sympathize with you and the members of his family at this time of their bereavement. As you well know, his designation to the highly important position, which he held with so much credit to himself and advantage to his country, was in an especial degree a recognition of high character and peculiar fitness for service.
> Through a lifetime of devotion to the broadest public interests, and of scholarly concern for the development of high ideals in connection therewith, he had equipped himself with the largest public usefulness; and his services have been rendered so unstintedly and effectively as to reflect high honor upon him.
> Never particularly ambitious for public place, he was at all times enlisted in causes which looked to the advancement of the true public interest. His death deprives the Foreign Service of one who had demonstrated the fullest measure of equipment and had won the unqualified confidence of both his own Government and that of the great empire to which he was accredited.

As to a successor to Ambassador Bancroft, President Coolidge desires to get a capable man, but has not decided whether he will be a career man or an outsider like Mr. Bancroft, qualified to deal with the important questions in Japan.

TOKIO, July 31 (AP).—The funeral of Ambassador Bancroft will be held in Tokio next Wednesday or Thursday, from St. Andrew's Pro-Cathedral. Bishop McKim will officiate, assisted by Dr. Cleland B. McAfee of the McCormick Theological Seminary of Chicago.

The body will be brought from Karuizawa in a special car provided by the Japanese Government and guarded by honor troops. The body will lie in state and an imperial messenger will visit the Embassy to extend the condolences of the Emperor and his family.

Thus far it is uncertain how the body will be sent home, but it is understood that Japan is offering the cruiser Tama, which will also join in the California diamond jubilee celebration.

At a luncheon given by both houses of the Diet to visiting American members of Congress, Prince Tokugawa eulogizing Ambassador Bancroft, said today:

"He gave his life and soul to the cause of Pacific friendship."

OFFICIAL OF LEAGUE SAYS WE WILL JOIN

TAKES ISSUE WITH CASTLE

D. H. Miller Declares Republican Attitude Toward League Is Becoming Less Unyielding.

ROWE URGES ARBITRATION

Informs Politics Institute of Proposed Legal Basis for Pan-American Relations.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 31.—The official anti-league views of the Coolidge Administration, stated before the Institute of Politics yesterday by William R. Castle Jr., Chief of the Division of Western Europe, State Department, drew fire today from an official of the League, and from a leading Democrat.

Dr. William E. Rappard, Swiss member of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations, and David Hunter Miller of New York, who helped write the League of Nations covenant, took issue with Mr. Castle's statement that American public opinion had given its final decision against joining the League. Mr. Miller pointed out that the Republican attitude is less unyielding now than it was in 1921 and 1922, and Dr. Rappard expressed confidence that our entry into the World Court, which the Administration favors, will be followed ultimately by our becoming a member of the League.

Both spoke at the open conference on the recent foreign policy of the United States. Dr. Rappard ridiculed Mr. Castle's statement that the American foreign policy toward Europe was a general and consistent one. He quoted utterances by Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Lodge in 1915 and 1916 to show that leading Republicans then favored the League idea. In the 1920 election, he went on, the Republicans characterized the League as a corpse, but yesterday Mr. Castle spoke of the willingness of the United States to cooperate with the League in matters of universal humanitarian appeal. All this, said Dr. Rappard, showed changes in policy.

Criticizes American "Aloofness."

Agreeing with Mr. Castle that it was the duty of the United States to formulate its foreign policy in accordance with its own best interests, Dr. Rappard raised the question whether it was to the permanent interest of the United States to remain aloof from the League. He did not think our aloofness was the best way of promoting peace, and he thought that the promotion of world peace was one of the aims most to the interest of this country.

The fact that the United States is far away from the troubled areas of Europe, he continued, is all the more reason why we should cooperate in settling European problems because we are in a position to bring an impartial judgment to bear. America's influence at the Peace Conference, he pointed out, was the result of this distance and impartiality.

"If the United States had sat on the Council in the League of Nations settlement of the Saar problem," Dr. Rappard declared, "there is no doubt that a fair commission would have been appointed. The presence of an American on the council would have given the Saar a fair Government and would have deprived the Germans of a fair grievance.

"The absence of America has been a great weakening influence on the League. No one will doubt that the United States, as Mr. Castle said, wishes the League well. But the very absence of your country has made the Leagnue less worthy of your admiration and confidence. In order to be just, the League must be strong, and must not be in a position where it has to give way when some strong nation threatens to withdraw if a certain question is not settled the way she wishes it settled. If America were in the League, the bluff of such a nation would be called. The decisions of the League have not always been exactly just, because the men responsible for those decisions did not want the League to perish."

Tells Why Geneva Protocol Failed.

Dr. Rappard cited the failure of the Geneva protocol as an example of the manner in which the absence of America has weakened the League. He said that the real reason for the refusal of Great Britain to ratify the protocol was that the British feared that an economic blockade by the British Navy might embroil Great Britain in trouble with the United States. The British realized, he added, that America, not being a member of the League, would be faced with the dilemma, if such a blockade were established, of participating in it and thereby virtually becoming a member of the League, or of running the blockade and challenging Great Britain.

Declaring that Mr. Castle's statement of the purpose of the Administration to join the World Court would "resound very favorably in Geneva," Dr. Rappard continued:

"Not only is that a step which every one the world over will welcome, but I venture to say, as I firmly believe, it is merely a matter of time before America will take her normal position in the League. It is by this door that we would rather see her enter. Of course, to join the League is not in itself a matter of much importance. You can now, without joining the League, bring a case before the Court, and when you have joined you can refrain. Therefore, it is not in effect a very important step, but it does show your confidence in international justice, and that, I think, is the great achievement of which your Administration will have to boast—when that step will have been taken.

"America should be in the League to give her advice and judgment; the events of July, 1914, would seem to teach a lesson. May it not be possible that if there had been a League in 1914, and if that League had been strengthened and supported by America's head, judgment and heart, the war would have been avoided, and thereby the entanglement which you so naturally and rightly dread?"

Our Policy Not Fixed, Says Miller.

Mr. Miller took Mr. Castle to task for saying that our policy toward Europe is fixed.

"It seems to have been assumed," he said, "that the present foreign policy of the United States is something immutable and administered by a political power which not only now but forever during the unending vistas of the future is destined to remain in power. I doubt it."

Rear Admiral Harry M. P. Huse, United States Navy, challenged Dr. Rappard's statement about the Geneva protocol, saying he understood the chief British objection was that the British navy would be put under foreign control.

Major Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice, Chief of Operations of the British General Staff during the war, sided with Dr. Rappard, who then said he could produce documents to show that Lord Balfour, in a note to the League Council rejecting the protocol, had given as the reason the difficulty that might arise with the United States during a blockade.

International cooperation through the League was the subject of Dr. Rappard's lecture to the institute tonight. He said that the masterpiece of the League in this respect was the financial reconstruction of Austria. According to Dr. Rappard, it is doubtful whether this could have taken place so successfully without the League, or that the Dawes plan could be what it is except for the League and the Austrian precedent.

Urges Pan-American Arbitration.

At the round table on Latin-American relations, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan American Union, said that the basic principles for a constructive Pan-American policy were contained in the convention drafted by the American Institute of International Law. The convention, which is to be submitted to the International Commission of Jurists at Rio de Janeiro on Aug. 2, provides that:

"In the future territorial acquisitions obtained by means of war or under the menace of war or in presence of an armed force, to the detriment of any American republic, shall not be lawful; and that consequently territorial acquisitions effected in the future by these means cannot be invoked as conferring title; and that those obtained in the future by such means shall be considered null in fact and in law."

There must also be general acceptance of principles of arbitration of all inter-American disputes, no matter what their character, according to Dr. Rowe.

Count Antonio Cippico, Italian Senator and Fascist, told the conference that Mr. Castle's statement that there was "no royal road to peace"; that peace would not be achieved by "physical disarmament nor signed agreements, unless these agreements are accompanied by moral regeneration," and that "human nature cannot be remade in a day," expressed the gist of his own lectures at the institute on the problems of Italy.

"A section of the American press," Senator Cippico said, "just because I said that in order to secure future and permanent peace generous aspirations were not enough, bitterly described me as an alarmist and a spokesman for war. If this realistic method of looking at the great international problems can be described as alarmist I am glad to be in good company and that modern Italy should share the views of a highly responsible person of this great country."

Referring to comment in Williamstown on the frankness of Mr. Castle's official statement on American foreign policy, Count Cippico said that he knew of at least one man in his own country who would speak as openly—Premier Mussolini. He also quoted the phrase, "Peace is an adventure in faith," and said that nobody recognizes the truth of the definition as much as Premier Mussolini and modern Italy.

Broader View of Monroe Doctrine.

Count Alexander Skrzynski, Polish Minister of Foreign Affairs, said at the same conference that Poland today is putting a new interpretation upon the Monroe Doctrine. In the past, he said, it had been regarded only as the expression of the policy, "Hands off America," but it was now recognized as having a deeper significance. Monroe had laid down the principle that a radical change of European political ideas was necessary before the United States would co-operate with Europe, he went on. Now, he added, this change has taken place in Europe with the widespread acceptance of democratic ideals, and Poland again looks to America for cooperation.

Dr. F. J. Fohs of New York, geologist, said that the peak of oil production in the United States has passed, except in the Gulf district, which promises to reach its peak in 1928. If oil is not obtained from shale rock, he said, the United States must begin at once to rely on imports of oil. Otherwise, he said, it will not be fifty years before we will have to depend on imports and substitutes.

It was brought out that oil companies were deterred from exploiting Mexican oil fields because of unsettled conditions in Mexico. Dr. A. C. Veatch, Vice President of the Sinclair Petroleum Development Company, said that companies do not feel justified in investing money in Mexico. He said that the Caspian region promised to produce much oil in the future.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 31.—Republican Gubernatorial campaign plans in New Jersey will be discussed with President Coolidge by State Republican leaders, who will go to the Swampscott for that purpose, according to an announcement today by United States Senator Walter E. Edge here.

Senator Edge pointed out that this will be the first Gubernatorial contest in the country since the election of President Coolidge, and the latter is keenly interested in the outcome, as it will be taken as an indication of the popular feeling toward the Administration.

Senator Edge said preparations had been made for State Senator Arthur Whitney, the Republican candidate for Governor; State Republican Chairman Edward Casper Stokes and himself to go to the Swampscott shortly after the return of Senator Whitney from Europe on Aug. 11.

DIFFERS WITH SKRZYNSKI.

Berlin Paper Attacks Polish Security and Corridor Contentions.

BERLIN, July 31 (AP).—The Tageblatt today takes issue with utterances of Count Skrzynski, the Polish Foreign Minister, as reported from Williamstown, Mass., concerning Polish security and the Polish corridor.

On the question of security the Tageblatt holds that Poland can muster 2,000,000 men in the event of war, and in peace time has 99 heavy batteries and 322 light batteries of artillery, 11,780 machine guns, 160 tanks and 220 airplanes, while Germany has only 100,000 Reichswehr, no heavy artillery, only 72 light batteries, 1,926 machine guns and no tanks or airplanes.

On the corridor question the Tageblatt insists that 2,000,000 Germans are cut off from the mother country by the corridor, while the Poles would be merely cut off from the corridor if it were given up.

"But other peoples of Europe," the Tageblatt continues, "also are cut off from the scene, but nevertheless flourish. Besides, Count Skrzynski knows that Germany gladly would offer every advantage to Polish trade in German harbors if, in return, Eastern Prussia were no longer to be cut off."

Justice Tompkins Says His Order Will Deal With Retroactive Phase in Favor of Travelers.

Westchester commuters on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad will begin paying today the 40 per cent. commutation rate increase granted to the company by the Public Service Commission of New York on July 15. They were unable to obtain an injunction yesterday when they went before Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins in White Plains seeking to have the railroad company restrained from putting the new rates into effect pending a rehearing before the Public Service Commission. Justice Tompkins reserved decision.

Before starting from White Plains for his home in Nyack he indicated that he might render his decision on Monday. He refused to commit himself as to whether he could make an injunction in favor of the commuters retroactive, but asserted that he would include in his decision that phase of the matter.

Justice Tompkins made the announcement after an extended hearing on an order issued by Justice Taylor in White Plains the day before for the railroad company to show cause why an injunction should not be granted. Ex-Judge Charles A. Van Auken, Corporation Counsel for New Rochelle, appeared on behalf of the commuters. Benjamin I. Spock, general counsel of the railroad; Edward R. Brumley and William L. Bartnett appeared for the company.

No Brief Had Been Prepared.

Judge Van Auken admitted that he had not had time to prepare a brief showing in detail the grounds on which the application had been made. He admitted also that he had not made application before the Public Service Commission for a rehearing.

"I was notified only on July 26," he said, "though the I. C. C. had signed its order about the middle of the month. I wrote the Public Service Commission I would make a formal application for a rehearing, and in acknowledging my notice they informed me as to the grounds on which we would have to ask for the rehearing—grounds in detail. This is an action in equity and we must be granted time.

"You probably will not see fit to restrain the railroad company with an injunction such as we have asked," he told the Court. "And my motion is primarily for an order directing the company to impound the difference between the old and new fares, so that the commuters will have a chance to get back their money. We shall have a rehearing before the Public Service Commission in a few days, at which time we shall aim to get a reversal of the increases under the law."

Mr. Bartnett suggested that the Supreme Court had never directed a public utility to impound the difference between old and new rates in such a way, and Justice Tompkins replied:

"Oh, yes, it has. It has occurred in a number of gas cases, also in a case of the New York Central Railroad a few years ago."

At another stage of the argument Mr. Bartnett said that "no facts have been presented to entitle the commuters to such an unusual injunction. We have before us only Van Auken's opinion that the rates are excessive."

"But has not the Court a right to make a ruling in a special case of this kind to protect the commuters who may possibly pay an excessive rate?"

"Positively, no," said Mr. Bartnett. "This railroad has attempted since 1920 to get rate increases in New York State. It is only during the past few days, after twenty-one hearings before the Public Service Commission, that we have been successful."

"The constitutional rights of the commuters have been violated," said ex-Judge Van Auken. "The Public Service Commission authorized the increase only by a three to two decision and we, therefore, have just grounds for a rehearing."

Mr. Bartnett objected to the use of the words "constitutional rights." He said the commuters of Westchester had two other ways of traveling to New York City and "can take either one if they think their rights are being infringed upon by riding on the New Haven."

Counsel for the New Haven argued that the commuters were in the "wrong court," inasmuch as they had filed no application for a rehearing of the rate case with the Public Service Commission. After such an application is filed the commission has thirty days within which to make a decision, and then the applicants are entitled to petition for an injunction or a review of the decision by the courts.

The Railroad's Position.

Mr. Spock, in outlining the New Haven Railroad's position in the commutation situation, said:

"The increased New York commutation rates, effective Aug. 1, will be on the same basis as in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, both intrastate and interstate.

"In 1920 the Interstate Commerce Commission permitted all carriers to increase all interstate passenger fares 20 per cent. This included New York. The States traversed by the New Haven, shortly after, permitted increases of the intrastate rates 20 per cent., except New York.

"In 1923 the New Haven applied for a further increase of 20 per cent., both intrastate and interstate, and in 1924, after full hearings, the 20 per cent. was again granted except in New York. This left New York 40 per cent below the other States in intrastate rates, and 20 per cent below in its interstate rates.

"In New York, the company's applications for a 20 per cent. increase in the interstate rates and approximately a 40 per cent. increase in the intrastate rates were suspended by both commissions, and extended hearings were held at joint sessions of the two commissions, which began in September, 1924, and ended on May 18 of this year. The burden of proving the reasonableness of the increased rates was on the railroad company, and on July 23 both commissions announced their decisions upholding the increase.

"The commuters opposed the increased rates at all of the hearings, and after full investigation of all their claims both commissions have fairly decided that the railroad is entitled to the increases. The result is that after five years of effort the company has established its rates in New York on a basis with all other parts of the system. During those five years the New York commuters have had a discriminatory advantage, which is now removed.

"The company claims that the present application for an injunction is not the legal method of seeking a review of the New York order and that the commuters are in the wrong court."

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Both ships of the MacMillan Arctic expedition—the Peary and Bowdoin—are locked in the ice pack of Melville Bay, within sight of Cape York, according to a radiogram received today by the National Geographic Society from the commander of the exploring party.

Commander MacMillan stated in his radio message that it was impossible to say how long his ships would be held fast in the ice, but felt certain the pack would "continue in its original rôle" and that while "science has made mighty strides since the days of Kane and Greely, it is the same Arctic, relentless and implacable to man."

Commander MacMillan's message, sent under yesterday's date, read:

"The Melville Bay ice pack is playing its time-honored drama and keeping us endangered every minute. We are experiencing fog, ice, magnetic variation, drifting pans, and the constant change of tactics known to Arctic explorers for centuries. We are in the ice, with the skyline of Cape York in view, but are unable to move until conditions change.

"We are so near land that we have seen Eskimos near Meteorite Island signaling with smoke columns. Miniature pressure ridges are slowly rising about the Peary while the jagged ice whispered ominously at the intrusion of this steel shell amid hundreds of square miles of shifting ice. From 3 this morning until 2 o'clock this afternoon the Peary smashed lanes in the heavy floe and the Bowdoin hurled loose cakes like slabs.

"After breakfast a polar bear was sighted by Commander MacMillan and shot for scientific study. By night it was skinned and quartered on the foredeck of the Bowdoin. Its poisonous liver and brain were preserved for study by Dr. Davidoff and its stomach for inspection by Dr. Koelz.

"The bear was a female, about 800 pounds and quite fat, but with an almost empty stomach. Why she loped along, close in our course, is still a mystery. Two other bears were sighted today. Thousands of little auks swarmed past us. Seals have been within view practically all day. There have been flurries of snow, and all day we have been hearing the sinister gossip of crushing ice. When our connections with the spectacle will cease we cannot say, but it is certain that the ice will continue in its original rôle. Science has made mighty strides since the days of Kane and Greely, but it is the same Arctic, relentless and implacable to man. All well, happy and tired."

FIND BARONESS DEAD IN HOME OF FRIEND

WAS NOTED MUSIC CRITIC

A Guest of the Countess Sedohr Argilagos at New Rochelle When Fatally Stricken.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 31.—The Baroness Emily G. von Tetzel, nationally known as a critic of music, was found dead yesterday on a sofa in the home of Countess Sedohr Argilagos, and this afternoon County Medical Examiner Amos O. Squire said that death had been caused by acute alcoholism.

In addition to her standing as a music critic, Baroness von Tetzel was known in literary circles. At one time she was literary editor of The New York Press and later was assistant to the literary editor of The New York Herald. Subsequently she formed connection with The Theatre Magazine and with The New York Evening Telegram. The Baroness, who never married, was 47 years old. She was born in Milwaukee and came East when she was 17 years old. At one time she was an associate of the late James Gibbons Huneker on The Musical Courier.

The Baroness had an extensive estate at Riverside, Warren County, N. Y. She usually spent her Summers there, and for the last five or six years passed the Winter months at the home of Countess Argilagos, once a European prima donna. The former opera star and the Baroness had been intimate friends for years.

At the Countess's home, 206 Weyman Avenue, it was said this afternoon that the Baroness had been visiting there for several days. According to Dr. Squire, the Countess told him that Baroness von Tetzel had been drinking yesterday, and that for some time had been accustomed to drink quite heavily at periodic intervals. Friends called at the Argilagos home early yesterday, but to them Baroness von Tetzel explained that she felt ill and would rest awhile in the solarium. Shortly after noon she reappeared but illness again assailed her, and she went to a sofa, seeming to fall asleep.

Friends noticed that her sleep did not seem normal and tried to rouse her. They found the sleeper unconscious and physicians were summoned. They found the Baroness dead. The police asked Dr. Squire to make an examination, the result of which was made public today.

The Baroness had written extensively and of late had been the author of many motion-picture scenarios. She is survived by her mother, Countess Frances von Tetzel of Milwaukee, and a brother, Harold von Tetzel, also of Milwaukee. They were notified, and arrangements for the funeral will be made upon their arrival.

2 MORE WOMEN HELD IN MT. VERNON MURDER

One Is Suspected of Harboring Men After Street Car Hold-Up—Robber Leader Still Sought.

The police of Mount Vernon yesterday arrested two more women in connection with the murder of John Schumacher and Robert C. Nichols, a motorman in a hold-up on a street car there two weeks ago. They were Mrs. Bessie Berliner, 37 years old, of 615 West 135th Street, and Miss Lena Gates, 24 years old, of 618 West 135th Street. The former was held without bail and Miss Gates in $5,000 bail, which she failed to furnish.

They were questioned at Mount Vernon and, though the police declined to make public the result, it was learned that Mrs. Berliner is suspected of having harbored the robbers at her home after the hold-up and murder and of having given them money to leave this part of the country.

John (Dopey) Marino, said to be the leader of the robbers, is one of the men sought for the killing and the police said they hoped to trace him and his companions through the arrest of the women. Mrs. Berliner is held as an accessory to the murder while the other is under bond as a material witness.

Mrs. Edna Baltimore Marino, wife of the hunted man and owner of the automobile used in the hold-up, has been released in $500 bail, the police being satisfied that she was not implicated in the murder. A fourth woman, Miss Marion Mooney, of 162 West Sixty-sixth Street, is still in the White Plains jail as a material witness.

Five men arrested in Brooklyn for possession of revolvers who were suspected of complicity in the hold-up were cleared after questioning by Mount Vernon police. They were identified, however, as the men who held up and robbed Samuel Sager and his son in Sager's jewelry shop at 725 Broadway, Brooklyn, and escaped with $10,000 in gems.

The five were held in $5,000 bail on charges of robbery and violating the Sullivan law in the Bridge Plaza Court by Magistrate Short, and one, Paul Calebro, of 458 Henry Street was held in an additional $5,000 bail on a charge of taking part in the robbery of the laundry of Harry Fishman, at 320 Hopkins Street, Brooklyn, on July 16. Fishman identified Calebro as one of the robbers after his arrest Thursday night.

The other four men were Leo Garvasi of 1,329 Sixty-sixth Street, Lorenzo Caruse of 1,328 Sixty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, and Pasquale Olofe of Lakeview, a suburb of White Plains, and Denice Amedio of 58 Fulton Street, White Plains.

SWEARS M'QUILLAN ASKED FOR FREEDOM

HELEN GOEBBEL NAMED

Mrs. Nellie T. McQuillan, who started a separation suit a few days ago against her husband, Hugh McQuillan, a pitcher for the New York National League Club, who replied with a general denial of her charges, supplemented her complaint with several affidavits, yesterday, which were submitted to the Brooklyn Supreme Court. One of the affidavits was signed by her sister, Mary A. Tracy of 5 Camp Street, Worcester, Mass., in which she charges that McQuillan had said he wanted to be free of his wife to marry Helen E. Goebbel of 1,532 Vyse Avenue, the Bronx.

He made this admission, Miss Tracy said, when she and her sister, Mrs. McQuillan, her husband and his attorney, J. F. Kelly, met at the Hotel Biltmore on Dec. 10, 1924, to discuss their affairs, with a view to a reconciliation. The affidavit gives the colloquy between husband and wife and the attorney as follows:

Mrs. McQuillan—Well, Hughie, what will be the outcome of this affair?

McQuillan—I don't care about anything. Let Mr. Kelly draw up separation papers and I will pay you a certain sum at regular periods. Let's be separated for at least six months.

Mrs. McQuillan—What will follow the six months?

McQuillan—Then, if you feel like it, you can get a divorce.

Kelly—Let's not look so far ahead; let's see if we can't effect a reconciliation.

Mrs. McQuillan—I think I understand your attitude. There is a girl behind this and I know her name.

McQuillan—There is a girl behind it. I cannot be happy with you. Let me have my freedom, so that I can marry this girl, for she is the only one that can make me happy. You will never know the want of anything if you will divorce me.

The affidavit concludes with the assertion by Mrs. McQuillan that the girl was known as "Miss, Bronx, a beauty contest girl," and that McQuillan had admitted her identity.

In his answer to his wife's suit McQuillan denied he had been infatuated with Miss Goebbel. He said he knew her family very well and that she was merely an acquaintance. He also, in a replying affidavit yesterday, denied the admissions attributed to him at the hotel conference.

Mrs. McQuillan filed an answering affidavit, in which she denied her husband's complaint that he had often returned home from the ballfield and found his wife absent from their home in Astoria, Queens. She said the reason her husband didn't get more of his meals at home was because he had not been home to get them. Mrs. McQuillan says her husband refused to take her along on his baseball training trips, as other of the club's players did with their families, a practice approved by Manager John J. McGraw.

Allimony and counsel fees are asked for by Mrs. McQuillan pending decision in her suit. Justice James C. Cropsey reserved decision.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 31 (AP).—An order granting an injunction in behalf of the Remington Cash Register Company, Inc., of Ilion, N. Y., and others against the National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio, restraining the infringement of patents for improvements in adding and recording machines, and requiring payment by the National Cash Register Company to the Remington company of several million dollars damages, was filed here today by Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the United States District Court.

The amount of damages is variously estimated from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Judge Thomas found all of the claims filed to be valid. The infringement was in the use of certain devices for a plurality of totalizers in adding machines, devices for clearing sub-totals and grand totals, and methods of printing and recording such totals.

Judge Thomas concludes that the Remington machines embody new and previously unpatented devices, and that the National machines, though perhaps different in form, substantially have adopted those devices in violation of the plaintiff's patent rights.

Attorneys for the Remington Cash Register Company said yesterday that the decision in the New Haven suit would have considerable effect upon the cash register and adding machine business of the country. It was reported at the time of the trial that millions of dollars were involved in the outcome.

Mr. Gubelmann, the inventor, has been working on adding machine and cash register inventions for more than twenty-five years, according to the Remington attorneys. The application for the patent involved in the suit was filed in January, 1900, and was pending in the Patent Office for years. The defendant claimed that this delay was excessive and should be held against the inventor, but the court held that the delay was due to conditions beyond the inventor's control.

BUSINESS BUREAU HAILS WAR ON CRIME

Prentiss and Davison to Arrange Meeting Next Week to Further National Commission.

The movement to form a National Crime Commission, promoters of which held their first meeting Wednesday in the offices of Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation, received impetus yesterday from several sources. The Better Business Bureau of New York City, with headquarters at 280 Broadway, declared that crimes in business are as numerous and safe as those of violence. It approved the movement and suggested that its scope be broadened to include consideration of commercial criminality.

General Sessions Judge Alfred J. Talley, who attended the meeting in Judge Gary's offices, endorsed the proposed commission and declared himself in favor of the complete abolition of the Probition law on the ground that it is "at the bottom of all our lawlessness and disrespect for constituted authority." He said the first considerations of the National Crime Commission should be the enactment of a Federal statute making the sale of pistols illegal, and a thorough study of the relation of truancy to crime.

"The real campaign issue in this city," Judge Talley said, "is not the transit situation, subways or the five-cent fare. What lasting good is to be accomplished for, or by, us, even though we have a five-cent fare, if we are to continue to have a murder every day and a robbery or hold-up every hour of the day? It is far more essential to us that the city be made safe than that we should continue to consider the acme of all civic perfection lies in our remaining a city of nickel droppers.

"The real problem of today is rampant crime, and our slogans should be, 'Stop the Criminal' and 'Put an End to Crime.' As a part of the war against crime in this community, I would suggest that every Supreme Court Justice be assigned to try criminal cases. I would suggest also that every person charged with a crime of violence be given a speedy trial. Let us give one month's notice to such defendants that, beginning Oct. 1 and continuing through that month and November, their cases will be moved for trial. It might be advisable, I believe, to appoint an additional number of Special Assistant District Attorneys for a period of three months, in the event there are not enough at present on the staffs of the District Attorneys."

In a communication to Mark O. Prentiss, one of the leaders in the National Crime Commission movement, the Better Business Bureau related the prevalence of dommercial crime, including misrepresentation of assets, false standings, ect. Mr Prentiss said he was impressed, and would bring the matter before the next meeting.

This meeting, which is to be bigger than the first, will be attended by prominent business men and others, from here and other cities. It will be some time next week. Mr. Prentiss, F. Trubee Davison, a member of the State Assembly from Long Island, will meet Monday to arrange it.

The American Board of Applied Christianity, Inc., of which Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is chairman, wrote a letter to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, commending the movement as follows:

"There must be created a public opinion that will compel fathers and mothers to make homes for their children in which proper training obtains. In New York are 400,000 and in the nation are 15,000,000 children who, denied moral and religious education, are dying spiritual deaths. There is a lack of public opinion that would force men to forego joy rides in expensive automobiles that they may discharge some measure of their duty to others. Let us have crime commissions, but let us remember that blame for existing conditions does not rest solely on the police, courts and prisons."

POST $7,000 REWARD FOR DRAKE BANDIT

Hotel Offers $5,000 and City and State $2,000 for Last of Five in Big Hold-Up.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Three rewards totaling $7,000 were posted late today for the capture of William J. Mullneschuck, alias Mullenbach, the one fugitive of the five bandits who held up the Drake Hotel cashier's office. Tracy C. Drake, President of the hotel company and his brother, John B. Drake Jr., offered $5,000 and Chief of Police Collins and State's Attorney Crowe $1,000 each.

BANDITS GET CHICAGO GEMS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Two young, well-dressed bandits escaped with $10,000 in unset gems from the offices of S. L. Simmons & Co., manufacturing jewelers, in the Capitol Building, at noon today. S. L. Simmons, President of the firm, was alone in the offices. The door opened and he turned to be greeted with the command, accompanied by a gesture with a gun:

"Throw up your hands and face the wall."

Simmons eyed the gun and then complied. The office door opened a second time and Simmons turned his head slightly. The bandit guarding him struck him on the head. While one bandit continued to guard him, the other rifled the showcases and safe of the gems.

Detectives made a minute search of the building but discovered nothing. Simmons told the police that the gems were not insured.

Robbed of $1,500 at Golf Club.

Howard Gans of Grymes Hill, Staten Island, wealthy sportsman and amateur radio expert, was robbed of $1,500 in cash and jewelry at the Fox Hills Golf Club last Saturday, it was learned yesterday. The police have since been hunting for the thief. Coming into the club house after a round of golf, Gans put his clothes in a locker and went to the showers. On his return he found that some one had taken from his pockets a watch valued at $850, a fob worth $250 and a $150 wallet containing $250 in currency.

New Police Chief Is Robbed; Ousted Chief 'Not Surprised'

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., July 31.—The home of Phillip Grossbeck, whose appointment recently as Chief of Police in place of Frederick Snow brought a warm controversy, was entered by robbers yesterday, while the new Chief and his family were away. The intruders stole three rings, the Chief's diamond stickpin and $30 in cash.

Former Chief Snow, when he was told of the robbery, said: "Well, I'm not surprised. As soon as those crooks from New York heard about my leaving the job they started coming over."

Some people here were inclined to attribute the robbery to enemies of the new Chief. Both Snow and Grossbeck were for many years in the New York City service, Snow in the Fire Department and Grossbeck on the police force.

MOTHER OF 4 SLAIN; FOUND DEAD IN DITCH

LOVED GAIETY, FRIENDS SAY

Special to The New York Times.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., July 31.—A man passing along a lonely section of St. Cloud Avenue, near the Essex Troop remount station, early today found the body of a woman lying face down in a shallow ditch beside the road. He notified the police and Captain James F. Mason of the Essex County Prosecutor's office. A preliminary examination disclosed that the woman had been beaten to death, and from evidence gathered the Prosecutor believes the woman had been killed in some other place, presumably in an automobile, and her body flung from the car into the ditch.

The curiosity of Policeman Peter Mericle of the Orange police prompted him, while passing the morgue in the afternoon, to go in and view the body. He recognized the victim at once as Mrs. Agnes Wickham of 26 Lindsley Avenue, West Orange. She was 41 years old, the wife of Frederick Wickham, an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Jersey City and the mother of four daughters, the eldest about 23 and the youngest 17 years old.

Four men, whose names were withheld, were brought to the police station here tonight for questioning. The police learned that Mrs. Wickham was last seen alive last night in a restaurant in Lincoln Avenue, Orange. At that time, it was reported, there were four men in her company. Captain Mason said he thought an arrest would be made within a few hours.

Working on the theory that Mrs. Wickham had been killed in an automobile while resisting an attack, the police began a canvass of roadhouses and tearooms in this section. Captain Mason said that the first task was to find out how Mrs. Wickham had spent last night.

Body Half Hidden by Grass.

Robert Ferguson of Little Falls found the body as he drove past the spot. Near the body, which was half concealed in the tall grass, was found a buff-colored cap blocked off into small checks by slate-colored lines. The cap, the police believe, was knocked out of the car when the body was thrown out. It was purchased in a Newark shop. Inquiry there developed that the store had sold a dozen or more of the caps within the last two months, but no record was kept of the purchasers. About twenty-five feet from the body a white handkerchief was picked up. Nearer to the body was found a breastpin which had contained eleven white stones, two of which were missing. A bottle half filled with what appeared to be wine was also found.

The nearest house to the spot where the body was found is about 500 feet south. Elizabeth Buchanan, 15 years old, who lives there, told the police that she heard loud talking about 10 o'clock last night. Later an automobile came down the road, and then another came close behind the first. She said it was about midnight when she heard the scream of a woman. She heard no further outcry and said nothing about the incident to any one until she heard of the murder.

The police are looking for a man named Zeppo, who is reported to have said that he saw a woman struggling with two men in St. Cloud Avenue. An investigation brought forward no other witness to the alleged struggle. Motorcycle Policeman James Todd reported that he had patrolled the road at midnight and failed to notice anything wrong.

Prosecutor Mason's theory is that the woman's death was the end of an adventure that began in a speak-easy. Mrs. Wickham, he learned, was a former trained nurse and liked "gay times," her friends said.

That Mrs. Wickham had been cruelly beaten to death was disclosed by the autopsy. She had six fractures of the skull. Her right eye and ear were black and blue and there were blue marks of powerful fingers on both arms. There were bruises on her legs. It was the belief of Captain Mason that the blows on the head and face had been inflicted by the crank handle of an automobile or a wrench. The theory of robbery as a motive was disproved, he said, because on the fingers were found a gold wedding ring and a diamond ring. The time of the crime was fixed as between 2 and 6 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Wickham is employed on a railroad ferryboat plying between Manhattan and Jersey City. He said that his wife left home yesterday to visit a friend in Elizabeth. Her absence when he returned from work caused him no uneasiness, he said, as he supposed she had remained at her friend's house for the night. The family have lived in West Orange about three years. Three of the daughters live at home, the fourth in Petersburg, Va.

Jersey County Cuts Crime Record.

Despite increases in crimes of violence in other sections of the country, there has been a sharp decrease in Hudson County, New Jersey, according to the announcement yesterday of Aloysius McMahon, Assistant Prosecutor of the county. He assigned the traditional swiftness of "Jersey justice" as one of the reasons. The Prosecutor pointed out that the county has as many difficulties in fighting crime as the great cities of the country, citing its population of 650,000 and its large communities, among them Jersey City, Weehawken, and Hoboken.

Freed on Gem-Theft Charge.

BURST MAIN FLOODS N.Y. CENTRAL TRACKS

TRAFFIC HASTILY DETOURED

SHUT OFF WITH DIFFICULTY

Flow Continues for Six Hours—Workmen Build a Canal to Deflect the Torrent.

The bursting at 11:45 o'clock yesterday morning of a forty-eight-inch water main at Bailey and Heath Avenues, below 225th Street, the Bronx, spilled 5,000,000 gallons of water, buried the Hudson and Putnam Division tracks of the New York Central under four feet of mud and covered them with water for three-quarters of a mile. The mishap caused the interruption of local service and the detouring of through trains between the Grand Central Station and Albany for four hours. It was six hours before the escaping head of water was finally shut off.

An embankment fifteen feet high had been built recently for a roadway on top of the forty-eight-inch main, and the embankment itself was built against a low bluff.

When the rush of water was first discovered, it was driving with the battering-ram force of a hydraulic mining monitor into the embankment and into the hill beyond it. Dirt was being ripped out by the scores of tons.

The railroad men who discovered it found a muddy river rushing across the tracks. Men were sent in each direction to signal trains to stop, but the water poured up and down the tracks faster than the men could run, destroyed electrical connections and brought traffic to an automatic standstill.

Water Falls in the Bronx.

While New York Central employees were telephoning to the Grand Central offices about the wash-out, residents in the University Heights section of the Bronx were keeping the telephones to the Department of Water Supply busy with requests for information as to what had happened to the water supply. That office did not know. It sent crews out to discover what had happened. It was 1 o'clock before they found the leak, and shortly after 2 o'clock before the main water head at 231st Street was shut off.

But after te main gate was closed large volumes of water continued to flow through the pipes, coming from some unknown source, which was not discovered until 5:30 o'clock.

Between the first break, shortly before noon and 2 o'clock, water flowed from the pipe at the rate of 35,000 gallons a minute and continued to add rapidly to the huge mound of sediment which it laid across the railroad tracks. The shutting off of the main gate reduced its flow by about 75 per cent. When this much had been accomplished, remedial measures became possible. Engineers of the New York Central, with about 300 workmen, energetically tackled the job of running a canal or sluice which would divert the stream which was flowing across the tracks.

Hundreds of men began to make the mud fly and to protect it with planks as they erected canal walls to the east side of the tracks. In half an hour they had built 100 feet of canal, diverting the stream so that it flowed along a path between the embankment and the tracks. Then of its own accord it flowed to the southwest along a natural depression and finally drained under the tracks into the Harlem River.

Workmen Tackle the Mud.

Many plank bridges were quickly thrown across the mud over the tracks and workmen began to shovel off the mud.

While engineers, wreck trains, electricians and armies of laborers were repairing the damage here, the train dispatcher at the Grand Central Terminal was wiring directions for detours. Trains 155, 41 and 53, which ordinarily travel north over the mud-covered tracks, were sent to Chatham over the Harlem division and from there over the Boston & Albany to Albany and then back on the New York Central line.

At the Grand Central Terminal subway tickets were handed out to passengers who had trips to make on the Hudson division. They were told to take the Broadway subway to the Marble Hill Station in the Bronx and there board the trains which were hastily made up there.

By 2:30 one of the four flooded tracks was restored and in operation. By 3:15 another was safe and travel was gradually resumed over the Hudson and Putnam Divisions. In the meantime the Water Department employes were still trying to find the sources of the water which, on theory, should not be flowing from the pipes.

The pipe belonged to an intricate system which had to be shut off at several gates, and these were all reported shut. But there the water was, bounding out by the hundreds of gallons, though no longer doing any harm, because of the spillway which kept it away from the tracks.

Assistant Chief Engineer of the Water Department W. W. Brush decided that one of the gates to the south, which was reported to be shut, must be open. He hurried to 207th Street near Sedgwick Avenue to have the gate shut, and found that the Bronx foreman of the Water Supply Department had made the same discovery and had a gang of men pushing and pulling at a great crossbar to shut the gate. The gate, badly corroded, had stuck, so that the first crew which had worked on it had been misled into thinking that it was shut.

"The break was apparently caused originally by the weight of the 15-foot embankment built on top of it," said Mr. Brush. "It was not laid to support any such weight."

Asked if the series of costly main bursts recently meant that the city was in for an epidemic of such mishaps and whether the pressure of the water had not become too high for the old mains, he said:

"Nothing of the kind. The pressure of the water has not been increased. It was pure coincidence that these various breaks have occurred so close to one another. You see, we have a total of 3,500 miles of water mains in New York, with 1,250,000 lengths of pipe. Now and then one length of pipe is bound to be subjected to exceptional strain, and a break results in spite of all precautions. There is no reason to anticipate any more than the average number of breaks in the future."

BERENGARIA PIERCES HEAVY RAIN TO DOCK

MARY HAY IS ON BOARD

Denies She and Barthelmess Are Divorced—Jo Davidson and Ex-Senator Calder Also Arrive.

In spite of the heavy rain which created a mist over the harbor yesterday, the Cunarder Berengaria came up from Quarantine and made fast at her pier at the foot of West Thirteenth Street in sixty-eight minutes.

Among the first cabin passengers on the liner were Prince Serge Obolensky and the Princess, who was Miss Alice Astor, and their five-month-old son, Ivan Obolensky. They were met at Quarantine by Vincent Astor, brother of the Princess, who assisted the party in getting through the customs examination at the pier. Princess Obolensky said they intended to live in the United States and to build a home near the Astor estate in Dutchess County.

Former United States Senator William M. Calder of New York returned on the Berengaria from a ten weeks' tour of Italy, France, England, Scotland and Ireland. He refused to discuss politics. Mr. Calder said that he had enjoyed visiting Aberdeen, where his father's folks lived, and Tipperary, where his mother came from.

"I had a talk with William T. Cosgrave, the President of the Irish Free State, in Dublin," he said, "and he seemed satisfied that the Government was doing well and that Ireland would regain her trade and prosperity in time. The economic conditions are not too good just now. What Ireland needs is capital. The creameries are being rebuilt in the South, but the progress is slow."

Another passenger on the Berengaria was Sir Cecil Chubb, who bought Stonehenge, the famous Druid monument, in 1915 for $33,000, and made a gift of it to the British nation two years later. Sir Cecil is a barrister of the Middle Temple, London, and has come over to visit friends. He has an estate at Salisbury which is only a short distance from Stonehenge to which Americans throng in Summer to see the Druidical monuments which were called "The Giants' Circle" by the ancient Saxons.

Mary Hay, wife of Richard Barthelmess the actor, also arrived on the liner, and denied that she intended to obtain a divorce. "I am not divorced," she said, "but my husband and I are separated."

Joe Davidson, sculptor, returned to finish his bust of John D. Rockefeller, which was begun in the Spring of 1924. Mr. Rockefeller posed at Pocantico Hills for the sculptor, who made a clay model and then went to Italy for the marble. Mr. Davidson said that he had half finished the bust abroad and intended to complete work next month.

Others on the Berengaria were E. Bowater of the Bowater Paper Mills, London; the Right Rev. Bishop Hoban, Chancellor to Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, on his way back from Rome; John Sanford, race horse owner, and Chester K. G. Billings, and Joseph A. Moran, proprietor of the Atlantic Basin Iron Works. The liner brought 1,797 passengers of all classes, including 752 first cabin.

REPORT ON TWO ESTATES.

Mr. O'Hara, who died May 8, 1925, had an interest of $1,279 in Fox, O'Hara & Co., and his seat was appraised at $106,000. In addition, he left assets in New Jersey valued at $3,693, but because of debts the net estate was not more than $7,000, which he left to his wife.

Mr. Halsted, who died April 29 last, left a total estate of $10,213, of which $102,736 was the value of his Stock Exchange seat. He owned fishing tackle worth $422 and personal effects appraised at $314. His interest in undivided profits of Harp, Tierney & Co. was $1,477. The estate went to his wife.

OTHER NEWS OF RELIGION

Luther Day will be observed on Tuesday by the combined Lutheran churches of New York City and its suburbs with an excursion to Ocean Grove, N. J. It is expected that 3,000 will make the trip. The steamers Sandy Hook and Monmouth have been chartered, the boats leaving West Forty-second Street at 8:45 and 9:50 and Cedar Street at 9:15 and 10:15 in the morning. A special boat for business men and women who cannot get off the entire day will leave West Forty-second Street at 3:45 and Cedar Street at 4 in the afternoon. The program in the Ocean Grove Auditorium includes an address by Professor Walter A. Maier, of Concordia Lutheran Seminary, St. Louis, on the topic "America, Wake Up." The musical program will include organ selections by Edward Rechlin, considered one of America's foremost Bach interpreters; the Aida Brass Quartet and the Wartburg Band of Mount Vernon, N. Y. The presiding officer will be the Rev. William C. Schwehn, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, Philadelphia. An eight-reel motion picture film, "Martin Luther, His Life and Time," will be shown three times.

Alexander H. Stewart, Scotch evangelist of Guelph, Ont., will open a gospel and Bible campaign tomorrow in the Friends' Meeting House, 221 East Fifteenth Street, just east of Third Avenue. Mr. Stewart when a boy was a fellow-worker with Sir Harry Lauder in a coal mine. The evangelist will preach every evening except Saturday through Aug. 17. He will be followed by Harry A. Ironside, of Ookland, Cal., often called "The Spurgeon of the Pacific," who will preach through Aug. 30. Mr. Stewart was converted in the bottom of a Nova Scotia mine. "Saved in the Pit and from the Pit" is the title of his conversion story.

How church union is developing in America is depicted by the Rev. Dr. James Robert Smith, Secretary of the Church Building Society of the Congregational Church, in his report to be submitted at the biennial meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches at Washington, D. C., in October. The report sets forth that the Congregational denominational officials were successful in getting the Congregational Church at East Lansing, Mich., to withdraw from the denomination and to become an independent body in order that three other denominations might cooperate with the Congregationalists in building a new church and paying the salary of a pastor who could thus minister to the entire community. The four bodies uniting were the Michigan Congregational Conference, the Michigan Baptist Convention, the Michigan Methodist Conference and the Presbyterian Synod of Michigan. A new church costing $200,000 will be built. The pastor of the "union" church is the Rev. N. A. McCune, a Methodist minister. East Lansing was considered favorable for the experiment in church cooperation because the State Agricultural College, with 2,000 students, is situated there.

The United Lutheran Church in America will be officially represented for the first time at the Universal Christian Conference on Life and Work, which opens on Aug. 19 at Stockholm. There will be four official delegates and a like number of unofficial observers, it was announced yesterday at the national headquarters, 437 Fifth Avenue. The delegates elected by the Executive Board are the Rev. Dr. E. P. Pfatteicher of Reading, Pa.; J. B. Franke of Fort Wayne, Ind.; the Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Clutz of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa.; the Rev. Dr. M. G. G. Scherer of this city, Secretary of the United Lutheran Church. All will sail Tuesday on the Bergensfjord of the Norwegian-American Line. The four unofficial observers are Professor E. E. Fischer of Mount Airy Theological Seminary, Philadelphia; Professor E. Clutz of Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa.; Dr. Nathan R. Melhorn, editor of The Lutheran, Philadelphia; Grant Hultberg, manager of the United Lutheran Publication House, Philadelphia. Dr. Melhorn and Mr. Hultberg will sail today, and Professors Fischer and Clutz on Tuesday.

The National Association of Organists will meet in Cleveland, beginning next Tuesday and continuing three days. "Music in the Church School" will be the subject of a paper by Reginald L. McCall, organist of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, New York. Dr. T. Tertius Noble, organist of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, New York, as President, will be Chairman.

The Society of the Sons of Methodist Preachers was formed at a recent meeting in the Uptown Club. One of the society's purposes is to place three windows in the new Broadway Temple which the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner is building on Washington Heights as a general tribute to the Methodist Manse. The Chairman is William L. Lybrand of Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery, expert accountants, of 110 William Street. The Secretary is Paul M. Helmes, Secretary of the Ward Baking Company. Among the members are Ivy L. Lee, the Rockefellers' publicity man; Eric North of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions; Emory R. Buckner, United States Attorney; W. H. Johns of the George Batten Advertising Agency; Fletcher H. Montgomery, President of the Knox Hat Company; James Melvin Lee, director of the Department of Journalism, New York University.

Cardinal Hayes will lay the cornerstone this Fall of a five-story primary school to go up at 163 East Seventy-fifth Street for the Church of St. Jean Baptiste, Seventy-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue. The school, which will be built by the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament, will be erected on a plot 128 by 102 feet.

The Rev. Dr. John W. Ham, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, Atlanta, will speak this evening at Beacon Light Mission, 2,350 Third Avenue, the uptown centre of the National Bible Institute. The outdoor work of the institute will continue at Fifty-sixth Street intersections in Manhattan and Brooklyn and in Flushing.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Evertson Cobb, pastor of the West End Collegiate Reformed Church, Seventy-seventh Street and West End Avenue, will be at the Lake Placid Club, Lake Placid, N. Y., from Aug. 15 to Sept. 12.

THRONG PAYS TRIBUTE TO MGR. M'CORMICK

Rt. Rev. John J. Dunn Celebrates Mass for Pastor of Holy Trinity—Police Escort to Calvary.

The funeral of Mgr. John G. McCormick, pastor for the last thirteen years of the Church of the Holy Trinity, West Eighty-second Street, took place there yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Mgr. McCormick died suddenly last Tuesday night.

The church was not nearly large enough to hold all who gathered. Many remained reverently on the stoop, the sidewalk and the street throughout the requiem mass. There were two bishops, twenty-five monsignori and 200 priests present.

Cardinal Hayes, who is in the northern part of the State, sent a telegram stating he was severely shocked at the death of his "life-long friend," Mgr. McCormick, whom he described as "a pre-eminent priest of the Archdiocese of New York."

The celebrant of the mass was the Right Rev. John J. Dunn, Auxiliary Bishop of the archdiocese. The other prelate present was the Right Rev. Thomas J. Walsh, Bishop of Trenton, N. J. The sermon was delivered by Mgr. Thomas M. O'Keefe, pastor of the Church of St. Benedict the Moor. The deacon of the mass was the Rev. Joseph L. McCann, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Bronxville. The subdeacon was the Rev. Terence E. Gilmartin of St. Luke's Church, the Bronx. The master of ceremonies was the Rev. James J. Hackett, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Elmsford, N. Y.

There were a number of city officials present. There was a police escort to Calvary Cemetery, where burial was in the prists' mortuary. The service at the grave was conducted by Mgr. Charles A. Cassidy, pastor of St. Peter's Church, West New Brighton, S. I.

HYMN TUNES IN DANCE TIME.

Hymn tunes in dance time will be broadcast from Station WMCA at the Hotel McAlpin at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening by Ernie Golden and his Hotel McAlpin Roof Garden Orchestra. It will be the first time such a radio program has been attempted.

Two weeks ago Golden, talking at a west side religious forum, said that hymns could be put to dance time to create popular favor for church music and fill empty church pews. Since then he has received many requests from his radio audience to try out his plan. His first number will be "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31.—The disturbance that was over Southwestern Virginia Friday morning has advanced to Southeastern Pennsylvania, with slightly increasing intensity, and storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from New Haven to Eastport. The disturbance that was over Northern Indiana has advanced to Lake Erie. Pressure continues lower over the Gulf of St. Lawrence and from British Columbia southward to Arizona. Pressure continues high, but falling, over the Plains States and it is high in the region of Bermuda and on the North Pacific Coast.

During the last twenty-four hours general showers and thunderstorms have occurred in the upper Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley, the lake region and the Middle Atlantic States and scattered showers and thunder storms have occurred in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, the north portion of the West Gulf States and the Southern Rocky Mountain region. It has become cooler in the interior of the Middle and West Gulf States, over the lower lake region and in portions of the Middle Atlantic States, while warmer weather has overspread the Northern Plains States and the upper Mississippi Valley.

The outlook is for showers on Saturday in Northern New York and Northern New England, and along the South Atlantic Coast. Elsewhere the weather will be mostly fair Saturday and Sunday in the States east of the Mississippi River. Temperatures will continue near or below the seasonal average.

ROCKEFELLER BARN BURNS.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 3.—A barn on the farm rented by Charles Thompson and owned by John D. Rockefeller, in Sleepy Hollow, burned early today. Local firemen arrived too late to save the structure. Harry Stager, member of Rescue Hose Company, was overcome by smoke while fighting the fire and was unconscious an hour. Sixty chickens in the barn were killed.

The cause of the fire was not determined, but the police suspect incendiarism.

There have been two fires at the Rockefeller home and in one of his main stable was destroyed by one of six fires that have occurred on his estate since he moved to Pocantico Hills.

Fire Department.

Chief Kenlon yesterday made this correspondence public:

Machine Drivers Warned.

Hon. Thomas J. Drennan, Fire Commissioner:

Dear Sir—The repair shop is swamped with apparatus, some partially wrecked, and other pieces almost totally wrecked, due to accidents while responding to, and returning from, alarms of fire.

You and I have had many conferences on this matter, and it was agreed that the only possible way to stop it was to hold the officer in charge responsible, and to enforce the responsibility by fines in the trial room. I am free to confess that I know of no other way. I cannot stop this reckless driving of apparatus if the officer who is sitting alongside of the chauffeur permits it to go on.

I would ask you to consider this matter very carefully and except it can be clearly shown by impartial testimony that the fire apparatus was not at fault, and was not proceeding at an undue or reckless rate of speed, I am of the opinion that the officer in charge should be fined. This will stop the destruction of apparatus, and stop it quickly; nothing else that I know of will have any effect. Very respectfully,

JOHN KENLON,
Chief of Department.

I fully approve of your letter and suggest a severe warning be sent to all officers.

THOMAS J. DRENNAN,
Commissioner.

Pensioned.

2 HURT IN $40,000 FIRE.

Clerk Burned, Boy Cut in Blaze at Eldridge Street Landmark.

A man and a boy were injured yesterday in a fire that did about $40,000 damage to the clothing store of Haimowitz Brothers, a clerk in the store, was burned on the face and neck and Sidney Rabinowtiz, 13 years old, of 71 Eldridge Street, was cut by flying glass while watching the firemen at work. Both went home after being treated by an ambulance doctor.

The fire started in the rear of the store, which is on the ground floor of a three-story tenement. The firemen confined the flames to the store. The building is an old landmark in the section. It once housed the old Tenth Ward Chop House.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

While the gradual receding of prices which had characterized the two preceding days continued on the Stock Exchange yesterday, more interest than usual converged on the grain and cotton markets. Each of those markets has just now particular interest to financial watchers—wheat, because it is now being tested whether the shortage in supplies left over from the old harvest will continue to hold up prices while the new crop is coming to market; cotton, because the crop is at a peculiarly critical stage when the world's need of a full yield is still urgent. Yesterday was the last day for delivery of wheat on July contracts; the price reached $1.66, which is 38¼ cents above the low price of that delivery reached in April and only 8¼ cents under the January highest.

While this was happening, however, prices for Autumn delivery declined. The closing price of "September wheat" was nearly 17 cents below July, whereas on the last day of July, 1924, the difference was less than 3 cents a bushel. Nevertheless, even on Autumn contracts yesterday's price was 16 or 17 cents above the same date last year. In favor of maintenance of the present relatively high price are the two considerations of an unusually small surplus from the world crop of 1924 and the deficiency in this year's American Winter-sown harvest; against it stands the high yield in the foreign producing countries which ran short last year. The two sets of counter-influences will fight it out on the wheat market of the next few months, but at the moment the signs of the markets indicate continued maintenance of a price well above last year's.

The somewhat violent fall in cotton prices since the middle of the week expressed the market's judgment as to what might be the results of the sudden breaking of the prolonged drought in Texas, from which the most uncomfortable doubts had arisen as to this season's total crop realizing the hopes of a few months ago. Yesterday's more or less uncertain movements of the market raised the question whether the rain might not have come too late. This is always a difficult question to answer with the hardy cotton crop, which will often survive drought when the cotton trade has given up hope. All this will lend great interest to the Government's impending monthly estimate.

On the Stock Exchange the pressure of realizing sales continued during most of the day; the market as a whole closed fractionally lower, and there were again some abrupt and rather violent declines in shares that have been subject to particular professional manipulation for the rise. But the movement was again of an orderly character, some recovery occurred in the late trading, and in general the market could still be described only as engaged in a perfectly natural readjustment from a prolonged advanced to what in many stocks were exceptionally high prices. Railway shares held steadier than the industrial list; partly, no doubt, because they had not been advanced beforehand on the scale of the others, but partly also because the earnings statements, with their unexpectedly good comparisons, have had a basis of their own for hopefulness.

The week-~~end~~ mercantile trade reviews are in line with the spirit of cheerfulness evident in most present views of the business situation. There are "irregularities"—it would be difficult to name a season of past history in which there were not—but less use is made of that favorite word in the mercantile vernacular, "cross-currents," and the general trend seems to be fairly plain. The summary of one of the commercial agencies, to the effect that further expansion in some lines of trade has appeared "at a time of year when it is least to be expected," and that a July with more activity than tradition would indicate creates hopeful expectations even for the midsummer month of August, perhaps gives the true picture of the business attitude.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1925.

Firmness developed in the call money market, renewals being made at 4 per cent., as against a closing rate of 3¾ per cent. on Thursday. Toward midday the rate advanced to 4½ per cent., and the final transactions were at that level. Considerable withdrawals were reported to have been made for month-end requirements, and banks in the interior also called in some funds as a result of the easiness of the previous day. The demand was moderate. Conditions in the time money market were unchanged.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Further General Reaction in Stock Market; Trading Active.

With the movement of prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday again downward, numerous active issues closed the day with losses ranging from 1 to 2 points; but with the exception of the declines in these specialties, and the gains reported in a few others, net changes were generally confined to fractions. Judging from the action of the market, there was believed to be a general run of liquidation, accompanied by short selling by the professional operators, but at no time did the market give any signs of pronounced weakness. Two groups of stocks, the oils and the motors, were heavy throughout the day, with the exception of Chrysler in the latter group. The motors were upset by the announcement of price reductions by a few leading companies, while the oils sagged under the liquidation which has been noticeable during the last few days. While the trend was downward, considerable irregularity developed in the closing hour of business, when some issues reacted further and others recovered sharply. The action of the stocks in the latter group gave the impression in some quarters that the professionals operating on the short side of the market were finding opposition.

The circulation of rumors in Wall Street is one of the innate qualities of the Street. Since no single day goes by when one cannot hear a dozen or more of them, the mere circulation of rumors is hardly worth mentioning; but yesterday the Street, possibly because of the inclement weather, possibly because of the action of the market itself, fairly lost its head in the circulation of wild reports. The stories appeared so exaggerated that before the day was over they were accepted as a joke. The first of the particularly absurd rumors was that President Coolidge had been assassinated. Then it was reported that John D. Rockefeller was seriously ill. Later it was "rumored" about that Governor Smith was dead.

The past week has been marked by an appreciable gain in the activity of the mills of the United States Steel Corporation. This company's operations will average about 68 per cent. of capacity for the current week, compared with operations equaling 62 per cent. a week ago and about 48 per cent. reported at this time last year. The increased operations, according to information yesterday, have been accompanied by a substantial increase in new buying. With few exceptions the new orders are small and scattered, and when the railroad buying usually experienced in the Autumn develops further substantial improvement in the industry is predicted. In view of the increased demand the prediction was made yesterday that the unfilled orders carried on the books of the Steel Corporation at the close of July will show a smaller loss than reported at any time since the downward trend started in the Spring.

Month-end requirements were generally accepted as the chief reason for the firmer call money rates which resulted in a downward tendency in stock prices yesterday. The lower rates of the previous day also were reported to have caused considerable withdrawals of funds by banks in the interior of the country. The firmness of yesterday, which sent the rate on call money up to 4½ per cent, as against the 3¾ per cent. quotation of Thursday, was declared to be the result of special conditions and not to reflect any significant change in the financial situation. All reports agreed that ample funds are available both for industry and the stock market, and the general expectation in Wall Street is that easy rates will prevail at least for the next several weeks. Industrial corporations, or corporations which may conveniently be thus classified, are known to have been considerable factors in the call loan market in recent weeks. The reason was said to be the unusually strong cash positions these concerns have attained in the course of the last few years and which are revealed in balance sheets issued June 30.

Control of the Reading.

Despite a persistent opinion in the financial district that Leonor F. Loree was only playing a game of railroad strategy in outlining a "fifth system" to compete with Eastern trunk lines, Mr. Crowley of the New York Central and Mr. Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio apparently have accepted his action as of serious intention and fortified their holdings of the Reading. It was learned from good authority yesterday that the two roads have increased their combined interest in Reading stock from the 43 per cent. indicated in the last annual reports to a little more than 50 per cent. Mr. Willard in commenting on the Loree plan recently admitted that there was some question as to its serious intent, but added that Mr. Loree had presented it as such, and he had received it with the same feeling. The purchase of something like 25 per cent. of the Lehigh Valley stock credited to Mr. Loree is also thought to have aroused the Baltimore & Ohio and Central heads to secure their position in the Reading.

The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission limiting the sale of bonds for construction purposes to 50 per cent. of the actual cost in granting a petition from the New Mexico Central for authority to proceed with a 100-mile extension is taken in the financial district to indicate a more conservative attitude on the part of the regulatory body, possibly inspired by the receivership of the St. Paul. Every certificate of convenience granted, Commissioner Meyer sets forth, without proper conditions adds to a "long list of tragedies." Railroads will continue to fail, he adds, but in so far as possible the commission should prevent it.

Municipal Bond Prices Easier.

The tendency of municipal bond prices to ease off, which has been apparent since the end of June, has not resulted in large declines, but has been sufficient to reduce the yield basis of these securities, on an average, .05 per cent. The market at present is showing little activity, the reason being chiefly seasonal. Relatively firmer money rates also have been a factor, as the price of money always has had a close connection with bond prices. Investment houses report that savings banks have not been large buyers recently, but are expected to increase their purchases at the prices now prevailing. The present relative easiness in the municipal bond market is not expected to continue long, since large sums are still being added to the funds available for new investments. New offerings of municipal bonds are considerably smaller than the volume a few weeks ago.

$80,505,000 BONDS OFFERED IN WEEK

FOREIGN LOANS ABOUT OVER

New bond offerings this week were diversified and reached a total of $80,505,000. This was about $18,000,000 smaller than last week's total, but the larger figures of last week were due principally to the $75,000,000 loan to Australia. Issues in most of the other groups were larger this week than last. The offerings, by groups, of this and last week follow:

	This Week	Last Week
Railroad	25,000,000	....
Public utility	4,000,000	10,153,000
State and Municipal	3,505,000	1,355,000

The principal foreign issue of the week was a $30,000,000 offering of Kingdom of Denmark thirty-year 5½ per cent. bonds which will retire an issue floated several years ago at an 8 per cent. rate. There was also an issue by a Colombian municipality, the first Central American financing arranged in the New York market in months. The heavy foreign financing which has been in progress for several months is believed now to be over for awhile, except for a $20,000,000 Japanese public utility loan being arranged, and a loan to Canada to take care of maturities occurring later this year.

The feature in the industrial group was a $17,500,000 bond issue of the Trumbull Steel Company handled by the National City Company, and the one railroad issue of the week was a $25,000,000 offering of the Seaboard-All Florida Railway through Dillon, Read & Co. State and municipal offerings have fallen far below the volume that prevailed up to a few weeks ago, and the public utility industry appears to have completed its bond financing program for the present.

S. W. Straus & Co. are forming a dealer group to participate in the distribution of an issue of $2,000,000 first mortgage sinking fund coupon gold bonds, which will be offered shortly. The issue is secured by the land and a new 21-story bank, store and office building appraised at $3,000,000. The bonds, bearing 6 per cent. interest, are expected to be priced at 99.

A syndicate headed by George M. Forman & Co. is offering today $535,000 Sound View Garden Apartments first mortgage 6½ per cent. serial gold bonds at 100 and interest. At the option of the investor these bonds may be purchased unconditionally guaranteed at a price to yield 6 per cent. The issue is secured by an apartment house and garage at Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Dillon, Read & Co., in behalf of themselves and Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., announce that the issue of $25,000,000 Seaboard-All Florida first mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds, offered yesterday, has all been sold and the books closed.

PLANS SEABOARD EXTENSION

S. Davies Warfield, President of the Seaboard Air Line, announced yesterday that following the receipt of definite assurance from the Chamber of Commerce of Homestead, Fla., that right of way grants had been signed, the Seaboard had decided to extend its line from Miami to Homestead and Florida City.

"Perhaps you have noticed," he said, "financing of construction to Miami. I will now make provision for the further financing of the extension to Homestead and Florida City."

LOREE STIRS BUYING IN STOCK OF READING

Delaware & Hudson Chief's "Fifth System" Plans Run Counter to Daniel Willard's.

Aroused by the market operations of Leonor F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson, in building up his proposed "fifth system," the Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central have fortified their holdings in the Reading, according to a persistent rumor in the financial district. Their combined interest, indicated as 43 per cent. in the annual reports for 1924, has been raised to over 50 per cent. to secure the position of the trunk lines in case Mr. Loree turns his attention toward the Reading.

As the Baltimore & Ohio would be deprived of a portion of its route from Philadelphia to this city if the Reading management refused it operating rights over the Reading tracks, Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio, considers it highly important that his road retain a voice in the affairs of the smaller road. While Mr. Loree does not include the Reading in the nine-road grouping which he has offered as a fifth system, he advocates an equal division of its control among all Eastern trunk lines. Mr. Willard is understood to be very much opposed to this suggestion, and has gone so far as to say that if it were carried into effect the Baltimore & Ohio would make Philadelphia rather than New York its Eastern terminus.

The New York Central is equally desirous of exercising control of the Lehigh Valley and is thought to have indulged in competitive buying recently with Mr. Loree which resulted in a deadlock, with these two interests holding about 25 per cent. each of Lehigh Valley stock.

The situation, it is believed, precipitated the conference of the trunk line heads, where it was decided to change what long has been practical control of the Reading to an actual voting majority. If the consolidation plans set forth in the four-system agreement, which was signed by the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Nickel Plate, are worked out to the satisfaction of the Central, railroad men believe that road's holdings of the Reading will be turned over to the Baltimore & Ohio. This transfer, however, in the opinion of those close to the situation, is contingent upon the New York Central receiving the Lehigh Valley.

Westinghouse Air Brake Income.

The Westinghouse Air Brake Company and subsidiaries report net income of $4,722,073, for the six months ended June 30, equivalent after taxes and depreciation to $5.98 a share (par $50) on $39,428,844 outstanding stock. This compares with $3,979,075 or $5.05 a share on $39,358,884 stock outstanding in the first half of 1924.

THIS consolidation brings together, under charter dated 1838, two of New York's oldest banks, which for many years have had a close community of ownership.

The American Exchange-Pacific National Bank being cognizant of the rapid growth of uptown New York thus provides that district with direct and convenient banking facilities. For 75 years the Pacific Bank has served uptown New York, and through this consolidation its former offices will have available the increased banking power of the combined institution.

The American Exchange-Pacific National Bank believes that competent service, adequate resources and a broad outlook are essential to progress, and it will continue to conduct its business on this basis.

RULES PALMETTO MUST SHOW CAUSE

TO HEAR CASE AUGUST 5

Other Companies Said to Be Involved in Chrysler Deal—Purchaser's Status Set Forth.

The New York State Insurance Department issued a summons yesterday for the Palmetto Fire Insurance Company of Sumter, S. C., to appear before Superintendent James A. Beha at his office on Aug. 5 to show cause why the company's certificate to do business in this State should not be revoked. The summons contains the first detailed charges against the Palmetto Company, which, it was learned yesterday, is but one of a number of fire insurance companies involved in the case growing out of the Chrysler Corporation's recently inaugurated policy of giving fire and theft insurance to purchasers of Chrysler automobiles. The identity of the other companies was not disclosed.

At the offices of the State Insurance Department it was said that the certificate to do a reinsurance business in New York was issued to the Palmetto Company, which had previously operated in this State, last December. It is charged that the Palmetto Company exceeded its rights under the certificate and the Superintendent intends to stop the alleged illegal practices, one of which is declared to be the issuance of Chrysler automobile policies without having filed a chedule of rates with the Insurance Department, and without duly appointed or licensed agents under the New York insurance laws.

The Chrysler attorneys, as well as those of the Palmetto Company, decided to fight the Superintendent's recent ruling on the ground that the contract between the two companies that is valid in Michigan and in full force in other States should likewise be valid in New York.

Inquiry yesterday as to effect of the Superintendent's ruling on the individual car buyer brought out that it would be up to the Chrysler Corporation to make the fire and theft policies good should its contract with Palmetto be declared non-operative in New York. It was also indicated that the car buyer might have difficulty in obtaining prompt settlement because of the controversy now on.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Transactions in foreign exchange were small, and there were no marked changes in the level of quotations. Sterling was steady at slightly higher prices, support being attributed to Government action which will cause at least a postponement of the threatened coal strike. Sterling held within narrow limits, closing at $4.85⅝, as against a close at $4.85 1-16 the prevous day. French francs moved up fractionally early in the day, but closed ⅛ of a point net lower at $4.74 cents, while Italian lire advanced ½ point for the day at 3.66½ cents. Scandinavian exchanges suffered a further reaction, but are still considerably higher than the level that prevailed early in July. German reichsmarks, which have been quoted for weeks at 23.80 cents, advanced to 23.81 cents.

DISCOUNTS SUGAR BUYING.

Federal Company Doesn't Believe Consumption Is Heavier.

Statements that the United States is consuming more sugar this year than last cannot be based on available figures, the Federal Sugar Refining Company declares in its review of the industry. It has been stated that the consumption of sugar in this country has been 300,000 to 400,000 tons greater in the first six months of this year than in the first half of last year. The Federal Company asserts that while this extra amount of sugar has been distributed, it may represent invisible supplies available for later consumption.

The Cuban representative of the Federal Company estimates that Cuba will have 1,737,136 tons of sugar available for export from now until the beginning of the next crop. Production will be 5,100,000 tons, based on the output of the 173 centrals which have finished and the 10 which are still grinding.

ADVENT OF AUGUST FINDS TRADE BRISK

FALL BUYERS ARE ACTIVE

August is opening with far more cheerfulness in the business world than usually prevails at this time of the year, the weekly trade reviews report. Higher prices for farm products, favorable earning reports by various large industrial corporations and the heaviest car loading figures of the year are contributing to an improved position of both buyer and seller. R. G. Dun & Co. will say:

"Sentiment has been helped by the fact that business, although still irregular, has shown gains in some instances during the season when a contraction of operations invariably occurs, and it is significant that preparations for Fall trade are becoming more active. There is more disposition among buyers of some textiles to make provision for probable future needs; transactions in footwear and leather are gradually enlarging; demands for iron and steel are broadening, and in some other lines midsummer dullness ns less apparent than usual.

"The improved position of most sellers, moreover, is reflected in the continued upward trend of wholesale quotations, with twenty-three of this week's total of thirty-six advances in Dun's list occurring outside of the foodstuffs group. Adjustments that brought production more closely in balance with consumption have had a supporting effect in different markets, yet concessions have not entirely disappeared and prices for certain commodities, notably steel, remain at relatively low levels. Contrary to the experience of some other years, competitive bidding for goods is now absent, and this makes for wholesome conditions."

"Despite numerous irregularities visible in crops, trade and industry—spottiness is still a frequently used characterization—the feeling of cheerfulness, in some sections optimism is the word, is very noticeable. As to crops, it is admitted that few of these promise as large yields as a year ago, but the prevailing levels of most prices seem to more than offset any disappointment felt at the smaller than expected returns so far indicated.

"As to trade and industry, there is reason to believe that the rally in tone from the disappointment of the Spring is still operative, aided by the knowledge that things generally are better than they were a year go, although none the less evidently below the best of some earlier years. Finally, there seems quite considerable growth of the idea that the turn for the better, some time ago merely hoped for, is now well under way, and that the future holds a fairly satisfactory business prospect."

STOCK PRICES ADVANCING.

Bonds Also in Strong Position, Says Review of Conditions.

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions says in its current issue that stock prices are forging steadily ahead, while bond prices are moving horizontally. The Review adds:

"Thus far bonds recorded their highest May 23, and yet they have remained in such a strong statistical position that one could not recommend selling. Neither has it paid to sell, because there has been no better use for the funds.

"Share prices are now responding to improved earnings and public enthusiasm and are rising higher and higher above parity with the bond market. In other words, stock prices are higher than usual as compared with bond prices.

"It should pay to continue holding both bonds and stocks, however, at least for the time being. To the typical investor there is still no better way to employ funds than to leave them in bonds; and to the typical shareholder there is no very good reason for selling until the economic situation turns bearish."

MOVEMENT OF GOLD HERE LIGHT IN JULY

MUCH ACTIVITY IN LOANS

Out-of-Town Banks Drew Heavily on New York in First Week, but Repaid Quickly.

The gold movement at the Port of New York in July was even smaller than in June, according to the Monthly Review of the Federal Reserve Agent at New York. For the first twenty-eight days of the month exports totaled only $2,100,000 and imports $500,000, leaving an export balance of $1,600,000.

"June reports for the whole country," the Review says, "show that both exports and imports were smaller than in May, though the export balance of $2,300,000 was slightly larger. Of the exports, which aggregated $6,700,000, approximately $3,600,000 went to Hongkong and $1,000,000 each to Mexico and Italy. Nearly two-thirds of the $4,400,000 imported came from Canada.

"During the first half of 1925 total exports amounted to $190,900,000 and imports to $40,700,000, making a net export of $150,200,000."

Loans Return to Old Level.

Regarding banking conditions in the Second Federal Reserve District, the Review says:

In July of this year, as in previous years, the demand for credit incident to the mid-year settlements fell chiefly upon New York City banks. The withdrawal of funds from the New York market by out-of-town banks was met by a temporary increase of loans on securities by New York City banks. After the first week of July out-of-town money returned to New York and loans by New York banks were restored to the level which has been maintained with a good deal of consistency since the first of the year. By the middle of July, in fact, the figures for various types of loans and investments by New York City banks were slightly lower than at the middle of June.

	Jan 7.	June 17.	July 22.
Investmts., incl. Govt. securities	1,876	1,813	1,807
Loans on stks. & bds.	2,002	2,090	1,977
Tot. loans & invest.	6,298	6,018	5,979

As the table shows there has been a decline of over 300,000,000 since the first of the year in the total amount of credit extended by these New York City banks. Of this $300,000,000 decline, over 200 millions was in commercial loans, $200,000,000 was in holdings of Government securities.

Loans on Securities.

"The principal feature in which these New York City banks have differed since the first of the year from the banks outside New York which report weekly has been in the movement of loans on stocks and bonds. While loans of this charcater by these New York City banks have remained steady since the first of the year, such loans by outside banks have increased about $375,000,000 Aggregate commercial loans and investments of outside banks show practically no change since the first of the year.

"Temporary extensions of credit over the mid-year, together with a Fourth of July demand for extra currency amounting to about $35,000,000 led to an increase for a few days in borrowings by New York City banks at the Federal Reserve Bank. The average amount of credit extended by the Reserve Bank, however, during the month of July was only slightly larger than in June.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY REPORT

Surplus of $7,896,000 for First Half of Year Sets Record.

The report of operation for the first half of 1925 by the Southern Railway set a new record for that road. Surplus after all charges was $7,896,000, against $6,417,000 last year, an increase of $1,479,000, or 23 per cent. After allowing for dividends on the preferred stock this equals $5.33 per common share, against $4.10 last year.

As the present annual dividend on the common stock is $5, many railroad men are predicting an increase in the rate when the directors meet for dividend action in September.

United Alloy Steel Income.

The United Alloy Steel Corporation and subsidiaries report net income of $1,094,588 for the first half year, equivalent after 7 per cent. dividends of $1.22 a share on 800,000 shares of no par common stock. This compares with $648,017, or 66 cents a share in the first six months of 1924.

DAILY OIL RECORD REPORTED FOR JUNE

DECLINE IN IMPORTS

Stock in Storage Decrease 1,350,000 Barrels—944,000,000 Gallons of Gasoline Produced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The production of crude petroleum in the United States as reported to the Bureau of Mines, of the Department of Commerce, during the month of June, amounted to 66,675,000 barrels; a daily average of 2,223,000 barrels. This represents the highest daily rate of production ever recorded. The department said it was an increase of 27,000 barrels per day over the previous record figures of May. California, and to a lesser extent, Kansas and Oklahoma, were responsible for the increased production.

The total production in May, which has thirty-one days, as compared with thirty days for June, was 68,082,000, or slightly in excess of the total production for June. In May production of light crude, which has highest gasoline content, was [illegible]6,214,000 and production of heavy crude reached 705,420 barrels. Figures for June were: Light crude, 45,243,000; heavy crude, 21,432,000 barrels.

Total production of crude oil for the six months from January to June, 1925, was 370,185,000 barrels as compared with [illegible]2,016,000 for the same period in 1924.

Imports of crude oil fell off in June and amounted to 5,153,000 barrels, as compared with 6,484,000 in May. For the six months from January to June, 1925, imports were 36,032,000 barrels, as compared with 42,795,000 barrels for the same period in 1924.

Exports of crude oil were 1,255,000 barrels in June, as compared with 1,376,000 in May. For the six months from January to June the exports were 6,757,000 barrels in 1925, as compared with 9,631,000 in 1924. East of the Rockies crude stocks decreased 1,350,000 barrels in June, as compared with an increase west of the Rockies of 2,070,000 barrels. In the mid-continent field, exclusive of Northern Louisiana and Arkansas, there was a decrease of crude stocks of almost 5,000,000 barrels.

During June reports were received from 311 refineries, with an aggregate daily crude oil capacity of 2,520,000 barrels. These refineries ran to stills 64,847,000 barrels of both foreign and domestic crude oil while operating at 86 per cent. of their rated capacity. This constitutes a record figure for oils run to stills, it being an increase in daily average of 7 per cent. over the previous record figure of May, 1925, and of 29 per cent. over that of June, 1924.

The increased runs to stills were reflected in record production figures for gasoline and gas and fuel oils. Gasoline production for the month amounted to 944,000,000 gallons, a daily average of 31,470,000 gallons. This represents an increase of 6 per cent. over the previous month and of 28 per cent. over June, 1924.

Domestic consumption of gasoline in June set a new record of 868,000,000 gallons, a daily average of 28,940,000 gallons. This represents an increase of 7 per cent. over the previous month and of 27 per cent. over June, 1924.

Stocks of gasoline at the end of the month amounted to 1,695,000,000 gallons, a decrease during the month of 22,000,000 gallons. Assuming that imports, exports and domestic demand will remain constant during July, these stocks represent 55 days' supplies. This compares with 61 days' supply on hand a month ago.

The consumption of kerosene continued to drop and stocks were increased 20,000,000 gallons. The production of gas and fuel oils during the month amounted to 1,360,000,000 gallons.

The consumption of lubricants registered a sharp increase during the month, its total of 87,000,000 gallons representing an increase of 30 per cent. in daily consumption. Stocks of wax at the refineries continued their slow increase, totaling 110,400,000 pounds at the end of the month, as compared to 109,800,000 pounds on hand May 31, 1925. Both domestic demand and exports of wax fell off during the month.

FINDS COMPETITION CUTS BANKS' PROFIT

Competition in the banking business between individual banks and between classes of banks is becoming so great in New York City that the margin of net profit is becoming smaller and smaller as years go by, according to a study of comparative tabulation from operations of the twenty-five State banks in the city for the year ended June 30 which has been made by The Financial Age.

There are about 275 banks and branches of banks in New York, although there are only seventy-one parent or individual banks. Of these twenty-seven are national banks, nineteen are trust companies and twenty-five are commercial State banks. The total capital of the State banks amounts to $44,300,000, surplus and profits to $56,208,000, and aggregate capital, surplus and net deposits to $920,553,000.

Average net earnings on this sum for the year is at the ratio of 1.05 per cent., while the average ratio of earnings of the trust companies for the same period was 1.4 per cent., and for the national banks 1.5 per cent., according to The Financial Age, which goes on to say:

"The high costs in the conduct of modern banking in a large city make it imperative that the volume of business handled by a bank must be in a greater ratio to its capital and surplus than heretofore. With the increase in free service for patrons and a lowering of the interest rates, it is necessary for a successful bank to average from $8 to $10 of deposits to $1 of capital and surplus, when in former years a ratio of five or six to one was sufficient."

Corporation Intends to Convert Detroit Property Into Large Bus Body Manufactory.

The Fisher Body Corporation has acquired the plant formerly occupied by the Buick Motor Car Company, covering 40 acres and 500,000 square feet of floor space, located at Michigan and Western Avenues, Detroit. It is the intention of the new owner to convert the property into the largest bus manufacturing plant in the world.

According to advices received in Wall Street yesterday, the Fisher Body Corporation is assured quantity production as a result of orders already received from the Yellow Truck and Coach Company. The latter company was organized recently as a result of the proposed merger of the truck division of the General Motors Corporation and the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company of Chicago. The General Motors Corporation, through ownership of a majority of the stock, controls the Yellow Truck and Coach Company and the Fisher Body Corporation. A close working agreement exists between the two companies and General Motors.

Heretofore the Fisher Body Corporation has devoted its efforts to perfecting bodies for motor cars and trucks, but it was stated yesterday that the company for some time past has been considering entering the field of bus body manufacture.

LOWER QUAKE INSURANCE.

The revised rates on earthquake insurance voted recently by a Committee of Explosion Conference have been promulgated and are effective Aug. 15 in this State and since yesterday in the remainder of the United States outside of the territory of the Board of Fire Underwriters of the Pacific. The rate on dwellings, on which no coinsurance is required, is reduced from 10 cents to 8 cents annually, while the largest reduction is in the rate on fireproof buildings. The rate promulgated July 16 for the latter class was 10 cents, with 80 per cent. coinsurance required, while the new rate is 8 cents, with 50 per cent. coinsurance required, and a credit of 25 per cent. if an 80 per cent. coinsurance clause is attached, thus cutting the rate with 80 per cent. coinsurance from 10 cents to 6 cents. Rates on other classes are reduced because of the lower coinsurance requirements and larger credits for 80, 90, or 100 per cent. coinsurance.

The revised rates were finally adopted last Wednesday. After study of hazards and other conditions, further refinements in the schedule will be made and promulgated to members of the conference later, according to Manager W. F. Roembke.

WOOL TRADE IRREGULAR.

BOSTON, July 31.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

"The wool market has been irregular and rather on the easy side this week, trade being held up to ascertain the reaction to the opening of lightweight goods by the American Woolen Company and the outcome of the readjustments in wages both here and in Yorkshire. Where concessions have been made they have been of only a minor nature, likely to occur in any dull market and frequently prices as high as ever have been paid. Results on the goods opening thus far have been rather encouraging.

"Australia has ruled firm to fractionally dearer. Bradford is full and easier, tops being down a penny or two. The Continent is fairly keen.

"In the West, there has been little of new development. The bids for the Jericho pool Wednesday were all rejected, growers being disappointed at the lack of interest shown."

ISSUES B.M.T. CERTIFICATES

Employes of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation are receiving certificates for shares of B. M. T. preferred stock purchased by them during the past year on the deferred payment plan. They have paid out of their wages $60.50 a share for the stock, which is now selling in the open market above $80 a share.

The offer to the workers was made on July 16, 1924, and within ten days more than 10,000 employes subscribed for more than 20,000 shares. The offer was limited to 15,000 shares so that it was necessary to restrict the number of shares allotted to any employe to three. Arrangements were made so that employes could pay for the stock by having $1.25 a week per share deducted from their pay. The final payment of 48 cents a share was deducted from their wages for the week ended July 9.

They also declared a dividend on the prior preferred of 58 cents a share, payable the same date. The last payment on the preferred stock was made April 1, 1921.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Company has authorized dividend No. 18 of $2 a share on the 8 per cent. preferred capital stock, payable Sept. 1 to stock of record Aug. 20.

LINKS OUR TARIFF WITH FOREIGN DEBTS

FINDS MUCH GOOD IN PARLEY

Thinks It Will Further Uniformity of Business Practices—Praises Share of Americans.

A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, returned yesterday on the Cunarder Berengaria from a seven weeks' trip in Europe during which he attended the Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce at Brussels and also visited Paris and London.

In a prepared statement Mr. Bedford said:

"The Brussels Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce furnished an excellent illustration of the wisdom of withholding criticism till the picture is painted. The picture was not complete till the last day of the congress, when 700 delegates unanimously adopted the resolutions on economic restoration, despite the fact that during the public discussions very divergent views had been expressed by individual speakers. Whatever criticism these personal views may have aroused, such criticism does not apply to the final results of the chamber's work represented by the resolutions which, when all is said and done, must be accepted as the considered judgment of the business world.

"The point which most nearly touches the United States is the assumption by this great gathering of business men from thirty-eight commercial nations of the world that all effective payments made by Germany must, in the final analysis, be made in the form of goods delivered or service rendered by Germany either directly or indirectly to the Allies and the United States. Moreover, it was agreed that the same problems that complicate the payment of reparations also affect the payment of interallied debts, for here again the debtors will only be able to pay in goods or in services. Therefore it stands to reason that our tariff is an important factor in the shipments of goods that debtor countries will be able to send to the United States. There was, of course, a natural unwillingness on the part of responsible men to appear to meddle with national policies.

"The fact that Germany has joined the international chamber is most important. The International Chamber of Commerce now represents all the great commercial nations, and has slowly but steadily woven a network of economic relations over the whole world which will enable it to secure greater uniformity of business practices and of laws governing commercial activities in every country. That will be a great step forward. International public opinion on business matters is being crystalized for reasoned progress and for peace.

"Americans played a leading part in the resolutions on economic restoration, commercial credit, a code of business conduct, letters of guarantee against clean bills of lading, highway transport and international telephony. A very important address was also delivered by the leader of the delegation, John W. O'Leary, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, in which he stated, in a clear and friendly way, the importance which the American business world attached to a fair settlement of the interallied debts as an essential basis for establishing a lasting confidence in international business agreements, insisting that if the funding of debts is delayed the return of confidence generally in trade will be also delayed."

TEXAS CO. SURRENDERS ITS OPTION ON CARIB

The Texas Company notified the Carib Syndicate, Ltd., yesterday that it would surrender its option, effective today, to acquire 51 per cent. of the capital stock of the Carib Company of Maine, which is controlled by the syndicate, and also the option under which it was to develop the Central and South American properties controlled by the Carib interests. The notification had been expected in the financial district for several weeks, as it had been reported that the Texas Company gave verbal notice of it to the Carib executives.

As a result of the surrendering of the option held by the Texas Company, it was reported that the Carib Syndicate would enter into negotiations with other large oil companies to develop its acreage in foreign countries, but under any new arrangement it is understood the contracts will be let on a royalty basis. The option held by the Texas Company, entered into five years ago, gave the company the right to purchase 51 per cent. of the Carib stock for $5,000,000. It also provided that Texas was to advance Carib funds to carry on its affairs, with certain limitations. In all, it was reported, the Texas Company advanced $400,000, which will be repaid by Carib.

The Carib Syndicate, it was stated, has arranged to sell 301,100 shares of unissued stock, held in the treasury, to a syndicate which has been organized. Part of the proceeds will be used to reimburse the Texas Company.

ANOTHER PRICE LOSS RECORDED IN COTTON

Drop Totals a Cent and a Half in Few Days, Due to Added Moisture in the Belt.

Cotton declined another quarter of a cent yesterday, making a loss of a cent and a half in a few days. Rains continued over what have been dry sections of the cotton belt, even working into drought districts of Central Texas. More moisture has been received in the Mississippi Valley and Western Belt this week than in the past two months. This increased selling pressure during early trading but the decline was arrested by profit taking on the part of various professional interests, which caused a recovery that left final prices only 2 to 5 points lower than Thursday. Two private reports were issued by local firms on conditions as of July 25, one showing a decline of 7 points for the month to 67, while the other estimated the crop at 13,858,000 bales on a condition of 67.8.

Two stations in Texas reported an inch or over, while twenty-six other points in that State received moisture. All but three stations in Oklahoma had rain again with several stations in Oklahoma, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Arkansas reporting a precipitation of an inch to over three inches.

A sharp break in foreign prices following the decline in American markets Thursday and private reports that rains were extending into central drought regions of Texas, caused a resumption of the selling movement at the opening. An accumulation of over-night orders, as a result of the breaking of the drought over an extensive area of the cotton belt, started the list ten to fifteen points lower than previous closing.

Owing to corrections in the various tables at the close of the cotton year yesterday, week-end statistics were not issued as usual on Friday. It was estimated that heavy spinners takings again this week would bring the season's aggregate to about 14,500,000 bales, compared with 11,144,000 last year.

JULY WHEAT MAKES A NINE-CENT BOUND

Open Interest Involved in Day's Trading, Figured at Over 4,000,000 Bushels.

CHICAGO, July 31.—In a spectacular upward rush, seldom equaled except in war times, wheat available for July delivery here scored a gain in price of nine cents a bushel today. The closing figures for that delivery, $1.65½ to $1.66, were 15 cents over wheat deliverable tomorrow. As a whole, the wheat market closed irregular, ranging all the way from 1⅛ cent decline to the nine-cent advance, September, $1.49¼ to $1.49⅜, and December $1.50½ to $1.50⅝, with corn unchanged to 1⅛ cents down, and oats, ⅝ to ⅞ to 1 cent off.

It was estimated that the open interest at the close on Friday was in excess of 4,000,000 bushels, and around 1,000,000 bushels changed hands between $1.65 and $1.66. Part of the 2,030,000 bushels cash grain delivered during the day went to seaboard interests. There were defaults on 95,000 bushels, of which 75,000 represented cash grain on which delivery notices could not be made out promptly.

Liverpool closed 1@1⅛d higher and will be closed tomorrow and Monday. Winnipeg will also be closed Mondya.

Primary arrivals were 2,071,000 bushels; week ago, 1,890,000; last year, 3,224,000. Shipments, 953,000; week ago, 922,000; last year, 1,358,000.

Eastern cash demand remains relatively slow, but there was some export business in oats both by Northwestern and local interests, quantities not being given.

Primary arrivals of corn were 438,000 bushels; week ago, 470,000; last year, 693,000. Shipments were 243,000 bushels; week ago, 358,000; last year, 335,000.

DU PONT NET SALES GAIN.

Reports $56,613,212 for First Half, Exceeding 1924 by 18½%.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. for the six months ended June 30 report net sales of $56,613,212, exceeding the sales for the corresponding period of 1924 by about 18½ per cent.

After provisions for bond interest and debenture stock dividends earnings on the common stock were 9.38 per cent., or at the annual rate of 18.76 per cent. on the stock outstanding. This compares with earnings for the first six months of 1924 of 5.85 per cent. and for the entire year of 1924 of 12.46 per cent. Allowing for increase in common stock outstanding following payment on Aug. 10 of the 40 per cent. common stock dividend the earnings for the first six months of 1925 would be 6.70 per cent. The du Pont company's equity in the earnings of General Motors Corporation, Fisher Body Corporation and General Motors Acceptance Corporation in excess of dividends received on its General Motors common stock of $3 per share amounts to an additional 8.34 per cent. on du Pont common stock.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have officially notified E. W. Marland, President of the Marland Oil Company, that they are exercising the 150,000-share balance of their option on the Marland common stock. The price of the option is $40 per share.

This completes the transaction under which the Morgan firm has purchased a total of 635,000 shares of Marland Oil treasury stock for an aggregate of $22,400,000 cash. It places the oil company in a strong position financially, and is expected to provide the basis for extensive new development.

The first option was for 300,000 shares at $30 a share, or $9,000,000 in cash, in January, 1294. This marks the entry of J. P. Morgan & Co. as bankers for the Marland Oil Company. The purchase followed approval voted by stockholders of the oil company at a special meeting.

An option at the same time was given the bankers for an additional 335,000 shares of treasury stock, running to Feb. 10 this year, at $39 a share, with a consideration of $1 a share for the option, making the total cost of the second option $40 a share.

One hundred thousand shares were taken under the second option on Feb. 10, and the balance was extended to Aug. 10. Late in June the bankers exercised their option on 85,000 shares. This left 150,000 of the 335,000 shares, and these will now be taken under the option.

PARIS STYLES SEEN AT BALL OF FASHION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 31.—Jean Patou opened the ball of fashion season under the happiest auspices tonight. It was a brilliant occasion, with a large audience of designers, buyers, representatives of the press and, here and there, notables from the ranks of smart society and the diplomatic service.

The setting was that of a private entertainment, with perfect arrangements for the comfort of the guests and an army of courteous attendants. Supper was served, with champagne in abundance, throughout the evening. The Patous, mannequins, several of whom were Americans, are unusually attractive this season, and displayed with particularly happy effect the models of styles for young women.

The program was divided between sports clothes and evening dress in an amazing display. A few points were definitely established. First and most important were the announcements that a higher waist line, merely suggested in last season's styles, has now become stabilized, giving longer skirt lengths to the wearer. The one-piece frock was universally featured, but with new and easier lines.

Straight silhouette is retained in some models, particularly in those of cloth of plain mixtures and plaids, but in most frocks pleats are introduced to give greater freedom of movement. In several chic designs the pleats begin at a deep yoke, suggesting a Norfolk jacket, others extending from the hip below a straight bodice. All have a narrow belt slightly confining. The sports ensemble consists of a narrow skirt, plain or kilt, fancy knitted sweater and topcoat matching skirt and lined with harmonizing color.

Coats Are Trimmed With Fur.

This is repeated in more dressy ensembles, having a skirt or pleated kasha, with colored embroidery introduced in a topcoat of velvet, silk lined. Coats, with few exceptions, are cut with flair swinging backward and all are fur trimmed, some with collars and cuffs only of fur, others lavishly, with a border down the front and around the bottom.

In ensembles for afternoon exquisite models were shown. The gowns were of crepe morocain or crepe satin, delicately embroidered with floss tinsel, a crystal coat of velvet lined with crepe or satin to harmonize with the gown. In most elaborate costumes the coat was made of velvet lined with fur matching that used for trimming.

"Fur will be more fashionable than ever, Patou favorites being fox, fancy dyed squirrel, bleached and dyed seal, baby leopard, chinchilla, muskrat and opossum. Extreme novelties in fur coats to be worn over soft gowns were shown in fancy skins put together in small pieces to form a diamond pattern, the contrasting colors being brown and white, gray and white and brown and tan. Patou presents a cloak with fuller skirts, wider and slightly longer, almost without exception showing a flaring flounce added to a straight foundation.

Broadcloth in New Version.

Plain clothes will be used with a few figured stuffs and imitation brocades. Taffetas and dyed thread materials are especially popular. Broadcloth in a new version will be much employed in one-piece frocks and coats.

M. Patou interprets the coming modes with more richness in materials, needlework of unusually fine detail and the general use of fur and trimming.

The dominating note for Fall and Winter is silk velvet, in which some of M. Patou's most elaborate gowns and ensembles are modeled. He introduces as an achievement of the season a silk velvet with a straight pile, especially woven by old Lyons workmen in a width of 110 centimeters, which never before has been accomplished. There is an unusually graceful line in the hemming of this material.

Colors are more beautiful than ever. Blacks are used judiciously, but new shades are brown beige and variants and warm shades of old reds, clarets, Burgundy, Indian red, plum and currant. Several beautiful greens were shown with M. Patou's own favorite, "grenat," Patou's purple, corinthe, moss green, apricot, orchid, violet and jade.

The sensations of the exhibition were a Lenglen pleated skirt, jumper and bathing bandeau, and a skiing suit—trousers, sweater and leather jacket.

RAILROADS WIN RIGHT TO NEW FREIGHT LEVY

May Impose Surcharge to Cover Loading Costs, Commission Rules.

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP).—Railroads after Aug. 31 may impose a charge upon shippers, additional to the regular freight rate, to cover the cost of loading or unloading carload package freight at Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Rochester, Troy and Green Island, N. Y., the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled today, after a year's investigation of the proposal.

The commission held, however, that the proposed railroad charge for the service, which was 2.5 cents per hundred pounds, was too large. They will be permitted to charge 1.5 cents when the work is performed at tram tracks, and 2.5 cents only where the loading or unloading is at freight or warehouses. New schedules must be filed by railroads to show exactly what charges they will make.

RECEIVER FOR GIDDING & CO.

A petition in bankruptcy, filed on Wednesday against J. M. Gidding & Co., Inc., dealers in women's costumes at 37 West Fifty-seventh Street, resulted yesterday in the appointment of Lawrence Berenson as receiver for the company under a bond of $50,000.

The petitioning creditors are Heffer & Herman for $1,444; William Bloom & Co., Inc., for $1,440, and the firm of I. Lichtenstein, Inc., for $59. The three firms are represented by Bloomberg, Leight & Parker, lawyers, of 200 Fifth Avenue. The assets of the Gidding Company are estimated at $100,000 and the liabilities at $165,000. The business was started many years ago, but the present corporation has been in business only two years. The original company was reorganized several years ago under an equity receivership.

Offers a Novelty in Dolls.

An ingenious novelty in dolls is now being introduced here by a domestic manufacturer. Without any winding which is operated by a wind-up mechanism that can get out of order, the doll reproduces the creeping of a baby, even to the characteristic side-to-side swaying. All that is necessary to produce this effect is to draw the doll along the floor by a string. It has unbreakable hands, legs and head, is clad in an attractive romper dress, and retails for $3. Another innovation is a dancing doll, dressed as a Dutch girl, which is operated by a wind-up mechanism. This one retails for $1.50.

Children's Knit Goods Selling.

Manufacturers of children's and infants' fancy knit goods report that Fall buying is proceeding very satisfactorily. This merchandise, it was pointed out yesterday, has not shared in the depression from which the demand for women's fancy knit goods is suffering. The most popular items for children at present are slip covers, golf coats and four-piece suits of brushed wool. These are composed of cap, sweater, mittens and leggings. The leading color is buff, with Harding blue and cocoa brown next in demand.

Hard Coal Market Is Active.

The anthracite market leaves little to be desired in point of activity, Saward's Journal will say today. With production close to 2,000,000 tons a week, most of the line companies already have orders enough in hand to care for the bulk of their August output, these having been accepted subject to prices prevailing at date of shipment. If this is not true of the independent operators as well, it is because they have followed a different course in booking forward business. Bituminous users are calling for a steadily increasing amount of coal.

Gray Goods Trading Limited.

Although several constructions of gray goods were traded in here yesterday, the aggregate volumne of cloth disposed of wa not great. September deliveries of 38½-inch 64-60s sold for 9½ cents, with first hands holding firm for 9¾ cents for spots of that construction. Second hands, however, let out a few of hands, however, let out afe w of them tem at 9⅝ cents. Nearby trading took place in 39-inch 80-squares at 12½ cents, in 72-76s at 11⅝ cents and in 68-72s at 10⅝ cents. For 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings buyers paid 9¾ cents, and sales of 36-inch 5.50s and 6.15s were made at 7½ and 7 cents, respectively. Some trading in sateens was done, including sales of 37½-inch 64-104s at 12¼ cents. Ten cents was paid for 37-inch 3.95-yard drills.

Expect New Canvas Shoe Prices.

New prices on rubber-soled canvas shoes are looked for today by buyers of this merchandise, as the trade year on it runs from Aug. 1 to Aug. 1. The general expectation is that the new figures will be higher, for, despite the sharp drop in crude rubber in the last week, current prices of that commodity are about four times as high as they were at this time last year. The decline apparently caught the footwear manufacturers unawares, and the absence of information yesterday as to what the new prices would show was taken to mean that the advances might not be so large as they would have been if the raw material had not fallen off.

Confident About Tweed Dresses.

A good deal is heard in the ready-to-wear market now about the possibilities of tweed dresses for Fall. Some manufacturers sensed a trend to tweeds for dresses some time ago, and are showing tailored styles of these garments. They are understood to have met with an encouraging early response on the part of buyers, and further support for their confidence in these garments is contained in the style reports from abroad. These advices tell of a tweed vogue that is growing stronger daily. Accordingly, it is felt that there are very good chances of a similar trend developing in this country.

New Collapsible Pouch Bag.

A pouch bag possessing a new collapsible feature is being offered by a manufacturer here. It is a four-piece, hand-sewed bag which has an automatic spring frame. When the catch is released the bag opens to a square top, four inches in size. This insures much more room for the contents of the bag than is the case with the ordinary pouch style. When closed, however, there is no perceptible gain in size, owing to the construction. Silks and tapestries are used for the bodies of the bags, which have the usual silk lining. The fancy frame is finished in antique gold. The bag is provided with a change purse and mirror, and wholesales at $24 per dozen.

All-Ribbon Hats for Fall.

The all-ribbon hat is expected to be popular for early Fall, following a Spring season in which it met great favor. The ribbons used will be mostly of the grosgrain variety, in which contrasting self patterns supply most of the decoration. Ribbon manufacturers say there has already been considerable sampling of these ribbons by the millinery wholesalers. Reorders are expected to be quite heavy, owing to the sponsorship of the grosgrain hat by leading style authorities. The cloche is the shape that is featured in the early models now being made up.

Vogue for Ribbon Flowers.

It will be "the thing" to wear small ribbon flowers in fur scarfs this Winter, according to predictions made yesterday. It has been some time since this custom has had a wide vogue, but all the indications are said to point to its return. Shaggy ribbon flowers on the French chardon or thistle order are being featured for this purpose. Short ribbons are used for making the flowers, giving the effect of light upon the petals, which are being made up in a large variety of colors. Ribbon flowers for wear at the hip or shoulder, or to act as a fastener for a tulle scarf, will be featured evening wear accessories.

Vivid Colors in Evening Gowns.

That brilliant colors are to play an important rôle in Winter styles is shown by evening frocks that feature the vivid shade between rose and orange known as geranium petal. Since its selection a short time ago by leading fashion authorities, this shade has grown notably in favor, although it is only one of the general range of high colors that are being used. It has one big advantage in that several other shades may be used with it harmoniously. Many of the evening gowns are made of velvet and, when developed in geranium, distinctive touches of gold lace and brown tulle are used for relief. One model with a simple untrimmed bodice and a skirt cut on semicircular lines emphasizes the natural waistline by a wisp of brown tulle with long, floating ends.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Advances Exceed Declines for Eighth Time in Succession.

For the eighth time in succession, Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices showed an excess of advances over declines this week. Only 59 of the 300 or more items in the list were revised, and of these changes 36 were upward. Last week there were 35 advances in 60 revisions. Relatively fewer changes were shown in the foodstuffs than for some time.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

†Nominal.

Only seventeen changes were seen in the foodstuffs this week, and of these ten were advances. Middle Western lard went down, while bacon advanced and hams did not change. The only listed change in flour here was a rise of 25 cents a barrel in the Spring patent variety. At Chicago the only provisions advance was shown by live steers. Short ribs and live hogs declined, while live sheep and mess pork were unchanged.

In the five listed dairy products there were two advances and one decline. Extra creamery butter dropped half a cent a pound, while a gain of that amount was shown by fresh special cheese. Nearby fancy eggs rose 2 cents a dozen. The fresh and dried fruits were bare of changes either way this week, and the revisions in the vegetables were not numerous. Choice red kidney beans were lower, but a rise of 25 cents a barrel in potatoes was seen. They are now held at $5.75, against $2.25 at this time last year. Rutabaga turnips eased off 15 cents a barrel.

The only changes in the beverages were advances in both No. 7 Rio and No. 4 Santos coffees. Only black Lampong and white Singapore peppers showed change in the spices, and they both advanced. There was a further drop in fine granulated sugar, without a corresponding reduction in 96-degree raw sugar.

The changes in the grains list for the week consisted of advances in wheat, rye and malting barley and declines in corn and oats. In the hide list the only changes were declines in No. 1 Texas and Colorado stocks and a rise in heavy native cows. A decline in No. 1 light belting butts was the only change mentioned in the leathers.

Nine of the ten revisions in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils were upward, the paucity of declines and the strength of the oils being the only features. In the naval stores a rise in turpentine offset a drop in resin, which is still very much above last year's comparative price. The changes were evenly divided in the metals, with advances seen in No. 2 pig iron, antimony and lead. The declines took place in iron bars, electrolytic copper and tin. The building materials and the lumber list showed no changes either way.

One of the week's features was the sharp declines that took place in the best Brazilian and Eastern crude rubbers. Despite the breaks, current prices on both grades are a very great deal higher than they were at this time a year ago. Both Japanese and Chinese raw silks were higher. In the miscellaneous changes were a drop in hemp and a rise in jute.

The feature of the week in textiles was the opening of Spring, 1926, lines of staple worsteds and woolens by the principal manufacturers at levels substantially under those of a year ago. Burlaps showed no change to speak of, but in the cotton goods some of the early strength was lacking at the close of the week. This was more the case with the unfinished cloths, however, than with the finished ones.

NEW OPTICAL CORPORATION.

G. Aldrich Company of Somerville, Mass.

SCHRAFFT'S LEASES NEW TEA ROOM SITE

GARMENT CENTRE ACTIVE

West Thirty-ninth St. Plot Bought for $2,000,000 Loft Operation.

Browne's Chop House at 1,424 Broadway, opposite the Metropolitan Opera House, which closed its doors to the public last month after a career of more than threescore years, is to get a new lease of life.

The old five-story building, on a lot 25 by 100 feet, has been subleased by the Frank G. Shattuck Company, owners of Schrafft's, and will be reopened after alterations costing $200,000 as a tea room.

The lease on the property, which has nineteen years to run, was sold to the Shattuck Company by F. J. Farrington, for years the proprietor of Browne's Chop House. It calls for an annual rent of $19,000, or a total of $361,000 for the term. The property is owned by the S. F. Harjo Realty Company.

The Shattuck Company has also leased for a long term the ground floor and basement in the new fourteen-story building being constructed for the E. & G. Development Company at 41-43 Maiden Lane, on a plot 43 by 123 feet. The Shattuck Company plans to occupy this site with a Schrafft's store early in October. The aggregate rental for the period is $630,000. R. L. Lee was the broker in the transaction.

$2,000,000 Garment Centre Project.

Edward P. Sobel and Abraham Sachs, operators, in conjunction with Mayer Mirken of Mirken & Margolin, have purchased one of the largest unimproved available plots left in the Garment Centre. This plot consists of five buildings at 248 to 256 West Thirty-ninth Street, 121 feet front by 99 feet in depth, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues.

Plans are in preparation for the immediate erection on this plot of a seventeen-story loft building for the garment industry. This building will have all of the latest improvements and will be Gothic in design. The plot was held at $700,000, and with the building will entail an improvement of $2,000,000. Excavation will start Oct. 1.

This plot is one of the largest plots now in one ownership between Seventh and Eighth Avenues in the Garment Centre. It was accumulated by Julius Nelson over a period of several years. Mr. Nelson originally built the Nelson Building on Thirty-eighth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues.

This is the fifth operation to be commenced on Thirty-ninth Street between Seventh and Eighth Avenues within a year, and will make Thirty-ninth Street one of the leading streets in the Garment Centre. The brokers in the transaction were Thoens & Flaunlacher, Inc., and William Medine.

Buy Loft in Garment Centre.

Edward P. Sobel and Abraham Sachs, operators, purchased from the Sloane Estates, Inc., a ten-story loft building, 86 by 99 feet, located at 234 to 242 West Thirty-ninth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues. The building was constructed by Fred T. Ley & Co. for the Sloane Estates, and was completed in 1921.

This property is ideally equipped for the garment industry, particularly because of the fact that for the next eighteen years it is assured of permanent light. Directly to the south of this building is the Federal postoffice, which has a twenty-one-year leasehold. The postoffice building is only two stories in height.

The property was held at $750,000, and was sold for all cash. It is the intention of the operators to modernize the building so as to make it in keeping with the other new buildings which have been constructed by the Garment Centre in the last four years. Darling & Co. and Alfred J. Robertson were the brokers.

Site for New Theatre Purchased.

The Alliance Realty Company and Harby, Abrons & Melius yesterday sold 112 to 118 West Fifty-second Street and the adjoining parcel known as 113 West Fifty-first Street, at a price slightly in excess of $3,600 per foot front. The buyer is O. M. Kohn, President of the T. J. Murphy Company, contractors. The price is considered one of the lowest cash prices paid for inside plottage in that district for some time.

The parcels are contiguous. The premises on West Fifty-second Street measure 100 by 100 feet, while the dimensions of the Fifty-first Street parcel are 20 by 100 feet. The premises at 113 West Fifty-first Street are directly in front of the site of Rothafel's proposed new theatre, which will soon be constructed on the old car barn site.

The premises are now occupied by the Calumet Garage. It is the intention of Mr. Kohn to follow the trend of development in that section and to build a theatre for a large theatrical syndicate early in the Spring. In the meantime the building will be continued as a garage. The price is understood to have been close to $500,000. Alfred T. Jenkins, as broker, represented the Alliance Realty Company and Harby, Abrons & Melius. O. M. Kohn was represented by the Garage Realty Company.

HITS BLUE SUNDAY PLAN.

Carlyle B. Haynes, New York State Secretary of the Religious Liberty Association, responding yesterday to the call of the Lord's Day Alliance for suggestions on how to frame a blue Sunday law that would be acceptable, told the alliance to disband and have its clergymen officials go back to preaching the gospel.

Mr. Haynes said that his view of it was that all Sunday laws, even the mildest, "are discriminatory, are unjust, are un-American, are unconstitutional and un-Christian." He said in his letter to the Rev. John Ferguson, General Secretary of the Alliance, that "a minister of Christ's gospel is entirely out of place as a political lobbyist."

Mr. Haynes added that "inasmuch as the Lord's Day Alliance has asked for suggestions as to how to perfect an un-American and unfair blue law, the Religious Liberty Association will also ask the public for suggestions and cooperation in defeating this propaganda."

ONE-PROFIT STUDEBAKERS

---at even lower prices

These Studebaker motor cars, on which new prices are herewith announced, are the identical cars which have given Studebaker tremendous sales volume and thereby lowered production costs.

New prices include all equipment now on our various models except that bumpers, extra tire, cover and motometer are no longer furnished on Big Sixes.

There is no sacrifice in materials nor in workmanship. Studebaker has brought out no new yearly models built to sell at new prices.

These are the same Studebakers on which we were able to announce new low prices on January 8th of this year.
